QUEEN DISTRIBUTES PRAISES SHE PENNED TO EACH OF STATES

NEW YORK 'MIGHTY STATE'

SAYS SHE IS DEMOCRATIC

Queen Marie of Rumania, who leaves at 7:50 o'clock this morning on her transcontinental trip of a month, spent a busy day in New York yesterday, attending church, a series of receptions and, in the evening, the benefit performance at the Metropolitan Opera House of a ballet by Loie Fuller based on Queen Marie's tale, "The Lily of Life."

At the reception and luncheon at the Hotel Biltmore given for her by Mr. and Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris yesterday Queen Marie gave away forty-eight of her own compositions in her own hand-writing—each an apostrophe to one of the States.

The luncheon was attended by women delegates from each State appointed by its Governor. They presented to the Queen a handsomely bound volume dedicated to her and containing a brief description of each State.

The presentation ceremony was delayed for a few seconds by the temporary disappearance of the volume. It was quickly found, however, and given to the Queen by Mrs. B. Frank Mebane of Spray, N. C., who said:

"We welcome you as the most queenly woman and the most womanly Queen in the world."

Queen Gives Surprise.

After the luncheon Queen Marie gave her surprise. A speech was expected from her, but the distribution of the royal compositions in the royal hand-writing was not on the program. Queen Marie said that she had worked on these tributes to the forty-eight States on her trip across the Atlantic.

Each tribute was written on a sheet of blue lined paper with a blue cross in the upper right-hand corner. Each one was wholly in the Queen's own penmanship. She writes in a bold, clear hand, with broad perpendicular pen strokes.

"I have written something," said Queen Marie, "for the ladies who have been so kind as to come here from the different States in this great country, and I hope that I have not written them incorrectly. If I have made any mistakes, it is not my fault, but the fault of your country, for it is so large that I may not be correct in my geography."

The Queen had some trouble in pronouncing the names of some States. She struggled a while with Mississippi and then exclaimed, "Too many double letters. Too many double letters. They always gave me trouble."

She pronounced Connecticut as it is spelled. A Vermont woman corrected her publicly when she placed the accent on the first syllable of that State. The Queen apologized and repeated the State's name, stressing the "mont."

Some Tributes Eloquent.

Some of the Queen's thumb-nail sketches of the American States were eloquent. A few were practically arranged in the form of vers libre. Her tribute to New York State, handed to Mrs. Charles M. Dickinson, President of the State Federation of Women's Clubs, was as follows:

NEW YORK.
THE EMPIRE STATE.

With its largest city in the world reaching out its arms to all humanity in truth and in fact, what can one say before the splendors and greatness of this mighty State with its wonder of wonders, the great Niagara Falls! One stands bewildered at the brilliance of its accomplishments in the development and progress of civilization.

I shall surely cross the Brooklyn Bridge one day and see what man can do. This State and its people interest me intensely. I hope to see them both some time to thank them them for their prodigious accomplishments in the time of need.

MARIE,
Queen of Rumania.

CALIFORNIA,
Land of the Setting Sun, of the Golden Gate
the Days of '49.

Of giant trees, of John Muir and Joaquin Miller, Bret Harte, Edwin Markham, nature's great poet, and other big men; home of modern miracles and genuine hearts.

I greet you and greet you, California, great Queen of the West, for your extreme beauty and for what you have accomplished for humanity.

May I come and see you one day.

Queen of Rumania.

Queen to Get a Silver Shovel In Ohio for Use in Her Garden

DAYTON, Ohio, Oct. 24 (AP).—A silver-plated shovel is perhaps the most unusual gift that is to be presented to Queen Marie during her tour of the United States.

The shovel, the gift of a Piqua (Ohio) implement firm, bears the inscription, "For Her Majesty's Garden," and the Rumanian coat of arms engraved in full detail.

It will be presented to the Queen probably when she visits Ohio.

M'DERMOTT TAKEN IN EDITOR'S MURDER

LODGED IN CANTON JAIL

Special to The New York Times.

CANTON, Ohio, Oct. 24.—Pat McDermott, sought for three months as the "key man" in the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton publisher, arrived here shortly before 9 o'clock tonight, accompanied by County Prosecutor C. B. McClintock and Detective Ora Slater. McDermot, indicted jointly with Louis Mazer and Ben Rudner, Canton men, for the murder, was surprised in the mountain fastnesses of Pennsylvania, fifteen miles south of Johnstown, by McClintock, Slater and B. F. McDermott, Pat's brother, this morning, and was hustled into the officials' automobile and started on his way to the jail here.

McDermott, arriving here with a haunted look, worn out by his three months of hiding, eluding a nation-wide search for him, was still defiant. He refused to say anything concerning his alleged part in the murder and insisted on talking about "trivial matters" during the 175-mile drive. The journey was made in a steady downpour of rain, over slippery, treacherous roads.

McClintock and Slater declared that they hoped to get a confession from him as to the higher-ups in the murder, but declared they would not press him tonight.

McDermott's arrest was just as mysterious as was his dropping out of sight following the broadcast for his arrest shortly after Mellett was assassinated, July 16.

"I've got important news for you. Come to Johnstown at once," the brother told McClintock.

Without waiting for further details, the Prosecutor got in touch with Slater, Cincinnati detective, who has conducted a lone investigation into the murder ever since it was done, after all others had dropped active work on the crime, and the pair started in an automobile for Johnstown.

There they met B. F. McDermott. They conferred with him last night in the Fort Stanwix Hotel and arranged the details of Pat's surrender, which at the time was unknown to Pat.

"Some members of the family have been in touch with Pat for a month," the brother told the Canton officials. "He had been hiding in a Cleveland apartment until several days ago, when we spirited him away to his present hiding place."

McClintock has so far refused to reveal the conditions of the surrender, but it is understood here that McClintock repeated his earlier promise to McDermott's relatives that he would guarantee Pat a "square deal." It was believed that should McDermott be tried and convicted on the indictment charging him with first-degree murder, McClintock will not ask for the death penalty.

McClintock, Slater and Pat's brother arrived at the hunted man's hiding place this morning and surprised him. It was understood, however, that he offered no resistance, and, after his brother had talked with him and explained the conditions of the surrender, Pat consented to return to Canton without demanding extradition papers.

The State has gathered evidence, according to McClintock, to show that Rudner and McDermott became acquainted several years ago when they were fellow-prisoners at Atlanta Federal prison. Rudner, McClintock alleges, hired McDermott as one of the gunmen and Mazer as the other when Steve Kascholk, hired earlier "to beat up an editor," backed out when he learned that the plot involved murder.

MELLON DEFENDS OUR TARIFF POLICY; SAYS EUROPE COPIES

CONTINENTAL UNITY SOUGHT

TARIFF CUT HERE OPPOSED

He Argues Lowering Duties Would Reduce Our Buying and Harm Entire World.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Andrew W. Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, issued a statement tonight on the tariff, in which he pointed out that the plea of the international bankers and industrialists in their recent manifesto for removal of restrictions on trade in Europe was confined to the situation in Continental Europe and had no reference to the American protective tariff system.

The statement, which is understood to have been issued with the sanction of the President, takes a strong stand in support of the protective tariff policy, just as the President did in a conference with the press immediately after the bankers and industrialists issued their manifesto.

Because artificial barriers in Europe hinder readjustment there, Mr. Mellon contends there is no reason why the United States should change its tariff policy. He argues that the manifesto did not even seek that, despite the fact that part of the press so construed the plea of the bankers and industrialists.

What the manifesto seeks to accomplish, according to Mr. Mellon, is to bring about in Europe a condition similar to that in the United States. He points out that conditions in this country are far different from those in Europe—that we have one transportation system, one language and one kind of money among 120,000,000 people; and that there is a still greater distinction—that of the standard of living.

Declaring that the United States is today the largest customer in the world and that if we were not prosperous and able to buy, Europe would suffer, Mr. Mellon thinks it inconceivable "that American labor will ever consent to the abolition of protection, which would bring the American standard of living down to the level of that of Europe, or that the American farmer could survive if the enormous consuming power of the people of this country were curtailed and his market at home destroyed."

Effects of Break-Up of Europe.

Mr. Mellon's statement is as follows:

There has recently appeared in the press of the world a "plea for the removal of restrictions upon European trade," signed by many bankers of the European countries and some of the bankers of this country, stating that tariff barriers, special licenses and prohibitions imposed in Europe since the war interfere with international trade and prevent it flowing in natural channels and should be removed.

The fact which gave rise to this situation is the break-up of the old political units and the rearrangement of the Continent along ethical and not commercial lines. For example, the Austro-Hungarian Empire was a commercial, manufacturing and agricultural whole. Today Austria, with its plants, banking facilities and railroads, is cut off from both its markets and its sources of raw material. We have a brain without a body.

It is just as if we should make New York City with the southern portion of New York State and the States of Connecticut and Rhode Island a separate country. The city would be too large for the territory which it could reach and the rest of the United States would be deprived of that intensive manufacturing and financial centre.

The situation in Europe since the war is different from the situation in America. The two would only become comparable if we should consider each of the forty-eight States

Largest and Best Jail Is Proposed for Chicago

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Cook County plans to have one of the biggest and best jails in the United States in connection with a new Criminal Courts building and a structure for the housing of jurors, all at a cost of $7,500,000.

The voters have authorized a bond issue of $4,500,000 for the project. At the election on Nov. 2 an additional bond issue of $3,000,000 will be voted on. No organized opposition to this bond issue has appeared.

The site is in the grounds of the old House of Correction at Twenty-sixth Street and California Avenue. The Criminal Courts building will be in front—seven stories high, but, because of lofty ceilings, about as tall as a twelve-story office building. It will accommodate fourteen courts.

SIMPSON IS DEFIED BY HALL GRAND JURY

It Will Go Ahead With Its Own Inquiry Tomorrow Despite His Request for Delay.

HE REBUKES ITS FOREMAN

Says It Would Make a Spectacle of Itself by Acting Before Two Witnesses Are Ready.

The Somerset County Grand Jury served notice last night that, disregarding Assistant Attorney General Alexander Simpson's wishes, it would reconvene on Tuesday and go to the bottom of the State's allegations that Mrs. Minna Clark and Felix De Martini were accessories in the Hall-Mills case. W. Percival Snyder, foreman of the Grand Jury, made known the attitude of the jurors.

Senator Simpson introduced nine witnesses before the Grand Jurors last Thursday. He then suspended the session and announced that the jury would reassemble at Somerville, N. J., at 10 A. M. on Tuesday. On Friday, the Senator sent word to Somerset Prosecutor Francis L. Bergen to postpone the session. He said that witnesses needed by the State would not be available by Tuesday.

De Martini was a private detective for the defense in the months following the murder in September, 1922, of the Rev. Dr. Edward W. Hall and Mrs. Eleanor R. Mills. Four persons stand indicted for the crime. They are Mrs. Frances Stevens Hall, the widow; her brothers, Henry Stevens and Willie Stevens, and her cousin, Henry de la Bruyere Carpender, a member of the New York Stock Exchange.

De Martini Freed by Court.

The private detective refused to go to New Jersey to submit to questioning by Senator Simpson's investigators. The Senator obtained extradition papers from Governor A. Harry Moore, which were honored by Governor Smith. De Martini, through counsel, sued out a writ of habeas corpus. The Appellate Division dismissed the writ. On Friday, the Court of Appeals reversed this decision and directed that De Martini be released, saying that the basis for his arrest had been insufficient. De Martini, after two weeks in Raymond Street Jail, went home to his wife and three-months-old infant on Saturday. The defense said that he would appear as their witness at the trial on Nov. 3.

Mrs. Clark, a choir singer and active worker in the church of Dr. Hall, has persistently told the investigators that she could not give any information of value. In August, she was taken to Somerville and questioned for seven and a half hours. She did not waver in her story or in her details that she had ever spied on Dr. Hall or Mrs. Mills.

Last week she was arrested at her home, 134 Redmond Street, after a physician for the State had denied she was ill. She remained in the jail at Somerville until Friday night when she was released in $5,000 bail. Mrs. Clark's cousin, Mrs. Marie Demarest of Silver Lake Avenue, Piscataway town, N. J., testified to having seen Mrs. Clark and Ralph V. Gorsline, a vestryman of the church and a State's witness, twice "spying" on the murdered couple.

Witnesses Rigidly Questioned.

It was learned yesterday that the Grand Jury at its session last week considered indictments against only De Martini and Mrs. Clark. Reports after the sessions were that the Grand Jury subjected the witnesses called by Senator Simpson to severe questioning. One of the chief targets was Henry L. Dickman, former State Trooper, who has alleged that he got $2,500 to drop his lone investigation of the Hall-Mills case four years ago.

Mr. Snyder made his announcement at his home in Bound Brook, N. J. He is President of the Marine Equipment Corporation, 17 Battery Place, Manhattan. He is not an officeholder in Somerset County.

"When Senator Simpson," said Mr. Snyder, "rushed out of the Grand Jury room on Thursday saying that he was in a hurry to catch a train or something, he asked that the Grand Jury be reconvened next Tuesday.

"Two bills were being considered by the Grand Jury and neither he nor any one else has the power to halt the proceedings. The Grand Jury is an independent body and can undertake an investigation by itself, if necessary. I have heard nothing officially to the effect that anybody has requested the Grand Jury not to meet. When it adjourned, it adjourned until Tuesday and that arrangement still stands.

"No member of the Grand Jury has received notice not to appear and if

COOLIDGE IN LETTER ASKS RE-ELECTION OF SENATOR BUTLER

Makes First Direct Appeal for Any of Candidates in Coming Election.

CALLS HIM 'GREAT SENATOR

'Presence in Senate of Great Importance to Me,' Writes the President.

IS GOING HOME TO VOTE

Massachusetts Republican State Committee Makes the Missive Public.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Oct. 24.—President Coolidge, in his first direct appeal on behalf of any candidate in the forthcoming election, asks the voters of Massachusetts to re-elect Senator Butler in a letter made public today by the Massachusetts Republican State Committee.

The letter was addressed to Francis Prescott, Chairman of the committee and son-in-law of the President's friend, F. W. Stearns. It was written Thursday in reply to a message asking him if he intended to vote in person at his home town of Northampton.

Mr. Coolidge not only replied in the affirmative but took occasion to praise the services of both Senator Butler and Governor Fuller, who is a candidate for re-election.

Saying that Senator Butler was "rapidly taking rank as a great Senator," the President added:

"He stands on the Senate floor, independent, beholden to no one, a Senator of Massachusetts, serving the people in the public interest. His presence there is of great importance to me in my efforts to discharge the duties of my office."

Text of President's Letter.

The White House.
Oct. 21, 1926.

Francis Prescott, Chairman, Massachusetts Republican State Committee, Boston, Mass.:

My dear Mr. Prescott: It is very gratifying to receive your telegram stating that the prospect of electing the ticket headed by Governor Fuller and Senator Butler is most encouraging. In reply to your inquiry whether I can come to Massachusetts to vote, I have taken the precaution to get ballots to vote by mail if necessary, but it is the intention of Mrs. Coolidge and myself to go to Northampton to vote. A radio talk made it impossible two years ago.

I want the satisfaction of casting a vote at the ballot box for the State ticket headed by Governor Fuller and the national ticket headed by Senator Butler.

Quite naturally, I want to vote for Governor of Massachusetts. I know something of the difficulties of that office. Governor Fuller was in public life with me at the State House. He has served the people well. He is a man of sympathy and understanding who has given a fair and honorable Administration in harmony with the policy of constructive economy. His ability and experience will be of increasing value to the Commonwealth in a second term.

Of course I want to vote for Senator Butler. He is my friend. I know how faithful he is. It was to him that I turned to intrust the great and delicate task of conducting my Presidential campaign. His management of the campaign will long stand as a model of wisdom, efficiency and honest effort.

It left him the natural choice for Senator. He represents Massachusetts ideals. He has come from the ranks and knows the trials that all people have to meet. By his own efforts he has risen to a position where his counsel was sought in important affairs as a lawyer and as a manufacturer. By his courage and ability he has come to hold an important place in the industry of our State, furnishing employment to large numbers of wage earners.

In the Senate he holds a place which no one else could command for Massachusetts, admired for his wisdom, respected for his integrity. He has been a benefactor to his State and nation. I know how able and conscientious he is. In his rapidly taking rank as a great Senator, I have an increasing pride in knowing that he is from my State. He stands on the Senate floor, independent, beholden to no one, a Senator of Mass-

SMITH PREDICTS A SWEEPING VICTORY; SAYS MILLS HAS LOST FIGHT UP-STATE; MILLS DEMANDS REPLY ON MILK INQUIRY

WANTS 'YES OR NO' ANSWER

ASKS SPECIAL PROSECUTOR

SEES CRISIS IN SITUATION

Asserts Statement That Only a State Inquiry Can Get Data Has Never Been Disputed.

Representative Ogden L. Mills, Republican nominee for Governor, made formal demand yesterday on Governor Alfred E. Smith to say whether or not he would call special Grand Juries in the separate counties within New York City to investigate the milk situation.

The demand was in the form of a letter to Governor Smith, addressed to the Hotel Biltmore, which was made public by Mr. Mills. In it the latter reiterated the milk charges which he has made on the stump, and asserted that the Governor's failure to initiate an investigation under a Special Attorney General would mean that the "milk grafters" and the "men higher up" will escape and that steps to insure six million persons a pure milk supply will not be taken.

Governor Smith said at Albany last night that he had not received Mr. Mills's letter and therefore could not reply.

Mr. Mills's Letter.

Mr. Mills's letter to the Governor follows:

New York, Oct. 24, 1926.

Hon. Alfred E. Smith, Hotel Biltmore, New York, N. Y.

Dear Governor Smith: I am writing you this letter, because of your failure in the face of the crisis which exists to, state whether or not you will call special grand juries in the counties within the City of New York and request the Attorney General to appoint a Special Attorney General to conduct a complete, fearless and impartial investigation of the milk scandal, a procedure which was suggested to you last Summer by the Citizens Union, and one which you followed last year when there was a milk scandal in the Republican county of Cortland.

Surely it should be possible for you to say whether or not you will initiate such an investigation, and if not, why not?

Let me remind you:

1. That Dr. Harris states that the graft amounts to $34,000,000 a year.

2. That the Citizens Union charged that the men higher up are being protected.

3. That the Citizens Union states, "No thorough investigation of the corruption in the Health Department can be made, and no successful prosecution of the guilty parties conducted, except through the exercise of the powers of the State, unrestricted as they are by county lines."

4. That Dr. Harris says that 55 per cent. of the milk sold in New York City is loose milk and that from 70 per cent. to 85 per cent. of the loose milk has been adulterated for the last two years.

Cites Tests Made for Him.

5. That samples purchased by the Pease Laboratory between Sept. 23 and Oct. 3, 1926, show that of 288 samples purchased all over the City of New York, all but thirty-five failed to come up to the requirements of the Sanitary Code.

6. That The Evening World, which is supporting you, said, "Even the milk given to invalids in the hospitals appears to have been adulterated."

7. That the Democratic District Attorney of Queens County said, "How much corruption there is God only knows. * * * The situation in

Harvey Says Republicans Are 'Due for a Licking'

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 24 (AP).—The Republican Party "is due for a licking a week from next Tuesday," Colonel George Harvey of New York said here yesterday in discussing the November elections.

"There is always a reaction against a party which has been a long time in power," he said. "That is only normal, but this is going to be an abnormal reaction and will extend from Massachusetts to Oregon."

The former Ambassador to Great Britain, here on business, also said he believed that Representative William S. Vare, Republican nominee for United States Senator from Pennsylvania, would be seated if elected, but that he would be "forced out later by public opinion" as a result of the Senate campaign fund inquiry findings.

RIVALS CONFIDENT AS LAST WEEK OPENS

MILLS IS ENCOURAGED

With the rival candidates beginning final week driven in New York City and with the result of the State and Senatorial elections largely dependent upon the size of the Democratic plurality in the city, Democratic leaders expressed the belief yesterday that the indications were for the re-election of Governor Alfred E. Smith.

Encouraged by the vigorous up-State campaign of Representative Ogden L. Mills, Republican nominee for Governor, the Republican campaign managers expressed hope for and confidence in his election. Other Republican leaders, slightly less optimistic, declared they believed Mr. Mills had much better than a fighting chance.

The contest between Senator James W. Wadsworth Jr., candidate for re-election on the Republican ticket and Judge Robert F. Wagner, his Democratic opponent, seemed so doubtful that anything except general predictions of success was unobtainable from their campaign managers. Senator Wadsworth is certain to lose many thousand dry Republican votes to Franklin W. Cristman, independent dry candidate for Senator, even the organization Republicans admit. He is equally certain to get the votes of a large number of wet Democrats, with very little guide as to even approximate numbers in either case. As in the race for the Governorship, the result is likely to be decided in New York City. If Judge Wagner runs well up with Governor Smith in the New York City vote, he is considered almost certain to win.

Smith Election Believed Sure.

Although Governor Smith's election is expected by most unbiased political observers, they say it is less certain than it seemed two weeks ago, when Mr. Mills began to hit his stride in the campaign. Mr. Mills, according to reports that have been received here, made progress in his campaign up-State, just closed.

It is pointed out that the progress consisted more in the vigor he put into the various Republican county organizations than in any votes he won from the Democrats. It is also said that the milk issue, which he injected into the campaign, served more as a vehicle to "put over" his vigorous personality rather than as a convincing argument to attract thinking voters. But according to information from up-State localities which he visited, he created an impression among the up-State Republicans that he had a chance to win and changed an apathetic organization to one ready to make a fight in the campaign.

Mr. Mills has received encouraging reports from the New York City leaders, whose estimates of the expected adverse plurality in New York City have ranged from 250,000 to 350,000. According to Mr. Mills's viewpoint even the larger figure will return him a winner on election night, for the Republican leaders up-State expect to give Mr. Mills 370,000 plurality as a minimum. Of course, both estimates are disputed by Tammany leaders here and up-State supporters of Governor Smith.

Although the Tammany canvass, the only real one made in the city, has not been completed, its leaders expect to give Governor Smith from 400,000 to 450,000 plurality in New York City. According to reports received at Democratic headquarters from up-State Mr. Mills's plurality there is not expected to be more than 250,000 and may fall below that figure.

Mills Is Confident.

Mr. Mills, at his home, 4 East Sixty-ninth Street, expressed yesterday complete confidence in his election. He had received word from the Republi-

OUTLOOK SATISFIES SMITH

SAYS FARMERS ARE HURT

MILLS'S STAND RIDICULED

Special to The New York Times.

ALBANY, Oct. 24.—On the eve of his departure for the metropolitan area, where he will open his campaign with an address in Yonkers tomorrow night, Governor Smith predicted a sweeping Democratic victory, and declared the campaign was already over.

"The poll in up-State cities," said the Governor, "is indicative of the feeling throughout the State. The people up-State have been cruelly disappointed in the type of campaign which Congressman Mills has waged. Serious damage has been done to the dairying sections by his false statements and false issues.

"These rumors have sealed his doom without New York City's vote. And the crowning climax to the whole situation is the undisputed fact that William Randolph Hearst gave him the kiss of death."

When his attention was called to a story in a New York morning paper in which Representative Mills was quoted as saying that he would win by at least 50,000 votes, the Governor remarked:

"The Congressman needs a new bunch of advisers."

Smith's Speaking Program.

Governor Smith plans to leave Albany late tomorrow afternoon, arriving in Yonkers just in time to make his address. When he has finished speaking he will go to his headquarters in the Hotel Biltmore, where he plans to remain until election day.

On Tuesday the Governor will speak in the Bronx; Wednesday in Richmond; Thursday in Queens; Friday in the Academy of Music in Brooklyn, and Saturday in the Metropolitan Opera House in Manhattan.

Former Justice Wagner, Democratic candidate for Senator, who accompanied the Governor on his up-State campaign tour, returned to New York today. He plans to speak at the same meeting as the Governor in Yonkers tomorrow, and will make a second speech later, in the evening at New Rochelle.

The Governor appears in excellent health despite the heavy strain of campaigning. From all sections of the State he has been receiving assurances of support, and Democratic leaders declare he will poll an even larger up-State vote this year than he did against Governor Miller in 1922.

Say Farmers Resent Milk Charges.

These leaders assert that the milk question is not being taken seriously in up-State cities and will have little bearing on the campaign. If anything, they declare, it will cost Mr. Mills votes in the rural sections, where the farmers regard the charges of adulteration as reflecting on their honesty.

The farmers also fear, Democratic leaders say, that behind Mr. Mills's charges lurks a threat to renew the wholesale destruction of tubercular cattle carried on during the Miller Administration, and for which the farmers say they failed to receive adequate remuneration.

Persons close to the Governor declare the campaign tour up-State which he has just completed was the most successful he has ever staged. They point out that in every city hundreds, and even thousands, of persons were turned away without being able to hear him for want of adequate accommodations, while all of the meetings were characterized by an enthusiasm which, politicians say, means votes.

Governor Smith received newspaper men this afternoon in the Executive Mansion and discussed with them Representative Mills's speech of last night. His attention was directed to Mr. Mills's charge that he was following a different course today from that of six years ago, when he advocated State regulation of the production and distribution of milk.

Calls Mills "Stupid."

"Mr. Mills is stupid to make such a statement," said the Governor. "He knows very well that there never has been any question of a change of attitude on my part, but I might as well talk to the walls as talk to the present Republican Legislature about any change in the Council of Farms and Markets.

"Why doesn't the Congressman go a step further and talk about the Battle report? Why doesn't he tell how I appointed George Gordon Battle to make a study of that situation, and how his report showed the rottenness and corruption prevailing in the Republican Legislature?"

The Governor was shown Mr. Mills's challenge to "tell the people of the State how he voted on the Widows'

Shotgun Fire Foils Missouri Prison Break; Seven Convicts Wounded in Rush With Knives

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 24 (AP).—Buckshot from the shotguns of guards in the Missouri State Penitentiary today stopped the rush for liberty of seven convicts, who tonight lie wounded in the prison hospital. Two of the convicts are believed to be dying.

Armed with knives, the prisoners battled their keepers in a cell house, the prison yard and in a shirt factory to which five of them had fled and were routed after a siege of nearly two hours.

One guard, J. L. Fleeman, was stabbed in the melée, and one prisoner, Ollie Cooper, a negro, who came to the defense of Fleeman, also was stabbed.

The revolt started in the cellhouse just after the luncheon dishes had been cleared away. At a signal the seven prisoners rushed upon W. R. Burks, a guard, brandishing knives. The guard was knocked down as the convicts burst through the door, after overpowering two other guards.

They rushed to the tuberculosis hospital, a small building isolated in the centre of the compound. Here they overpowered Fleeman, stabbing him and taking his pistol away from him.

"Let's kill this nigger," a convict yelled, according to Cooper, a 47-year-old negro trusty. The negro picked up a chair and brought it down on Henry Mitchell, a two-termer, who crashed through a window unconscious.

Cooper then went out of action with stab wounds and six convicts leaped ten feet through an unbarred window to the ground and made a dash of several hundred feet, under fire of guards, for the shirt factory. One convict was down when they arrived at the factory and all had been sprinkled with buckshot.

In this building, the convicts stood at bay while prison officials sought means of evicting them. R. E. Warwick, a prison officer, and Clyde Lane, a guard, then entered the factory.

The convicts emerged with hands up from under a pile of overalls after a few rounds of buckshot had been discharged into it.

Dr. Cortes Enloe, Chairman of the Prison Board, said charges would be filed against the men in Circuit Court here, and additional time added to the terms of the participants in the attempted delivery.

Ex-Kaiser Plans Hunt in Germany Next Month; Bestows Title of 'Princely Court Counselor'

By Wireless to The New York Times.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—Evidently emboldened by the hospitable attitude which the Prussian Government has assumed toward him, the former Kaiser is beginning to exercise his imperial prerogatives even while the question of his ultimate return to Germany is agitating the chancelleries of Europe.

According to the Montagmorgen, the exiled monarch has issued a "command" bidding fifty of his old-time friends to a "royal court hunt" at Rominten Castle, one of the last estates restored to him by the recent action of the Prussian Diet.

The Welt am Montag, another Republican paper, recounts his bestowal of the title "Princely Court Counselor" on one Herr Aderman for unspecified services to the former Crown Prince.

The National Executive Committee of the Reichsbanner, the black, red and gold powerful league for Republican defense, takes William's intention of returning to the Fatherland so seriously that it has formally demanded action by the German Government to prevent such a contingency.

The invitation to hunt on the Rominten preserves, beginning next month, fail to indicate whether the ex-Kaiser expects to be present himself or will be represented by a deputy host. Among the guests will be Prince Henry of the Netherlands, who is also the Duke of Mecklenburg, and many former imperial generals, courtiers and diplomats.

It will be the first occasion since the downfall of the empire on which the ex-Ruler will entertain his friends on German soil. At Rominten before the war William was wont to slaughter a hundred head of game at a time driven before his rifle by an army of beaters.

Pension bill when he was an Assemblyman in 1914.

"Well," said Governor Smith, "I made all the speeches that were made for it in the Assembly. I appointed an investigating committee when I was Speaker. Who was it appointed Sophie Irene Loeb and Aaron J. Levy? Why, the Congressman hasn't even memory enough to know what happened in the Legislature when he was a member of it.

"He introduced a Widows' Pension bill in 1915. So did Billy Hill of Binghamton. When he found that Hill's bill was going to go through he sot up and talked against it. The Judiciary Committee recommended Hill's bill, and Mills was so mad when he found out about it that he not only talked against the bill but voted against it.

Tells of Work for Widows.

"I appointed a committee in 1913 to collect data about the cost of maintaining children of widows in their own homes as against the cost of maintaining them in institutions.

"Senator Hill's bill was defeated in the Senate in 1914, after I had worked for and voted for it in the House. And I did the same thing in 1915.

"Mills knows all about that, but down in Oliver Street last night he tried to make a Hearst appeal. Let him look at the returns on election night, and Oliver Street will answer him. He won't know he was running down there."

Mr. Mills's explanation of his attitude on the executive budget was ridiculed by the Governor.

"He doesn't understand what it's all about," Mr. Smith declared. "If he had been half as busy in 1915 in the interest of the executive budget as he was in helping defraud innocent men and women out of just compensation it might have gotten somewhere."

The Republican candidate's declaration that he would not make any commitments as to his stand on amendments to labor laws, pending the report of the commission which is now making an investigation of the whole subject, made in response to the Governor's demand that he make known his stand on the labor question, was accepted by Mr. Smith as "an honest answer."

"He won't do anything," said the Governor, "until the commission, which is out to find out that nothing must be done, reports. Then he'll undoubtedly be in line with them. Mr. Cornier of Watertown is Chairman of that commission, and his performance has been so magnificent that he was retired to private life by a majority of the voters of his own party."

Discusses Mills's Educational Stand.

Replying to Mr. Mills's statement that he stands for everything that will make for better schools and better educational methods, Governor Smith declared that a man could not stand for those things and advocate the reduction of the appropriation bill.

"He knows he can't do these things," the Governor said, "but such statements are part of his bunk campaign."

Mr. Mills's declaration that "the man who vetoed the bill for the installation of voting machines in New York City, intended to curb the ballot-stuffing proclivities of the organization of which he claims to be the leader, is hardly the man to talk about the purity of elections," was characterized by the Governor as "a cold-blooded, wicked and deliberate misstatement of the whole thing."

"That bill," Governor Smith said, "was signed by Governor Miller and not vetoed by Governor Smith. Such a statement is entirely unworthy of a blue-blooded aristocrat with a Harvard education."

Representative Mills's statement that he favored the publication of campaign contributions, and his question as to whether the Governor favored "a corrupt practice act broad enough to compel a private society, such as Tammany Hall, to publish not only its campaign contributions, but also the amount it levies throughout the year," was declared by the Governor to be "Mills-Hearst bunk."

"There is no private society known as Tammany Hall," he said. "There is a patriotic society known as the Society of St. Tammany or the Columbian Order, which is non-political. Many Republicans belong to this society. And it has no levies."

Says Mills "Needs Brains."

Mr. Mills's suggestion "to my friends, Joe Proskauer and Mrs. Moskowitz, that before they think up any more questions for the Governor to ask me it would be well to check up the Governor's record with regard to these questions," also was shown to the Governor.

"My advisers, and they include more than the two mentioned, have brains," Mr. Smith replied. "He needs some of the same kind of advisers. In fact, I might go farther and say he needs some of the brains."

When asked what he would speak on in Yonkers tomorrow, the Governor replied that he probably would continue to take his text from one of Mr. Mills's speeches.

"He says so many senseless things," the Governor added, "that it is easy to turn them against him."

The Governor's attention was called also to an editorial from The Gaelic-American, reprinted in The New York American, which declared that his father was named "Schmidt," not "Smith," and that he was of German, not Irish, ancestry.

"The man who wrote that," said the Governor, "deserves a share of the $20,000,000 which the State has appropriated for the care of its insane. Any paper that would print such a statement without attempting to verify it isn't fit to be printed."

STRAW VOTE FAVORS SMITH.

Rochester Ballot Indicates He Will Win Republican Stronghold.

Special to The New York Times.

ROCHESTER, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Governor Smith will carry Rochester, a normal Republican stronghold, by a fair margin, if a straw vote, as conducted by a local newspaper, may be taken as an omen.

The straw vote gives Governor Smith 1,517 votes to 1,122 for Representative Mills, his Republican opponent. Senator Wadsworth, however, by the same token, will have votes to spare despite the determined battle being waged in behalf of Franklin Cristman, Independent dry. In the straw vote Wadsworth has 1,421, Justice Wagner, Democrat, 824, and Cristman 338.

Representative Meyer Jacobstein, Democrat, looms a winner by a vote of nearly 2 to 1 in his campaign for reelection over James E. Cuff, Republican. The figures are Jacobstein 1,607, Cuff 816.

WARD ORGANIZATION ACTIVE

Special Drive Is On for Republican Ticket in Westchester.

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 24.—More than 50,000 Ogden L. Mills and Senator Wadsworth buttons have been distributed throughout Westchester County and a special drive is now being made by the Republican organization under the direction of the veteran leader, William L. Ward, to give the Republican nominee the greatest majority in the history of the county outside of a Presidential year.

Members of Republican women's clubs are especially active this year, as shown by the increased registration of women. When Calvin Coolidge was elected President he received a majority of 52,000 votes in Westchester which is looked upon as the banner Republican county in the State.

WELFARE WORKERS APPEAL FOR SMITH

REVIEW HIS ACHIEVEMENTS

Governor and Wagner Endorsed by the Life Conservation League.

An appeal for the re-election of Governor Alfred E. Smith because of his far-sightedness and courage in advocating and obtaining welfare legislation was issued yesterday by a group of community workers, which included leaders in that line throughout the city. The signers of the appeal, forty-three in number, stated that their vocation gave them opportunity to see at close range the condition of the working people in congested neighborhoods and appreciate the value of a progressive government.

"We believe that government exists as an instrumentality for the welfare and happiness of its citizens," their statement read. "We have observed Governor Smith throughout his administration and we have found him an ardent advocate of this theory of government. We have admired his courage in providing facilities for the afflicted wards of the State, irrespective of political pressure to reduce appropriations under the misguided policy of false economy which in the past has too often blocked essential measures for the welfare of those persons who because of their poverty and incapacity should receive the protection from the State which they as individuals are unable to provide for themselves."

Praise Smith's Record.

The statement expressed approval of the Governor's success in obtaining a $50,000,000 bond issue for institutions for the insane and a bond issue for other public buildings, his advocacy of child welfare laws, his establishment of a State park system, his advocacy of adequate appropriations for public health work and his approval of the new Medical Practice act, to protect the people of the State from quackery; his part in the emergency rent laws and his success in enacting the law for a State Housing Board.

"Governor Smith's public career has been full of achievement for the people of the State," the statement continued. "In his twelve years as an Assemblyman he furthered and caused to be passed labor legislation which is recognized as the most enlightened in the country. Governor Smith as an Assemblyman led the fight for workmen's compensation laws. As Governor he continuously urged measures to liberalize these laws in the interest of the injured workers and their families.

"In the light of this record we maintain that the Governor should be reelected and should have the support of every socially minded citizen in the City and State of New York."

The statement was signed by the following:

MARY K. SIMKHOVITCH, Headworker Greenwich House.
PORTER LEE, New York School of Social Work.

Governor and Wagner Endorsed.

The endorsement of both Governor Smith and Judge Robert F. Wagner, Democratic nominee for United States Senator, by the Legislation League for the Conservation of Human Life was made public by George P. LeBrun, its secretary. A statement issued by Mr. LeBrun on behalf of the league credited Governor Smith and Judge Wagner with having inspired much legislation to protect the lives and health of workers.

"Governor Smith and Judge Wagner are the type of men we need in public office," the statement read. "Governor Smith's record in the Legislature and as Governor stamps him as the great humanitarian, a man whose every thought and action has been to do things that are beneficial to the people."

The Bronx Medical Society also has endorsed Governor Smith as one who had always given serious thought and consideration to the health and welfare of the people of the city and State and advocated the enactment of laws which are in the best interests of the medical profession. The Governor was notified of this action yesterday by Dr. I. J. Landsman of 391 East 149th Street, Secretary of the Society.

LABOR CHIEF BACKS POMERENE IN OHIO

President Green Declares Willis Unfair to Workers as Senator and Governor.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Oct. 24.—Following endorsements given by labor organizations in Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus, Toledo and other principal cities in Ohio for former Senator Atlee Pomerene for United States Senator, William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, today issued a statement asking the election of Mr. Pomerene, the Democratic candidate, and the defeat of Senator Frank B. Willis, Republican incumbent.

Declaring that Senator Willis was unfair to labor, President Green said:

"Upon the record which Senator Willis made while in Congress, and particularly upon his record as Governor of Ohio he cannot expect to receive the support of the working people and their friends in Ohio."

Wadsworth Jr. and Controller Vincent B. Murphy, both former service men, also will be guests of the post at the ball.

HEARST'S SUPPORT OF MILLS ATTACKED

QUESTIONS HYLAN'S STAND

Lehman Asks Whether Republican Would Name Ex-Mayor to Some High Office.

"A vote for Mills is a vote for Hearst," Colonel Herbert H. Lehman, Chairman of the Citizens' Committee for the Re-election of Governor Smith, said yesterday at his headquarters in the Biltmore. "Those who want to restore Hearst to power, who want a boasting, blundering, blustering and haphazard form of government, should vote for Mills.

"Governor Smith destroyed Hearst politically, put him completely out of power, sent his 'window dressers' and officeholders back to work, and did away forever with any influence the editor-politician might have had in politics or in influencing the acts of politicians or public officials. That was a good job, one which the right-thinking people of the city, State and nation appreciated, and never was a man more highly commended for driving such an evil political force out of political life.

"Having lost every bit of power he held over the defunct Independent League and men who had been elected to office on other tickets, Hearst is now trying to curry favor with the Republicans, and the worst of it is that Mills, who has always claimed to be a clean public official, has accepted this sinister support. Anything to help his election, and he now stands before the country as a Hearst candidate.

"Today, repudiated by his own organization, after his overwhelming defeat, Hylan is said to have attended a Republican rally recently and declared he was in favor of the election of Mills.

"Who told Hylan to support Mills? What would Mills's election mean? Would he appoint Hylan to some high office at Hearst's dictation. Would Hearst have the same power at Albany that he had at City Hall for eight years? Would Hearst tactics again prevail in public life?"

MILLER BACKS WALTER LAW.

Ex-Governor Says He Did Not Consider Tax Commissioner Incompetent.

The controversy between Governor Smith and Walter W. Law, former Chairman of the State Tax Commission, was continued yesterday when Mr. Law through the Republican State Committee made public a letter written to him by former Governor Nathan L. Miller to refute Governor Smith's assertion that Governor Miller had considered him incompetent. "Governor Miller authorized me to publish this letter and to say that he reiterates it," Mr. Law said.

The letter, which was dated Feb. 2, 1923, soon after Mr. Law's removal, follows:

"I have read the Governor's letter, a copy of which you enclosed. I did not think he would go to such lengths. I am sure that the proceeding has not hurt you, but it has revealed the Governor in a very different aspect than many of our good people have considered him, though I see that some of our Republican papers still treat it as purely an incident of the change in the politics of the Government. I shall hope to see you often when you get to New York and I assure you that you have my very best wishes and my deep appreciation of the earnest work you did which in my mind completely justified your appointment."

Mahoney on Cohen's Committee.

Supreme Court Justice Jeremiah T. Mahoney was elected Honorary Chairman of William W. Cohen's Athletic Committee yesterday. Judge Mahoney and Mr. Cohen, who is the Democratic Congressional candidate of the Seventeenth District, were rivals in many athletic events years ago, the Justice carrying the N. Y. A. C. colors, while Mr. Cohen wore the Cherry Diamond emblem. Both were track stars and prominent quarter-milers.

BACKS THREE FOR SENATE.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—"Three election opportunities" for voters who want to strike a blow at the forces opposed to prohibition are presented in New York, California and Pennsylvania, according to the Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals of the Methodist Episcopal Church, which in its "clipsheet" this week discussed the current campaign. In part the board says:

"In New York Senator Wadsworth and Mr. Wagner, the Democratic candidate for the Senate, mutually excel each other in undestrability. Every man who is loyal to the Constitution of his country should vote for Cristman.

"In California the Republican candidate, Senator Shortridge, richly deserves defeat. Republicans who put the interest of the country ahead of the party should vote for Judge John B. Elliott, Democratic candidate for the Senate.

"In Pennsylvania, where Vare's candidacy is a national scandal, the voters will have the opportunity of electing Wilson, the Democratic candidate and a man who measures up in character and ability to the high office for which he is running."

LONGWORTH PRAISES CONGRESS STANDARD

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Speaker Longworth has written for the current issue of the Nation's Business an article on the business of running the House, in which he contends that the quality of the membership of the House of Representatives averages as high as that of any legislative body at any time in any country of the world. He also asserts that the House is absolutely free and independent.

He argues that both the quality of the citizenship and of Congress is high.

MILK SALES CUT 12%; MILLS GETS BLAME

A 12.6 per cent. drop in the volume of milk sales from Oct. 1 to Oct. 22, as compared with the corresponding period last year, was announced yesterday by Health Commissioner Harris. The figures were made public by the Commissioner in support of his charges that the campaign attacks on New York City's milk supply by Representative Ogden L. Mills, Republican candidate for Governor, had "scared" consumers.

The Commissioner pointed out that while this was a season when there was a natural shrinkage in the milk supply due to the end of the grazing season, extra producing schedules had been arranged by dealers to counteract such factors.

He said that his investigation had disclosed that dealers whose daily sales had totaled 161,120 quarts from Oct. 1 to 22 last year had distributed an average of 140,840 quarts daily in the corresponding period last year. He also said that 35,000 farmers using the Dairymen's League as an outlet for their products had reported that their sales had slumped 5 per cent. "as a result of this unfortunate condemnation of the New York City milk supply."

"It is as important now as ever," Dr. Harris said, "that the army of undernourished children, estimated at 200,000, should not be deprived of its milk supply. Anything which undermines the confidence of parents in the milk supply will cause them to withhold a most valuable thing used to overcome undernourishment. This becomes an important medical problem. This is in spite of the fact that the alleged bacterial pollution of milk is the result of a faulty and wrong method of investigation. The effect is demoralizing."

Dr. Harris said he was advised that the milk charges by Mr. Mills had spread alarm among many hospital patients who were refusing to drink milk.

P. S. STRAUS OUT FOR SMITH.

Says Mills Only Inspires a Pious Hope of Doing as Well as Governor.

Declaring that Representative Ogden L. Mills, Republican nominee for Governor, can only inspire a "pious hope" that he might do as well as Governor Smith and asserting that as a business man he did not care to "take a chance" by voting for Mills, Percy S. Straus, brother of Herbert N. Straus, head of the Republican Business Men, Inc., announced yesterday his support of Governor Smith in a letter to Mrs. John Blair of the Governor's Citizens Committee.

"The Governorship naturally calls for the type of mentality known in business as the executive type," Mr. Straus wrote. "It instinctively seizes those problems that are fundamental. It can with equal ease master details or confine itself to broad principles. It is analytical and constructive. Governor Smith has that type of mind.

"Congressman Mills, falls far short of it. Instead of being constructive, he is merely anti-Smith. Instead of finding a fundamental issue, he discovers milk. And in discussing this unquestioned scandal that is related to the Governor only because it took place in the State, he finds himself lost in a mingled mass of details and principles. He indicates by his method how unfit he would be to handle a similar situation were it presented to him as the State's chief Executive."

Mr. Straus then goes on to compare the two candidates, both of whom he says, are of high character and ability. In closing the recital of Governor Smith's record, the letter says:

"To compete with this record of actual achievement, Mills can only inspire a pious hope that he may do as well. Would he? How can we tell? As a business man interested in the welfare of the State, I do not want to take the chance. Do you?"

Cyrus L. Sulzberger of 825 West End Avenue, declared for Governor Smith in a letter to Colonel Herbert H. Lehman, Chairman of the Smith Committee, saying that there were so many reasons for the Governor's re-election that it was impossible to compress them within the limits of a short letter. "His administration of the duties of his office," Mr. Surberger wrote, "have been so wise, so capable, so beneficial to the State and its citizens that I feel it a privilege to have the opportunity of voting for him and to urge others to do likewise."

Daily Style Hint For Well-Dressed New Yorkers

NEW YORK, October 25—For years, stylists the world wide have been in quest of the ideal top coat for evening wear. It must couple lightness, so as not to crush or muss the clothes underneath, with warmth and comfort.

That ideal top coat has been discovered in pure camel hair. Warm as toast yet you hardly feel you have it on. Does not retain wrinkles under the theatre seat or in the check room. The distingué evening colors are dark Oxford gray and midnight blue. Exclusive, but not expensive.

RIVALS CONFIDENT AS LAST WEEK OPENS

can leaders in the five counties in New York City and expressed satisfaction with the local outlook.

"The reports I get from the local leaders are so good that they are hard to believe," he said. "I have been an active member of the New York County Republican organization for sixteen years. I have never seen its morale so good and I have never seen the leaders and captains so confident of victory."

Most of the confidence of local Republican leaders in their ability to hold Governor Smith to a low figure for him in New York City is based upon the reports of Tammany disaffection. It is unquestionably true that there is a feeling of resentment in Tammany against the Governor. There has been talk in some of the Tammany clubhouses during the last few weeks that friends, that his advisers are "high-hat," that he has forgotten his old friends, that his advisers are "high-brow" and that he has no further use for the organization except to advance his own political fortunes. There has been keen resentment in some of the Tammany clubs over gambling raids by the police and against Police Commissioner McLaughlin, for whose appointment the Governor is held responsible.

This talk, which no political reporter has had any difficulty in verifying, has been repeated to the local Republican leaders and has undoubtedly been conveyed by them to Mr. Mills.

Tammany Talk Subsides.

There has been a change in this, however, during the last few days. Apparently as a result of "orders," there is little or no talk against the Governor now in Tammany clubhouses. Even in private conversation, Tammany men, who recently criticized the Governor, now declare that they will vote for him. The leaders in Tammany assert that this difficulty has been smoothed over and that the Tammany vote, as always, will be for the straight Democratic ticket. The chief advantage to Mr. Mills is that, because of the fact that the election district workers have been those most disaffected, Tammany seems to have done less preliminary election work than usual.

The effect of the Tammany resentment against Governor Smith undoubtedly has worked to the advantage of Judge Wagner. It has turned, apparently almost over night, into a movement to get votes for Judge Wagner to keep the Governor from running too much ahead of his ticket. There are many in Tammany who would like to see Judge Wagner lead the Governor in the vote, although they admit that this seems impossible. There are others who would like to see the Governor re-elected, but by a reduced majority. It is this feeling that constitutes the Governor's principal danger in the election.

The group in Tammany that is resentful toward the Governor contains many who would like to vote for Senator Wadsworth, but the indications are that only a minority will do so. They are "wets" and sympathizers with the Senator in the fight being made against him by the Anti-Saloon League. Probably many of them voted for Senator Wadsworth in 1920 and would like to again. Three things, according to those with an intimate knowledge of Tammany, will prevent them—loyalty to the Tammany organization, personal liking for Judge Wagner and the desire to see Judge Wagner do as well as or better than Governor Smith.

Dry Strength Unknown Element.

The dry movement, crystallized in the nomination of Franklin W. Cristman as an independent Republican candidate for Senator, has introduced an element of unknown strength into the campaign. The dry leaders undoubtedly are trying to deliver as many of the Cristman supporters as possible to Mr. Mills. No traces of a "deal" have been detected, although one has been rumored, and it is said that this particular effort has resulted from the desire of the drys to concentrate their attack on Senator Wadsworth and to counteract what has become known as the "Al and Jim" movement, of which the dry leaders declare they have evidence in several counties.

The charge that there is such a movement on the part of the wets to elect Governor Smith and Senator Wadsworth was made yesterday by Dr. S. E. Nicholson, Chairman of the Independent Republican Committee, supporting Mr. Cristman, and the effect of Dr. Nicholson's charge was apparently designed for the benefit of Mr. Mills and Judge Wagner.

Dr. Nicholson's Statement.

"At the beginning of the closing week of the campaign there are two significant facts which the voters will not ignore," Dr. Nicholson said. "First, it is so plain now that he who runs may read that there is a determined bipartisan effort to elect Smith and Wadsworth. The fact that a considerable Smith Democratic vote declares for Wadsworth and that a considerable Wadsworth Republican vote declares for Smith is plain evidence of collusion.

"Whether or not there is a Smith-Wadsworth agreement in black and white matters little. Neither candidate has shown any disposition to dissipate a common belief that there is such an understanding. At least this collusion has a common origin in the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment and its allied organizations. It is liquor support and liquor money that is making the collusion operative. The whole liquor fraternity from the manufacturers to the bootleggers are for the combination.

"Yet Wadsworth has the effrontery to ask for and expect dry Republican support through his 'temperance' talks and his appeal for party regularity. How could a man be expected to be a loyal supporter of the Republican Administration at Washington when he owed his plurality—if such a calamity should happen—to a combination of bootleggers and wet Democrats? Wadsworth has forfeited every right to expect the support of any dry Republican, whether it be on the ground of party regularity or support of the President. There is strong indication now that Democratic support is being thrown to Wadsworth for the avowed purpose of further wrecking the Republican Party. The Republican voters should take warning before it is too late and refuse to be a party to any such plot.

"Second, both Wadsworth and Wagner have proved their insincerity by utterly ignoring the questions propounded to them in a letter under date of Oct. 16, and published widely in the State a week ago. They continue to toy with the fringes of the prohibition issue by prating about 'temperance' and personal liberty."

Diverts Dry Vote to Mills.

Dr. Nicholson represents the Anti-Saloon League wing of the Cristman movement, which is seemingly now trying to divert the dry vote to Mr. Mills after having bracketed him with Senator Wadsworth and Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler as the three leading Republican "wets" of the State earlier in the campaign. Whatever remains of the Ku Klux Klan in New York State also seems to be supporting Mr. Mills and Mr. Cristman, according to information received here. The Klan also denounced Mr. Mills earlier in the campaign.

Two other dry groups, the members of the old Prohibition Party and the Women's Christian Temperance Union, are supporting Charles E. Manierre, candidate of the Prohibition Party for Governor, while also supporting Mr. Cristman.

The W. C. T. U. made public yesterday its annual election bulletin, recommending only Lieut. Gov. Seymour Lowman, Republican, of the major party candidates.

Republicans Are Worried.

The divergence of the interests of Mr. Mills and Senator Wadsworth in a number of places in the State is causing the Republican campaign managers considerable uneasiness. Senator Wadsworth generally is expected to profit more from the "Al and Jim" movement than Governor Smith, because the number of Democrats voting for Senator Wadsworth is expected to exceed the number of Republicans voting on the wet issue for Governor Smith in most places in the State. In Oneida County there is an indication that Governor Smith will receive votes from the wet Republican organization in Rome and Utica and something of the same sort is expected in other counties, although the movement there is not so well developed.

Another difficulty which Mr. Mills's campaign managers are trying to surmount is the disinclination of wet Republicans to do any work among dry Republicans who intend to vote for Mr. Cristman and Mr. Mills. In some cases plans have been made for separate corps of workers to see that these dry Republicans get to the polls.

MILLS LETTER ASKS SMITH'S MILK STAND

the city as disclosed by our investigation is appalling."

8. That the same District Attorney said he was powerless to proceed against the milk monopoly, and that he relied on full disclosures when action came from Albany.

9. That THE NEW YORK TIMES said, "The man higher up is always about to be exposed, but slips through somebody's fingers."

10. That THE NEW YORK TIMES said, "Most of the stuff, water adulterated, germ poisoned, has been consumed by the poor. Even the hospitals have been imposed upon."

11. That The New York World, the strongest Democratic paper in the State, and your most ardent supporter, said only two weeks ago, "The situation required a Hughes, an Untermyer, a Buckner, who would go swiftly to the bottom of it."

These quotations could be multiplied indefinitely.

Sees "Fearful Responsibility."

What are you going to do about it, Governor Smith?

Remember that the Citizens Union has stated, and that statement is undisputed, that "No thorough investigation of the corruption in the Health Department can be made, and no successful prosecution of the guilty parties conducted, except through the exercise of the powers of the State."

Remember that you invoked the power of the State last year in the case of the Cortland County milk scandal.

Your failure to initiate the only kind of an investigation that will be effective must mean that the adulterators of the city's milk supply, the men who are cheating both the farmers and the consumers—the milk grafters and the men higher up—will escape, and that steps which will insure a pure milk supply to 6,000,000 people will not be taken.

Win or lose, neither you nor any other man dare accept so fearful a responsibility.

What are you going to do about it, Governor Smith?

Very truly yours,
OGDEN L. MILLS.

Replies to Smith on Hearst.

Richard W. Lawrence, Chairman of the Mills Campaign Committee, made public a letter from Governor Smith to William R. Hearst in answer to the Governor's assertion that Mr. Hearst was an issue in this campaign.

"Governor Smith seems very much peeved that Mr. Hearst and his newspapers, The New York American and The Evening Journal, are not supporting him this year," Mr. Lawrence said. "This is not at all surprising in view of his gratefulness for the support that he received when last he ran for Governor and which is expressed in a letter which he addressed to Mr. Hearst on Nov. 1, 1924."

The letter, as made public by Mr. Lawrence, follows:

Executive Chamber,
Albany, Nov. 1, 1924.

To the General Manager, New York American:

GOODING PINS HOPE ON PROSPERITY VOTE

Only a Belief That None but the Republicans Can Prolong Good Times Will Save Idaho Senator.

PARTY IS BITTER ON BORAH

He Is Accused of Sidestepping for Failure to Take Stump in a Critical Fight in His State.

From a Staff Correspondent.

BOISE, Idaho, Oct., 24.—If Senator Frank R. Gooding, Republican, comes out victorious in the three-cornered race in Idaho despite his personal unpopularity among great masses of the voters, it will be because the people, in the hope of assuring a continuation of prosperity, decide it is best to leave the conduct of national affairs, for the present at least, in the hands of the Republican Party.

It is on this that the Republican leaders are depending and up to this time the betting houses in Boise are taking the view that the issue will pull Gooding through. They are quoting odds of 2 and 3 to 1 in his favor. Among bets posted were one of $600 to $200 that Gooding would win and another of $200 to $100.

Republican headquarters makes the claim that it will elect its candidate for Governor, H. C. Baldridge, and the others on the State ticket by 25,000 and hopes that such a vote will save Gooding.

There does not seem much question that the Republican candidates for the House, Burton L. French and Addison T. Smith, seeking re-election, will win.

Tariff Is Being Stressed.

Emphasis is being placed by the Republicans not so much on the issue of the popularity of President Coolidge as upon the necessity of returning Gooding if the Republican Party is to have sufficient votes to organize the new Senate and keep important committee chairmanships in the hands of Western Republicans.

Great stress is being laid upon the fact that the Fordney-McCumber Tariff law gives protection to wheat growers and the dairy and sheep industries and that a change in the control of Congress might mean a return to the schedules of the Underwood tariff, which, it is charged, brought panic conditions to Idaho just after the World War.

The apathy among the voters of the State, however, is causing alarm in the Republican camp. It is predicted that not more than 120,000 votes will be cast, or 30,000 fewer than in 1924, and there is fear that thousands of Republicans will not take the trouble to vote for Gooding and that this may prove fatal.

The Progressives are much more likely to go to the polls, and the Democrats, believing, honestly enough, that they have a chance to win, are making a determined last week drive to get out the full party strength.

The World Court issue is not playing so big a part in the campaign here as might be expected. The chief interest in it seems to be discussion of the "flop" Senator Gooding took by declaring against the World Court during the campaign after he had voted in the senate for American participation.

Many voters believe that Senator Gooding did the about-face in the hope of obtaining the support of Senator William E. Borah, who wields great influence among the Progressive and radical voters of this State. The Democrats daily are taunting Gooding for his inconsistency.

Borah's Aloofness Resented.

Senator Borah's half-hearted endorsement of the Republican ticket has not caused a great reaction in favor of Gooding, and Borah's failure to campaign here in an admittedly critical situation has caused bitterness against him and talk that, as usual, he has sidestepped.

Senator Borah's strength in the Republican Party of Idaho, one finds, is, after all, based more upon the fact that he is a bigger and better advertisement for the State than the famous Idaho baked potato, than on anything he has ever done for the success of other candidates on the ticket.

The leaders admit they are never certain whether Borah is going to support or oppose the ticket, and some of them are getting a bit tired of his political philanderings.

More than one has told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent that they wished they could be rid of Borah and Gooding and get a new deal all around.

But as long as Borah, stormy petrel of the Senate, remains the premier advertising medium for the boosters of Idaho, he can keep his old job in the Senate, regardless of hurt feelings.

John F. Nugent, Democratic nominee for Senator, posing as a progressive and independent member of the Federal Trade Commission, is carrying the fight to Senator Gooding in a most vigorous manner.

He has declared that he is not a free trader, and has even gone so far as to state that the Democratic Party is rapidly becoming a protectionist tariff party.

In dealing with farm relief he has advocated control over the export surplus and almost everything else dear to the hearts of Idaho.

Nugent Taunts Opponent.

Nugent is continually taunting Gooding as a turncoat on the World Court, as a Senator who voted for tax measures which would have withheld the greatest benefits from the masses of the people, and as a supporter of Senator Newberry, whom Senator Borah opposed and denounced.

It is charges of this kind that have infuriated Gooding and trapped him into intemperate utterances which are turning away supporters among the Progressives and injuring him among the Republican regulars.

The Democrats are counting on holding their own party strength together and on obtaining enough votes from the Progressive ranks to beat Gooding.

The Progressive Party, headed by H. F. Samuels, the third Senatorial candidate, is making wild claims of victory but is faltering in its stride. As there is little evidence of discontent among the workers of any of Idaho's industries, it is generally believed here that Samuels will run third.

BACKS SMITH AND WAGNER.

College League Appeals for Support for the Two Nominees.

Formed as an offset against the Mills-Wadsworth College League, which has been appealing to college alumni to support the Republican nominees, the Smith-Wagner College League through John H. Marchmont, its President, appealed yesterday for support for Governor Smith as a "graduate of the university of hard knocks," quoting Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia University, and for Judge Wagner as a poor boy who worked his way through the College of the City of New York and was graduated with honors.

"Thousands of college men throughout the Empire State are responding to the leadership of Alfred E. Smith because they believe an LL. D. from Columbia by sheer service to the people and by a heroic struggle for an education is the summit of educational achievement," Mr. Marchmont said. "We join with the President of Columbia, who appropriately and justly called Alfred E. Smith the voice of the people, and with William Allen White, who called the great Governor the best political and Governmental mind in the United States.

"Robert F. Wagner is also of the same mold and stature. He was a poor immigrant boy. He fought his way upward, clearing hurdles which would discourage the average man. His record is that of an able and active member of the Legislature, a just and intelligent judge and a friend and worker for the average citizen."

Other officers of the league are Percy S. Straus, Harvard; Miss Marion Dockerman, Syracuse; Raymond V. Ingersoll, Amherst, and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, Vassar, Vice Chairmen; Ferdinand I. Sanford, Princeton, Secretary; Richard C. Patterson Jr., University of Nebraska, Treasurer; Gordon Auchinloss, Yale; Phelan Beale, University of the South; Thomas J. Blake, Cornell; Henry Breckinridge, Princeton; H. Spencer Breghoff, New York University; Miss Nancy Cook, Syracuse; William H. Edwards, Princeton; James G. Finn, Bowdoin; James E. 16,000 OPENINGS DUG IN STREETS THIS YEAR

'City Is Being Built Over Again,' Says Miller, Telling of Improvement Program.

The estimated number of openings in streets in 1926 to permit of electric light, gas, telephone, water, fire signal, burglar alarm and other installations has reached a total of 16,000, according to an announcement yesterday by Borough President Julius Miller of Manhattan.

"It may have appeared at times," he said, "that the whole city was in an upheaval, and annoyance, inconvenience and congestion has followed it, but never in the history of the world in a similar space has so much construction been undertaken. It simply means that New York is being built over again."

Mr. Miller said that eighteen repaving projects had been completed, among them being West Street and Marginal Way, from Laight to Watts Street, a part of the west side improvement. Of sixteen items listed as "nearing completion" are West Street from Christopher to Bloomfield Street, and Marginal Way from Christopher to Fourteenth Street.

COOLIDGE LETTER ENDORSES BUTLER

achusetts serving the people in the public interest. His presence there is of great importance to me in my efforts to discharge the duties of my office.

Mrs. Coolidge and I want to go home to vote for him in our desire to see him continue the eminent service he is rendering the State of Massachusetts and the nation.

Sincerely yours,
CALVIN COOLIDGE.

First Appeal for Candidate.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 25 (AP).—President Coolidge's endorsement of Senator Butler in his letter to the Massachusetts Republican State Committee is his first utterance in behalf of any Republican candidate for national office in the approaching election.

In a few instances prior to the primaries, however, the President did let it be known that he valued the services and character of some Republicans then seeking renomination, including Senator Lenroot, Republican of Wisconsin, whom he praised in his address at the dedication of the John Ericsson monument here in May.

Whether the letter made public by the Massachusetts committee indicates a change in the hands-off policy thus far pursued by the President, with respect to election contests, has not been made apparent at the White House.

While Mr. Coolidge has made it clear that he regarded business and financial conditions in the country as most favorable, a subject emphasized by Republican campaign leaders, he has refrained from making political speeches and has remained at his desk since the campaign got under way.

His only scheduled address between now and November 2 is that set for Wednesday before the convention here of the American Association of Advertising Agents.

Predicting that the President's letter would react against both Republican candidates, Chairman Oldfield of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee said that "apparently the rPesident is very much frightened at the prospect of the defeat of Senator Butler and Governor Fuller."

"When President Wilson wrote a similar letter in 1918," he recalled, "the Republicans were very much horrified. President Coolidge, through his White House spokesman, has said from the beginning of the campaign that he would take no part in the election of any candidate. That letter repudiates his former stand. The people of Massachusetts are capable of electing their State officers without any interference from the White House."

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Mass., Oct. 24.—Mrs. Curtis Guild, widow of a Republican Governor of Massachusetts and herself a Republican for years, places the prohibition issue above party loyalty and today came forward with an appeal to women voters of Massachusetts to support the Democratic ticket, headed by David I. Walsh for Senator and Colonel W. A. Gaston for Governor, both wets.

COOLIDGE BIG ISSUE IN THE NORTHWEST

Senatorial Contests There Will Be Decided Largely by Voters' View of His Policies.

REPUBLICANS ARE FAVORED

But There Is Alarm Among Their Leaders Lately in Washington, Oregon, Nevada and Idaho.

From a Staff Correspondent.

BOISE, Idaho, Oct. 24.—Senatorial contests in the Northwest will be determined largely by the extent to which President Coolidge and the Republican National Administration have retained the confidence of the voters and the effectiveness of the contention that has been raised that only by permitting the present Administration to organize the new Congress can continuation of present-day prosperity be assured.

Alarmed by the renewed vigor shown by the Democratic Party, or fearful of the results because of inter-party rows in their own organization, the Republican leadership in Washington, Oregon and Idaho and further south, in Nevada, has seized upon the issue of "upholds the hands of President Coolidge," and in the closing week of the campaign is demanding that this be the test placed before the voters.

Such was the situation found by THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent in a tour which began at Los Angeles, in Southern California, and extended to Seattle, Wash.

The conditions in California are different from those in other States of the Far West. In California the Democratic Party apparently has been foundered again by the ambitions of William Gibbs McAdoo, who is backing an independent Senatorial candidate in defiance of the recognized leadership. An overwhelming victory for Senator Samuel M. Shortridge, Republican, appears certain.

Republicans Alarmed Now.

The Republicans had expected to sweep on easily to victory in all the Northwestern States where Senators are to be elected, and the complacency with which they accepted the situation in the early days of the fight has been in part responsible for the present-day alarm felt by some of the State leaders.

Most unbiased observers still believe that in Washington, Oregon and Idaho, which normally have large Republican majorities, the Republican Party will be successful this Autumn, because of the general prosperity and a natural hesitancy on the part of the voters to make a change.

The betting houses in Seattle and in Boise are quoting 2 to 1 on the chances of the Republican Senatorial nominees. There is a serious split in the Republican ranks of Oregon, with Senator Stanfield, beaten in the primaries, running as an independent, and the odds in Portland are 7 to 5 favoring Steiwer, regular Republican nominee.

The fact that this tendency to give the long end of the odds to the Republicans is present in all of these States is to some convincing evidence of the general trend among the voters.

In Nevada, Senator Oddie, Republican, is also a slight favorite in the betting.

Little Stir Over World Court.

In the Northwest there does not appear to be any great furor over the World Court issue or the McNary-Haugen farm relief proposal. Most of the farmers are making a profit, and the sheep and lumber industries are in pretty fair condition economically. There is no outstanding evidence of general discontent.

The campaign in Washington State was an apathetic affair until the issue was raised by the Democratic nominee for Senator, A. Scott Bullitt, that Senator Wesley L. Jones, running for re-election, had introduced Sunday closing bills in Congress and would inflict blue laws on his own State if sent back to Congress.

This bogus issue has taken with the people beyond even the wildest dreams of the Democrats, and some believe that the Republican demand for an investigation of Mr. Bullitt's campaign expenditures was prompted largely by the hope of thus finding a way to turn the minds of the people from the alleged threat of blue laws.

It is difficult to believe, despite the open alarm shown by the Republican leaders of Washington State, that the Democrats can overthrow Senator Jones.

Close Oregon Race Predicted.

In Oregon the situation is very uncertain, with the odds at this time appearing slightly to favor Steiwer, Republican. The vote probably will be subnormal, possibly less than 200,000.

It is admitted by the regular Republicans and the Democrats that the race between Steiwer and the Democrat, Bert E. Haney, former Commissioner of the United States Shipping Board, probably will be close. Only the Stanfield leaders are predicting a sweeping victory, and Stanfield appears in the weakest position of the three.

In Idahb, the Republicans, fearful of the effect of Senator Gooding's unpopularity with the voters, and none too happy over the half-hearted manner in which Senator Borah has given his support, expect the prestige of the National Administration to give Gooding a small plurality over John F. Nugent, Democrat.

On this issue Gooding appears to hold the lead as the final dash for the wire begins, but Nugent is gaining rapidly.

Raymond T. Baker, former Director of the Mint and the Democratic nominee, is making a vigorous campaign in Nevada against Senator Oddie on the good fellowship issue; but again the Republicans expect to put Oddie across on the issue of prosperity. Most observers, both Democrats and Republicans, give Senator Oddie the edge in a tight race.

Humor in the Situation.

Whether he likes it or not, the President has been made an outstanding issue in the campaign by the Republicans of the Northwest, and much will depend upon his popularity here.

THE TIMES correspondent found much evidence that Mr. Coolidge had retained a strong grip on the people. At least his severe critics did not appear to be numerous.

And there is something almost amusing in the spectacle of the Republican leadership of the rugged Northwest paling with alarm at the danger of defeat, dodging away from their own shadows, and calling lustily upon the electorate to stand by their candidates, not so much because of their own vigor and worth, as be ause they are the representatives of a quiet, unassuming New Englander named Calvin Coolidge.

GERMANS HERE HAIL SMITH'S WET STAND

Walker Also Applauded at United Societies Gathering—Increase in Alien Quota Sought.

Governor Smith asked German voters to support the prohibition referendum in a letter read at the Germanf Day celebration of the United German Societies of the City of New York in Mecca Temple, West Fifty-fifth Street, last night. Thirty-five hundred persons, who crowded the auditorium, applauded as Magistrate Charles A. Oberwager, their President, read the Governor's thrusts at "fanatical drys," whom he described as seeing "in a harmless glass of beer the sum total of human iniquity."

Mayor Walker, in an address, also struck a popular chord in similar vein when he confided that Mrs. Walker was abroad, on her present trip to Hamburg and Berlin, "to break a bottle." He added that if his wife were to consider "the best interests of both," she wouldn't break it, but bring it back." Lusty cheers followed the Mayor as he left the stage to keep four other speaking engagements for the evening.

Military Men Attend.

Magistrate Oberwager announced that the celebration marked the first time that the United German Societies here had formally entertained members of the United States Army and Navy. Applause followed when he then introduced Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett and Major Johnson, the latter representing Major Gen. Charles P. Summerall, commanding the Second Area. Admiral Plunkett and Major Johnson praised the loyalty of German-Americans both to the United States and to traditions of their inheritance. The two speakers preceded Graf Felix von Luckner, commander of the German raider Sea Eagle, or "See Adler," which sank thirty-two allied ships without, Magistrate Oberwager explained, any loss of life. Graf von Luckner, wearing many German war decorations, received an ovation.

Announcement was made that the societies had adopted a resolution calling upon President Coolidge and Congress to aid in increasing the German immigration quota.

Governor Smith's Letter.

Governor Smith in his letter addressed to Magistrate Oberwager, said: "Only the strenuous duties of the campaign outside of the City of New York keep me from joining the members of the United German Societies of the City of New York at the 'German Day' celebration in Mecca Temple on Sunday evening, Oct. 24.

"I would like to meet my German friends, face to face, to tell them what they have meant to the citizenship of the State and the City of New York; how they have brought their virtues of thoroughness, reliability and solidity to the many communities of our blessed land.

"I would like to contrast their gemüthlichkeit and true temperance with the sour and drab view of life represented by the fanatical drys, who see in a harmless glass of beer the sum total of human iniquity.

"To the credit of the German people be it said that they have demonstrated how families can enjoy life with music, songs and a little beer.

"I know how they will stand on the prohibition referendum, but if I were present I would advise them personally to vote 'Yes' and enjoy what I know would be their unanimous response to my sentiments on the prohibition referendum. Your people have been a tower of strength in the fight against the hypocritical policy of a political party which has faced both sides on the prohibition question, talking dry and acting wet.

"Wherever personal liberty is involved the German people have stood by, and in this election they will vote for the party which has consistently fought for personal liberty and that temperance which the German people have always treasured."

Magistrate Oberwager in his address urged that instruction in the German language be restored in public schools to the pre-war basis, and that the name of the Lenox Hill Hospital be changed back to "The German Hospital," its name before the war. He also recommended that German-Americans exert themselves to facilitate supplying works of German art to American museums on a broader scale.

CITY BREVITIES.

A committee of the Alumni of City College, under the Chairmanship of Admiral Louis M. Josephthal, has offered to the college a large bronze bust of Thomas Jefferson, executed by Robert I. Aitken. The bust will be placed in the marble corridor of the main building of the college.

Five hundred persons attended the exercises at the laying of the cornerstone of the Middle Village Methodist Episcopal Church, at Metropolitan Avenue, Queens, yesterday afternoon. The new church will replace the structure which was burned last January.

The third of a series of eighteen concerts in the course in Music and Appreciation, by the Department of Music at New York University, will be held in the Auditorium at Washington Square, Friday, at 2 P. M. The program will consist of early Italian numbers.

A Foster-Parents' Health Club is being organized to aid the work of the Chelsea Ray Nursery, an organization which cares for children of families in which the father is ill and the mother is forced to go out to work, according to an appeal yesterday by Mrs. Hermann M. Biggs, for contributing members.

A reunion dinner for all officers and former officers of the Naval and Marine Flying Corps will be held at the Commodore on the evening of Nov. 12, according to announcement yesterday. Admiral William A. Moffait and Admiral Charles H. Plunkett have been invited.

Mayor Walker will be the guest of honor of the Manhattan Council of the Steuben Society of America at a dinner on the North German Lloyd Liner Columbus, this evening. Other speakers will be Theodore W. Hoffmann and David Maier. Musical numbers will be given by Miss Maude von Steuben.

John Martin, known as the "Children's Friend," will speak this morning at the Boys' Club Federation at Teachers' College, Columbia University, and at a luncheon at 1 o'clock in the Town Hall, as the guest of the Boys' Work Committee.

Dr. G. Earp-Thomas, a British scientist, and Dr. E. M. Allen, will speak at the first organization dinner of the Food and Life Society at the Waldorf, Oct. 28.

The Child Placing Committee of the State Charities Aid Association, will place its 4,000th child in a foster home today, according to the announcement yesterday by Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, Chairman of the committee.

A community library undertaken jointly by the Bowling Green Neighborhood Association and the New York Public Library, is to be installed in the association's building at 107 Washington Street. Books will administer to the needs of twenty-four nationalities.

Dr. Samuel A. Brown, President of the New York Academy of Medicine, announced yesterday that the academy would give a dinner in honor of the newly elected Fellows, at the Waldorf, Wednesday evening Nov. 17. Twenty-two Honorary Fellows, some from Europe, have been chosen because of their contributions to the progress of medical science during the last twenty years.

The first meeting of the Mid-Manhattan Survey Committee will be held at a luncheon at the Commodore on Thursday, when speakers will outline plans for the business stabilization survey to be made of the section between Thirtieth and Sixtieth Streets.

Emanuel Jackson of Sea Gate, for twenty years an official of the Coney Island Hebrew Association, the last three of its President, was honored at a testimonial dinner given by the organization in the Hotel Astor last night. More than 1,000 persons attended.

WADSWORTH TO ASK BUSINESS SUPPORT

Resumes His Drive Here Today —Will Stress Need for a Republican Congress.

Senator Wadsworth will resume his campaign in the metropolitan district today. In his speeches in and near this city he is expected to appeal to the business element by urging the necessity for continuing the Republican majority in Congress so that the program of President Coolidge may be carried through. He also will discuss prohibition but probably not at as great length as he has hitherto.

The Senator has stated his position on the liquor question in about eighty of the eighty-six speeches he has delivered. He feels that it is now definitely understood up-State and that, with this understanding, much of the opposition to him has been overcome because, in his view and that of his managers, it was largely due to a misapprehension of his attitude.

In the three weeks he has been on the road, Senator Wadsworth has spoken in forty-four counties and each of his speeches has averaged thirty-five minutes in length. This gives him a record of slightly over fifty hours of talking to date. His voice remains unimpaired.

The blue motor bus in which the Senator has traveled has covered 2,300 miles. The bus is owned by Mayor John W. Stevenson of Fulton, who has donated its use for the campaign and has traveled with it.

Senator Wadsworth returned to the Hotel Belmont last night from Shinnecock Hills, where he spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Sabin at their country place. The Senator was tired after his three weeks of campaigning up-State, and his whereabouts over Sunday were not publicly disclosed so that he might rest.

Mrs. Wadsworth left her home in Genesco last night and will join the Senator this morning, remaining here with him this week and attending many of his meetings. Mrs. Wadsworth is a daughter of the late John Hay, former Secretary of State, and her interest at present is equally divided between her husband's campaign and the achievements of their son, Jerry, who is fullback on the Yale football team.

E. H. Dunnigan, former President of the Washington (D.C.) Electrotype Molders and Finishers Union, No. 17, issued a statement in support of Senator Wadsworth's legislative record on labor and agricultural questions yesterday in the form of an answer to what he said was the "misinformation" contained in an appeal for support for former Justice Robert F. Wagner made public Oct. 15 by William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor.

Senator Wadsworth's itinerary for today follows:

3:00 P. M.—N. Y. Pharmaceutical conference, Hotel Pennsylvania.
8:20 P. M.—Union League Club.
9:30 P. M.—Clinton Hall, 151 Clinton Street.
10:00 P. M.—Lenox Hall, 256 East Second Street.
10:40 P. M.—Star Casino, 107th Street and Park Avenue.
11:10 P. M.—Leslie Hall, Eighty-third Street and Broadway.

Mr. Mills will speak also at all the meetings except in the Hotel Pennsylvania.

ONE KILLED, 32 HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Man Goes Through Windshield in Crash—Seven Injured in Safety Zone.

Charles Donohue of Clifton, N. J., was thrown through the windshield of the automobile in which he was riding there yesterday when it crashed into a telephone pole, and received injuries which led to his death a few hours later in St. Mary's Hospital, Passaic. Edward Kelly, driver of the car, said that he was blinded by the lights of an approaching car. He was held on a charge of manslaughter.

Seven persons, including two children, were knocked down by an automobile whose driver is alleged to have been under the influence of liquor and driving recklessly at the corner of Lenox Avenu and 118th Street, yesterday morning. The seven were standing in the safety zone, waiting for a trolley car, when the auto suddenly bore down on them. They were Edward Carrion, 6,229 Austin Street, Elmhurst, L. I., contusions of the thigh; Mary Carrion, 8 years old, his daughter, abrasions of the right arm; Angel Lopez, 4, 6,229 Austin Street, Elmhurst, abrasions of the right knee; Alphonso Mercari, 6,229 Austin Street, Elmhurst, internal injuries; Henry Sydik of 158 West 100th Street, contusions of right arm; Etta Sydik, his sister, contusions of arms, and Benjamin Dorskin, 157 West 117th Street, internal injuries. William Fitzpatrick of 350 West Thirtieth Street, driver of the car, was arrested charged with reckless driving.

Traffic Policeman Joseph Ray of Traffic D was knocked down by an automobile yesterday while he was regulating traffic at Woodhaven and Jamaica Avenues, Woodhaven, Queens. The car was owned and driven by George Mass of 8,807 107th Street, Woodhaven, Queens. Ray's injuries were treated at St. Mary's Hospital, Jamaica, and he went to his home.

PLEA FOR RUMANIAN JEWS.

Panken Says They Are Heavily Oppressed There and in Poland.

Judge Jacob Panken, Socialist candidate for Governor, said yesterday that the economic condition of Jews in Rumania and Poland was very poor because of economic boycotts and persecution. He delivered a report at the national convention of the American Ort in the Hotel Pennsylvania, attended by 244 delegates representing 125 organizations. The Ort, a society for the promotion of labor, is helping Jews in Eastern Europe to support themselves, he explained.

Dr. Henry Moskowitz, a delegate with Judge Panken to the conference of the Ort in Berlin last August, told the delegates that the Ort had raised $700,000 in the last fourteen months.

Arranging Five Yorkville Dances.

Arrangements for the series of five Yorkville dances which will be held at the Ritz-Carlton on the nights of Nov. 30, Dec. 14, Jan. 11, Feb. 8 and March 1 will be discussed at a meeting this afternoon of committee members at the home of Mrs. A. Mansfield Patterson, 118 East Seventy-ninth Street. The proceeds of the dances will be used in the work of the Yorkville Community Association.

CUSTODIAN ACCOUNT DEPARTMENT

MEMORANDUM

To the President:

Custodian accounts opened with us so far this year aggregate more than $63,000,000. This total is made of many accounts, small and large.

A large percentage of new accounts are opened by active business men who realize more than ever the advantages afforded - not merely safekeeping of securities, but analysis, watchfulness, disposal of income in accordance with the owner's wishes, and constant availability of securities.

A further reason why so many people are opening such accounts is that the proper safeguarding of the rights and interests of stockholders and bond holders becomes more complicated and more necessary every year. Only the other day I saw a report that failure to exercise "rights" in connection with a single issue had cost stockholders more than $150,000,000.

Our department has of course grown with the increasing volume of custodian accounts, but the thorough training of our staff in custodian work makes us fully able to take care of all demands upon us.

One of New York's clothing trade landmarks is the store we've occupied since 1889 at Broadway and Warren Street opposite City Hall Park. It was a clothing store for generations before.

Recently remodeled outside and in, the old stand has renewed its life, and our people there think they now have the model store of the City's "five convenient corners." We are rather proud of it ourselves.

But "fine feathers" do not always "make fine birds," and there's keen competition inside the business family as to which store can render best service.

The stocks of high grade wearables are equally represented at each of our stores, placed as they are to be convenient for most men and boys.

QUEEN DISTRIBUTES PRAISES SHE PENNED

and other notables for the Palace of the Legion of Honor, which Mrs. Spreckels has erected in San Francisco as a war memorial. The Queen's tribute to California will be displayed with her other gifts to the museum which is a part of the memorial.

The Queen's tribute to North Carolina, which was accepted by Mrs. J. Elmer Long of Durham, N. C., wife of Lieut. Governor Long, was as follows:

NORTH CAROLINA.

The very name of Carolina means hospitality and the Sunny South and a country where generosity knows no bounds; in the South where the hand of friendship is always outstretched and ready to give to the utmost, even through sacrifices.

North Carolina, to one of your sister States made closer by sacrifices, I send to you my love and I hope to come one day.

Queen of Rumania.

Mrs. Nelll Wright of Huntington, Tenn., received the following apostrophe to Tennessee:

Here is the Queen's message to Illinois:

ILLINOIS.

With the great record of output from your resources and efforts—but all else in Illinois is surmounted by one word—Lincoln. It is from Illinois that Lincoln came.

Illinois: Yours is the joy and the prize; you gave Lincoln to the world. Lincoln is your crown of glory which I salute.

One day I hope to come into your midst.

MARIE,
Queen of Rumania.

OH, TENNESSEE!

Down where the cotton grows and Southern music fills the air and rings throughout the world. You have given to us all the mighty fruits of your mighty industries, which, in the great battle against injustice, has been the means of defense beyond all danger. What has not the industry of cotton done in the time of need?

And to the people of Tennessee I give my greetings, above all for the greatness of their hearts. I will come

MARIE,
Queen of Rumania.

The tribute to Rhode Island, which was received by Mrs. William F. Whitehouse of Newport, was as follows:

RHODE ISLAND.

The smallest State in America.

This is the great triumph for Rhode Island, because it is one of the largest. It has poured out its generous help until the world stands amazed at what a small State can do.

Hearts of courage and love are not measured by the number of people or size of territory.

How happy I shall be to one day see the people of this vast little State and their great industries.

MARIE,
Queen of Rumania.

Mrs. Blaine S. Viles of Augusta, Me., received the following tribute to Maine from the Queen:

TO MAINE.

To the home of the pines and of Longfellow.

It is the star of the north which, steadfast, good and true, oft guides the bark to its destination. The poets are the leaders of thought.

I hope one day to meet the people of Maine, and to thank them for their mighty efforts in the great war.

MARIE,
Queen of Rumania.

Those at Speakers' Table.

At the speakers' table at the luncheon besides the Queen and her royal suit were Colonel Athanesco, Professor N. Petresco, Mr. and Mrs. Simon Guggenheim, John Hays Hammond, William N. Cromwell, Mrs. Spreckels, Rear Admiral Charles P. Plunkett, Colonel J. H. Carroll, Mrs. Charles D. Lowrie, Constantine Laptew, John A. Stewart, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Foxhall Keene, Barron G. Collier and Colonel A. G. Ament.

The volume that was given to Queen Marie was taken back by Mrs. Mebane to be illuminated by Tiffany's and presented again on the Queen's return to this city late in November or early in December. The Queen received also at this luncheon a gold medal in commemoration of her election to membership in the Sulgrave Institution.

Views Art Exhibition.

Leaving the Biltmore the Queen made a trip to the Fearon Galleries, 25 West Fifty-fourth Street, to view an exhibition by the Rumanian painter Sigismond de Nagy. Included in this exhibition were three sketches of the queen herself and one of her sister, the Infanta Beatrice of Spain. The Queen purchased "The Gypsy Procession," a Rumanian country cene, showing a party of Gypsies moving down a road in the sunset. The reported price was $4,000.

"I want that for my royal son-in-law," she said. "It is very hard to find something to please him."

Among those who were at the exhibition were the artist and Mme. de Nagy, Colonel Curtis Treadwell, Mrs. William R. Timken, Mrs. Louis F. Rothchild and Mrs. Charles J. Liebman.

Next Queen Marie sat for a photograph from which a marble plaque will be cut by J. F. Lins of the Cameograph Studios, the Heckscher Building, 730 Fifth Avenue. The appointment was arranged a week ago, and her majesty arrived at the studios about 1 o'clock, with Mr. Morris, Colonel Anent and her lady-in-waiting. She remained about five minutes.

Reception at Plaza.

The Queen then hurried to the Hotel Plaza, where 700 men and women were presented to her at a reception arranged by the North American Newspaper Alliance. The Queen wore a modified picture hat of dark red, a winde-colored suit and cloak trimmed with dark fur. On her bosom was pinned a white magnolia blossom. A diamond and other precious stones hung from a cord about her neck.

After the presentations, Melville M. Stone, former general manager of The Associated Press, escorted her Majesty to a gallery overlooking the ballroom and introduced her in a speech in which he attributed wars to the destruction of the Tower of Babel. That catastrophe, he said, by creating diversity of languages and nations, caused antagonisms which could only be overcome by furthering better understanding between nations. He continued:

"One good result of your visit will be that some people will know where Rumania is and who its Queen is. With many others, I have been, since my retirement, seeking to develop the study of foreign affairs by our ignorant people. ['I like that!' interpolated Queen Marie.] I believe that the peoples of the world are brothers and sisters, and I don't believe that it is possible, much less desirable, to undertake a policy of isolation. But I am not going to make a speech. I now present her Majesty, Queen Marie of Rumania."

Says She Is Democratic.

Queen Marie read a brief response in which she said:

"I realize that I stand before the most critical audience in the world. Beg your pardon. I know that you are. I appreciate that through you men the public opinion of this nation is framed. You must not expect me to make a speech. You have been so hospitable, all of you, that my voice is no more.

"I come here in all sincerity and simplicity to try to interpret my people to your people. By my instincts I am democratic, but my lot has assigned me to the position of a Queen and Queen of a special country, and in this I must uphold the dignity of my nation. When I travel through your country I seek nothing for myself, but I hope that my visit may be the means of bringing a closer sympathy and understanding between our two countries."

Quoting from Victor Hugo, the Queen said that she asked "a prayer from every human heart" that she should be guided to do and to say only things that would help both countries.

"Thank you all for coming," she added. "I am very glad to be in your midst."

A few members of the Women's Memorial Fund had been invited to attend the dinner. Those present were Mrs. Oliver Harriman, Mrs. Harry S. Black, Mrs. Charles Dana Gibson, Mrs. Edward M. House, Mrs. Charles Cary Rumsey, Mme. Frances Alda, Mrs. John D. Sherman, Mrs. Richard T. Wilson, the Princess Rospigliosi, Mrs. Ira Nelson Morris, Mrs. T. Tileston Wells, Mrs. Albert Herter, Mrs. Felix M. Warburg and Mmes. Lahovary and Proeopie, ladies in waiting to the Queen.

Mrs. Black, as hostess, sat at the Queen's right and Mrs. Harriman at her left. Shortly before 9 the party left for the Metropolitan Opera House.

The Queen was feeling much better yesterday, although she was still hoarse and somewhat fatigued. She was treated three times during the day by a throat specialist, Dr. Arthur B. Duell of 4 East Sixty-fifth Street.

"She is much improved," he said, "and generally buoyed up."

In response to invitations for a tea in honor of the Queen sent out by Dr. Frank N. D. Buchman, the "soul surgeon," whom Queen Marie met aboard the Leviathan, about 250 men and women gathered at the home of Mrs. C. Richard Tjader, 11 West Fifty-third Street, yesterday afternoon.

To their surprise and disappointment Queen Marie did not appear. All the guests were requested to go over to the Hotel Ambassador, where the Queen was waiting in her own apartments to receive them. Prince Nicholas came to the Tjader home, but Queen Marie and Princess Ileana received those invited to the tea in their own parlors. The Queen appeared in a scarlet gown.

Among those who called were Mr. and Mrs. Finley J. Shepard, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Schieffelin, Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Baker, Mr. and Mrs. Warner M. Van Norden, Mrs. H. Roswell Bates, the Rev. Dr. and Mrs. William Carter, Mrs. James Marshall Stuart, Lady Margaret Hamilton, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Thorne, Mr. and Mrs. Oakleigh Thorne, Mrs. William Randolph Hearst, Mr. and Mrs. Richard L. Tjader, Mrs. Rita H. Lydig, Mr. and Mrs. Overton Harris, Dr. and Mrs. William Seaman Bainbridge, Mr. and Mrs. S. Brinkerhoff Thorne.

QUEEN AT OPERA HOUSE.

Enters Wrong Door and Misses Reception—Many Seats Empty.

There was not nearly as large a crowd in the Metropolitan Opera House to see Queen Marie of Rumania and the Lois Fuller ballet as had been anticipated. There were many seats in the orchestra empty and speculators outside tried to get rid of tickets, selling $2 seats for as low as 50 cents. The evening went wrong from the time the Queen came in the wrong entrance and missed the reception committee and the decorated lobby which had been trimmed in her honor.

Queen Marie did not arrive until 8:45 o'clock, although the curtain was supposed to part at 8:30 o'clock. She seemed tired and coughed occasionally as the result of her cold. On the south side of the Opera House a Reception Committee, of which Mrs. Oliver Harriman was Chairman, had gathered to meet her. There were police guards everywhere, led by Deputy Inspector William McGrath.

When the Queen finally arrived, however, it was by the main Broadway entrance, and she was inside and ascending the stairway before anything could be done to shift the committee. There were gasps of dismay from the few who knew of the arrangements, and policemen yelled up the stairs to clear the way.

Through a narrow passage between the people gathered on the stairway and the foyer back of the boxes the Queen passed, smiling, followed by the Prince and Princess. They were all somewhat amused, apparently, at the informality of their reception and seemed to enjoy it. Then she disappeared into Box 35, that of J. P. Morgan, and the audience rose while the Rumanian national anthem was played.

Queen Hidden by Flags.

The box was draped with flags and flowers, behind which Queen Marie was almost concealed. She was much interested at the scene before her, and waved her arm as she gesticulated and spoke animatedly to Mrs. Harriman. The only other person in the box was Mrs. C. Crittenden Calhoun, President of the Mothers' Memorial Foundation, for which the benefit performance was given.

It was a heterogenous assembly in the orchestra, for all sorts of people had wanted to see the Queen enough to pay the prices charged for the seats, from $5 to $25, and $100 and more for the boxes. One of those who was an interested spectator was Texas Guinan, for Broadway, and the manufacturing districts were as well represented as society. There were people in beautiful evening clothes and people who weren't in beautiful evening clothes. There were many empty seats also in the house, probably due to the rain.

Inspector McGrath was called upon for more active diplomacy than ever before in his career, and many a person, even with a monocle and ribbons on chest, who did not have a ticket through the lines was comforted as well as the dulcet tones of Inspector McGrath could do the trick.

There was a reception during the second intermission when members of the National Federation of Business and Professional Women, led by Lena Madesin Phillips, President of the federation, were presented to the Queen. Among those received besides Miss Phillips were Miss Gertrude Robinson Smith, President of the American Women's Association; Mrs. Paul B. Conkling, President of the Association of Sculptors and Painters; Miss Frances Tarbox, Miss Grace Edna Hall, Miss Elva W. Wilcox, Vice President of New York State Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs; Mrs. Sara De Forest, President of the New York League of Business and Professional Women; Miss E. Marie Little, Miss Beatrice Jones, President of the Personnel Club; Miss Ethel M. McCunn, Miss Helen Waldo, League of Advertising Women; Miss Emma Dot Partridge, Executive Secretary of National Federation of Business and Professional Women; Miss Stella Miner, President of Quota Club, Mrs. Marian T. Brockway, President of Zonta Club; Mrs. Lois F. Hughes, ex-President of New York League of Business and Professional Women. A book containing the names of women of the federation was presented to the Queen and she held it under her arm while shaking hands with those who passed by. After the performance she left at once with a police escort to board her special train.

Crowd Pierces Police Lines.

As Queen Marie left the opera house on the Thirty-ninth Street side a crowd which had been held back of the police lines on the opposite side of the street surged forward. The police lines wavered, then broke and several hundred persons charged toward the blue cabriolet into which the Queen was stepping. Additional police converged on the milling group and while the policemen forced back the friendly well wishers and curious the car sped away toward the Grand Central Terminal.

The party entered the station from the Vanderbilt Avenue entrance at Forty-third Street. Another large crowd was massed at the station, but the police arrangements were perfect and the Queen walked down a red carpet to her train through a cleared space. On the stairway the now familiar flashlights boomed again.

The royal party entered the train immediately. As she stood in the vestibule of her car, the Queen summoned the motorcycle patrolmen who have been her escort during her trips in the city and thanked each one. She shook each by the hand, repeating:

"I want to thank you for the splendid work you have done in taking care of us while we rode through your streets. I watched your riding and admired the way you did it."

She also thanked the detectives who have guarded the royal entourage. Then after "just one more" parting flashlight with her two children at the entrance of the car she disappeared inside. It was said that the Queen would retire immediately. The train leaves at 8:10 this morning, and will stop at Garrison while she visits West Point.

LOIE FULLER COOPERATED

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—Reports that the King of Rumania has cabled Queen Marie to return home immediately because of unfavorable comment on her American visit, led the Paris Soir to print the following story today:

"It would appear that the Rumanian King is not happy. It was with the greatest reluctance that he finally consented to his wife's trip to the United States. The Queen of Rumania is modern—very modern in the esthetic sense and sentimental above all. After the doings of Prince Carol the King hoped his wife would not be subjected to indiscretions in a republican country, and especially to those of the American press. But scandal, which the American newspapers love, is near.

"New York has had many explanations of the reasons for her Majesty's voyage, but these explanations have gone only to a certain point. The exacting métier of a Queen encourages a woman of feeling to dream of other activities a little less austere than those of a surrounding court. Every one in Europe, therefore, knows that Queen Marie is interested in plastic art, the dance and the cinema. The Queen loves to talk on these subjects with Loie Fuller, who certainly is one of the most interesting and artistic women in Europe. Loie Fuller, whom Anatole France called a genius, and the Queen have often spoken together of the future of motion pictures.

"To realize a beautiful film for the purpose of giving to the cinema its real plastic significance—such for a long time has been the mutual dream of Queen Marie and Loie Fuller. But such a film would cost much money and the new idea would not be easy to sell in the film markets of the world.

Plan Conceived on the Riviera.

"One evening on the Riviera where the two intimate friends walked along the shore of the Mediterranean the Queen had an idea.

"'Suppose I were to write a scenario in my own name,' she exclaimed.

"'Yes, your name would have great weight and would permit us to overcome all difficulties,' said Miss Fuller joyfully.

"A short time afterward the scenario of the Queen, which was the story of a Princess who preferred ideal love and a life devoted to the arts rather than the tyrannic exigencies of a throne was produced on the Riviera. Mme. —— placed at the disposition of the troupe of Loie Fuller and a courageous young film director her magnificent property at Cap Martin.

"Having completed the film, the problem was to sell it. For two long years it was impossible to obtain for the picture the sum desired—several millions, which, according to the producers, had been expended on the motion picture. The only outlet for such a work was America. There it would be possible to sell the film at a high price, and with the profit make other pictures. Pour parleurs by cable were fruitless, and so it was that a voyage to New York for the Queen finally seemed the only way in which to convince the Americans.

"At the same time that the Queen decided to go to New York Loie Fuller organized a grand tour of the United States with a group of dancers. The American press, unfortunately, is not as discreet as the French press. This story, the legends which have grown out of the friendship between Queen Marie and Loie Fuller, and the coincidence of their joint departure for America—all these things have given the American newspapers an opportunity to furnish their readers with gossip which no doubt has been badly interpreted in old Europe.

"The assault of indiscretions, an avalanche of acrobatic New York reporters and the dollar which opens all doors have done their work. Queen Marie, scenario writer, now lives a rôle in a painful film in which she apprehends that a sovereign even in the year 1926 has not the right to be an author."

Loie Fuller Denies Assertion.

Loie Fuller, in an interview last night with a reporter for THE NEW YORK TIMES, denied that the purpose of Queen Marie's visit was to aid in marketing a motion picture of which the Queen had written the scenario and in which Loie Fuller's dancers had appeared.

Miss Fuller said that several years ago the film, "The Lily of Life," had been made from a short story written by Queen Marie. Miss Fuller's dancers appeared in this picture and the ballet which they danced was the same one they performed last night at the Metropolitan Opera House. The picture was exhibited for the first time in Paris five years ago at a performance which Queen Marie attended, and was afterward shown successfully in several European cities.

Soon after the first exhibition, a print of the film was sent to America, said Miss Fuller, and an unsuccessful attempt made to market it here. This attempt will not be renewed, Miss Fuller stated, and the film which is now held by Sam Hill will be placed in the Mary Hill Museum in the State of Washington.

The only other motion picture in which she knew the Queen to be interested, said Miss Fuller, was a film made two years ago of her Majesty in the royal palace in Bucharest. The two films were never exhibited together and Miss Fuller said that as far as she knew, the second film had only been shown before the Rumanian royal family and a few of their most intimate friends.

Regarding her arrival here at the same time as Queen Marie's visit, Miss Fuller said it was a mere coincidence. She said she came to America to stage her ballet at the Sesquicentennial celebration in Philadelphia and later agreed to its production last night. She denied that she and her dancers would accompany Queen Marie on her Western tour.

Nothing had been heard last night in motion picture circles of any attempt by Queen Marie to solicit funds for a further production of her initial effort nor of the idea of her writing another scenario and permitting the use of her name.

OUT OF QUEEN'S PARTY.

Moore Not Going on Seattle Museum Trip, Says John H. Carroll.

The official party of Queen Marie of Rumania to the Mary Hill Museum at Seattle, where she will open a Rumanian wing, was decreased by one member yesterday, by the exclusion of Frederick Moore, who has let it be understood that he was the Secretary of the museum and delegated to accompany Queen Marie's party on the trip West. Mr. Moore will not be on the train, according to John H. Carroll, general counsel of the Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, who has been delegated by Samuel Hill, son-in-law of the late James J. Hill, to act as the museum representative.

Mr. Carroll was asked about the matter at the Metropolitan Opera House, where he was waiting to escort Queen Marie to the train after the performance.

"All I know is that Mr. Moore will not be on the train," said Mr. Carroll. "Only those will be on the train who are wanted by her Majesty."

QUEEN PRAYS AT CALVARY.

1,200 Fill Church as Rev. S. M. Shoemaker Welcomes Royalty.

Close upon 11 o'clock yesterday morning at the Calvary Episcopal Church, Fourth Avenue and Twenty-first Street, there was a murmur of many persons conversing with subdued animation. A second later there was a quick hush and a coordinated turning of heads, and Queen Marie of Rumania swept in through the door. Every one rose. Down the aisle she went, accompanied by Henry Parish, junior warden of the church, and followed by Prince Nicholas, Mme. Lahovary, Colonel George Treadwell and others of the royal party. Her step was almost double-quick, and many persons scarcely got a glimpse of her.

The Queen seated herself in the Walton Oakley pew, which was third from the chancel on the middle aisle. She wore a mulberry coat trimmed with moleskin. A small beret of the same color fitted close over her head, and around her throat was a necklace of large pearls.

She had come to this church because of a meeting at the Royal Palace in Bucharest in April 1, 1925, with the rector, the Rev. Samuel M. Shoemaker Jr., who was traveling in Rumania at the time. "A mutual friend" brought about the introduction, and when the Queen was on the Leviathan she signified her intention to attend services at the Rev. Mr. Shoemaker's church before he had time to issue an invitation. When he saw the fact that she was to honor his church with a visit printed in a morning paper Dr. Shoemaker lost no time in sending her a wireless.

The Queen, who is a member of the Church of England, came to the Calvary Church "as a private individual" and not as a sovereign.

"Many of us have made ourselves part of this company, in spontaneous human interest, to see the Queen," said the Rev. Mr. Shoemaker. "But I should forsake my commission did I not strive that, before you leave this place, you should see the King. Before Him we all meet and bow as equals."

Declaring that "it is an occasion of supreme and historic interest which has brought within the walls of this church such a great company of people," the Rev. Mr. Shoemaker called it "a great honor and a great delight to welcome our distinguished and royal guests, and all of you who have come to join with us in doing them honor."

Throughout the service the Queen and her party listened attentively. She heard the rector pray for "President Coolidge, the King and Queen of Rumania and their family, and all those in authority." At 12:15, after the service, Mr. Shoemaker made his way from the chancel to the royal pew. The Queen stepped to the aisle and, with her friend the rector accompanying her, walked briskly toward the door, this time with her face to the crowd of 1,200 persons who filled the church.

HONOR PRINCE AND ILEANA.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laroque Jr. Give Dinner at Pierre's.

Princess Ileana and Prince Nicholas were entertained at dinner last night at Pierre's, 290 Park Avenue, by Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laroque Jr. of 103 East Eighty-fourth Street. Dinner was served at 7:20 P. M., so that the sixteen guests might not be delayed in arriving at the opera.

Newspaper men were excluded from the dining room, but it was learned that Mr. and Mrs. William B. Leeds, Miss Grace Vanderbilt, Miss Gabrielle Gourd, William H. Hamilton Jr. and Cornelius Vanderbilt Whitney were among the guests. The party finished dinner shortly after 8 o'clock and went to the Plaza to join Queen Marie and accompany her to the Metropolitan Opera House.

British Jibes at His 'Spats' and 'Topper' Sting Baltimore Mayor, Who Had 4 Top Hats

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Oct. 24.—Mayor Jackson of Baltimore is becoming rather weary of the humorous "pokes" and "flips" at him by London as well as some American newspapers concerning the "spats" and "topper" he wore when officially greeting Queen Marie on her visit here last week.

"I see that the British do not think we know how to dress in Baltimore when royalty comes to town," the Mayor said today, commenting on the cablegram from the London bureau of The Baltimore Sun, quoting excerpts from The London Daily Telegraph and The Sketch regarding the visit of Queen Marie.

The Telegraph said that "Mayor Jackson wore a top hat for the first time in his life," and that when word came from the State Department that top hats, frock coats and spats were required for the occasion the shops of Baltimore were "raided by the city officials."

The Sketch remarked that "the city officials should have worn tuxedos, straw deckers and seegars" and that the Queen should have worn her crown at the luncheon.

Mayor Jackson said he "has been wearing a top hat since 1910," adding, "I have had four top hats in my lifetime. The top hat I wore on the occasion of Queen Marie's visit was bought prior to the Army-Navy football game in Baltimore in 1924 when President Coolidge came here to see the game."

AWAITS HERRICK TIP ON DEBT QUESTION

Poincaré Expects Envoy's Information Will Enable Him to Act on Ratification.

HE GETS CHEERING REPORT

This Says Washington Is Favorable to Idea of a Preamble Embodying Reservations.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—Premier Poincaré is awaiting the arrival in France of Ambassador Herrick with something very like impatience, because he believes, and has indeed been led to believe, that Mr. Herrick is bringing with him some indication which will enable him to decide how the French Government ought to proceed in dealing with the debt problem.

This hope, it is stated, is based on somewhat optimistic news which the French Premier has recently received from American sources—an optimism of which he has not yet learned, even after many bitter experiences, to beware. It is suggested, indeed, in Cabinet circles that it is Ambassador Herrick himself who has been the source of these optimistic ideas. On what they are based is still entirely uncertain.

On the debt question the French position remains exactly as outlined in the Premier's Bar-le-Duc speech, which was approved by the whole Cabinet, but less than which will never content Louis Marin and the Nationalists.

Campaign for Ratification.

During these past few days Foreign Minister Briand and his agents have been conducting a vigorous campaign on behalf of ratification, because without it the whole Thoiry program and everything therein involved seems in danger. And in season and out of season he is preaching that France can do nothing, either politically or financially, unless she ratifies.

M. Poincaré, always more timid, remembers that MM. Briand and Caillaux were defeated in the Chamber only four months ago because they sought to do exactly that, and so he is hesitating. Just how far his hesitation is infectious is seen in the report of Deputy Dariac.

Despite his personal conviction that the debts must be ratified, M. Dariac, as reporter of the special commission on the question, has made an entirely neutral report and then broadcast an interview saying what he believes and rehashing the idea which the English have often proposed, which Caillaux adopted, and most European bankers share, that sooner or later America's European debtors will have to get together and settle their mutual accounts, transferring through a single medium their joint payment of the amount of their various debt annuities, whether they be English, French, German, Italian or Belgian.

Joint Interest in Union Seen.

Slowly the idea is sinking in that there is a joint interest in union on this side of the Atlantic. Sir George Paish's free-trade manifesto was one evidence of it. M. Dariac's declaration in favor of a European debt clearing house is another, and one which may be finally more serious because it has more common interest.

But meanwhile the French Premier, remembering what happened to M. Caillaux when he smothered his personal feelings about M. Berenger's settlement and decided to ask the Chamber to ratify it, and frightened by Louis Marin's thundering even though he has secured most of the Radical vote for ratification by the election of Maurice Sarraut to be head of the party, is sitting on the fence awaiting Ambassador Herrick's arrival.

For, the American Ambassador, M. Poincaré, like most Frenchmen, feels the warmest friendship, and indeed M. Poincaré has a special warmness because of his memory of the tragic Autumn of 1914 when he, as President of the Republic, was obliged to leave the capital in the protection of the Army of the Marne and the Ambassador of the United States. For that reason it is of the utmost importance that Mr. Herrick be instructed to inform the French Government precisely as to the state of opinion in Washington and the chances of alteration of the Mellon-Berenger agreement in such a way as to accord with the Bar-le-Duc speech.

Mr. Poincaré, advised by some private sources, is expecting a favorable report on Washington's reception of his idea of a preamble making all kinds of reservations. Once before these sources gave him an encouraging report on the reception of that idea, which had unfortunately to be publicly refuted. Now he is expecting Ambassador Herrick to bring him some comfort, and on the information he receives from the Ambassador he will undoubtedly take his decision on what to do.

In the French press and political circles it is constantly being argued that the November elections will give a good indication of what is to be expected. That, like much else, however, is more an excuse for doing nothing than a definite hope. More than anything else the French Government's attitude and action will depend on the advice which Ambassador Herrick gives. If there is any uncertainty in that advice then matters will drag on indefinitely; but if it is formal, emphatic, in the form of an Ambassadorial representation, and public rating is not given to it by the anonymous White House speaker, then M. Poincaré will loyally accept it and may be expected to carry ratification through the house, so great is his present authority. He may have now to delay the matter until January, but if he and the French Parliament are told they must ratify, then they will.

Even M. Dariac, who has refused to take the responsibility of saying so in his official capacity, has shown himself eager with press interviews to that effect. But what happens will depend very largely, if not entirely, on the firmness of Ambassador Herrick's advice.

MELLON DEFENDS OUR TARIFF POLICY

a separate nation, each having its own tariff, its own railroads, its own currency and its own language. Under such conditions the industrial power of the United States must end, would end.

What the plea of the bankers seems to accomplish in its final analysis is not a change in the world but to bring about in Europe a condition similar to that in the United States. It is not criticism of us, but emulation.

Conditions Not the Same.

Nevertheless our public thought and some of our press argued that because artificial barriers hinder readjustment in Europe we must change our tariff policy; but one cannot take a policy, which is essential to the relief of Europe under conditions arising out of the war, and say that this policy is proper for the United States, unless it can be established that conditions are the same. Conditions are not the same.

The purpose of the policy in Europe is to provide a territory large enough to contain raw materials, manufactures and a market so that industry may function where coal and iron and laborers are convenient and food may be produced where conditions for its production are favorable. No such limitations exists in the United States. We do not have to put a steel plant in Kansas or grow wheat around Gary, Ind. We have one transportation system; we speak one language, and we have one kind of money among 120 million people in an area the size of most of Europe outside of Russia.

But there is a still greater distinction between Europe and the United States. It is true there are different nationalities and different languages on the Continent, but, generally speaking, the standard of living among the principal nations abroad is about on the same level, just as the standard of living of the people of the United States is about the same, whether residents of Texas, or Minnesota, Massachusetts, or California. But the standard of living of Europeans is quite different from the standard of living of the United States. Unless we are willing to bring our standard in America down to the level of that of Europe, we cannot consider a change in our tariff, however desirable such a change may seem to Europe.

Our tariff policy has been mainly responsible for the development of manufacturing in America. Our tariff policy has brought to labor the highest real wages in history. The development of manufacturing has been accompanied by improved methods and quantity production, and we have been able to make and distribute at a relatively low price, considering the high cost of labor. In many lines we more than meet foreign competition with its low labor costs. In turn, high wages have created a great consuming population, which has been the principal factor in our reaching quantity production and thus low costs. A study of the industries in this country shows a very small margin of profit per unit and large profits in the aggregate possible only through large turnover. These reasons, I think, account for the present exceedingly prosperous condition generally of our country.

Again, as I have said, the statement appears to be directed to European and not American conditions. Still, the appearance of the statement has been the occasion for an attack on American policies upon the assumption that our tariff is harmful to the restoration of world prosperity. I should like, therefore, to state my views on American tariff policy.

When the present tariff measure was in process of enactment, it was freely predicted that its passage would seriously restrict foreign trade, particularly import trade. Some extremists contended that the proposed rates were prohibitive and would result in a virtual embargo on commerce. The tariff law has now been in operation for four years and its influence on commerce is no longer a guess.

With disregard of the facts, statements are still being made that foreign countries at the present time are unable to sell in the American market. This is not a fact. During the fiscal year which ended June 30, 1926, merchandise with a total value of nearly 4½ billion dollars was imported into the United States. With due consideration to unit values, this represents a larger volume of imports by a very considerable margin than had ever been brought to the United States in any preceding twelvemonth period.

The trend of trade during the past few years convincingly confirms the contention that the volume of imports is controlled by the purchasing power of the nation, rather than the rate of import duties assessed. An unparalleled combination of high wages and industrial activity has raised the purchasing power of the people of the United States to new high levels, which has brought about increased consumption of commodities of practically every description. A study of the consumption of the more common commodities in the United States, in comparison with the total world production, shows what America means to the rest of the world.

During the calendar year 1925 the world production of coal amounted to 1,500,000,000 tons. The United States' consumption of coal amounted to 568,000,000 tons. In other words, with slightly over 6 per cent. of the world's population, the United States has consumed 37 per cent. of the total world's coal production. In pig iron the percentage of world production consumed in the United States was 48, in copper 46, in rubber 75, in coffee 51, in petroleum 75, in tin 52, in raw silk 77 and in nitrate 68. British India exported during the fiscal year ending March 31, 1925, 42,000,000 pounds of shellac. Of this total, 21,000,000 pounds entered the United States. Shellac is an almost exclusive product of British India, and 50 per cent. of the total exports found their way to the United States.

Our High Purchasing Power.

That the 6 or 7 per cent. of the world's population who live in continental United States should supply a market for such large proportions of the world's total production of principal commodities is a consideration of greatest importance to the world's commerce, industry and the employment of labor. No economic survey of world conditions can reach correct conclusions unless this major factor—the high purchasing power of the United States—is taken into account and its effect intelligently understood.

Whether the economic policies of the United States, our industrial activity and prosperous conditions are of benefit to foreign countries can best be determined by analyzing the possible effect on other nations of a reduction of the per capita consumption of commodities in the United States to the world average. If for example, the consumption of rubber in the United States should be reduced to the world average, it would mean that there would be no market for more than 80 per cent. of the world's present production. It would mean bankruptcy to certain dependencies whose livelihood is predicated almost exclusively on the rubber industry.

A reduction in the consumption of coffee in the United States to the world level would wipe out the market for some 40 per cent. the world now produces and would cause great financial losses to Brazil. A reduction in the consumption of sugar in the United States to the world level would bring financial ruin to Cuba, and likewise a reduction in the consumption of wool would adversely affect Australia. As the United States' consumption is 77 per cent. of the world's production of raw silk, a reduction in the consumption of raw silk to the world's per capita average would destroy the market for 70 per cent. of the silk produced.

A reduction in the consumption of nitrate in the United States would injure Chile, and a reduction in the United States in the use of shellac would cause financial reverses in British India. American money going to Japan for the purchase of silk, to Brazil for the purchase of coffee, to Cuba for the purchase of sugar, to Chile for the purchase of nitrate and to British India for the purchase of shellac enables these countries to increase their purchases from European countries, as well as the United States.

An individual out of employment, generally speaking, is without purchasing power and is a detriment, rather than an asset, to his community. Likewise, a nation out of employment is a detriment to the rest of the world. Conversely, a man well employed reflects prosperity and is a benefit to his community; and a nation well employed reflects prosperity on other countries. Preeminently the United States is prosperous and by furnishing a market for such amazing proportions of what the world produces is reflecting prosperity on other nations. A fair survey of facts cannot lead to a conclusion other than that the economic policies of the United States, and their resulting industrial activity and prosperity, have played a leading rôle in aiding the world to recover from losses and damage wrought by the war.

Companion of Two Tariffs.

The tariff law of Oct. 3, 1913, materially reducing import duties, did not become effective as to all its schedules until Jan. 1, 1914, and early in August the outbreak of the World War caused a disruption of commerce. Therefore, the act of 1913, uninterrupted by war conditions, was in operation for a period of but seven months. A comparison of imports during the seven months ending July 31, 1914, with the seven months ending July 31, 1926, is as fair a comparison as can be made of the effect of the two laws. While imports in general have materially increased during the lapse of twelve years, the kinds of imports, rather than the quantities, are of most interest in a study of foreign trade.

In 1914 there was much unemployment, and, compared with this year, the purchasing power of the nation was materially reduced. The value of imports of crude materials for use in manufacturing during the seven-month period in 1914 was less than $400,000,000, while during the corresponding months of this year the value of this group of imports was $1,130,000,000. In 1914, this group was 34 per cent. of the total, and although the total imports have more than doubled, this year the imports of this group constitute 45 per cent. of the total importations.

The use of large quantities of crude materials is the necessary result of industrial activity and indicates healthy industrial conditions. In 1914, partly manufactured articles for further use in manufacturing amounted in value to $180,000,000, or 15 per cent. of the total, while this year this group of imports were valued at $480,813,000, or 15 per cent. of the total. This increase was an incidental also to increased industrial activity. Manufactured foodstuffs in 1914 made up 14 per cent. of the total imports, while this year the percentage is 9; and of other finished manufactures the percentage in 1914 was 22, and 18 this year. Finished manufactures, generally speaking, are competitive products, and the relatively large imports of 1914 without question served to aggravate the unemployment situation then existing.

In the light of experience the contention cannot be sustained that reduced duties on competitive products would increase the aggregate quantities of all things consumed in the United States. On the other hand, the evidence is most convincing that the converse would obtain. Assuming that temporarily the importation of competitive products would increase with reduced duties and that the consumption of such commodities in this country would not increase, but would decline, it would mean but one thing and that is that American labor would be deprived of making these commodities to the extent of the increase in the imports plus the decrease in consumption. The decrease in consumption and the increase in imports would all be at the expense of American industry—it would be at the expense of the purchasing power of this nation and eventually would reduce this country's purchases of foreign products, whether competitive or non-competitive, dutiable or free.

Increase in Duty-Free Products.

Under the present law, generally speaking, competitive articles are dutiable and non-competitive articles free of duty. While imports are steadily increasing, the increases are in the duty-free or non-competitive products. For instance, dutiable imports in 1926 were about one and one half billion, about the same as in 1924, but free imports increased in the three years from two billion to nearly three billion dollars.

Under our present American policy, foreign countries are able to sell the United States increasing quantities of the class of things the United States does not produce. As a whole, these increased imports are of a kind that supply the needs of this nation's industries and not the kind that injure such industries by displacing what they produce.

No doubt to those who have been misled into the belief that at present foreign countries cannot sell to the United States, the statement that during the fiscal year 1926 no less than 50.2 per cent. of the total imports were free of duty is a distinct surprise and the fact that in 1926 imports free of duty exceeded the total of imports both dutiable and free of the year 1914 by more than 60 per cent. is a revelation.

It is apparent that reduced tariff rates would materially change the kinds of imports and the percentages of the various wheat groups to the totals, but it is anything but apparent that the totals would be increased, and there is much to indicate that the totals would decline. It is a fallacy to assume that reduced import duties will enable this country to increase its purchases abroad, for the measuring stick is the nation's purchasing power and not the amount of duty collected.

With business activity and high wages the United States will seem dingus to be of great economic benefit to other nations; but any economic policy that will occasion unemployment in the United States and reduce its purchasing power will diminish this country's consumption of commodities and cause large surpluses of the world's principal products and result in serious financial losses to them.

A cut in the tariff would materially reduce rather than increase our purchases abroad; it would not enable foreign countries to sell more in the American markets, but would prevent them from selling as much; it would not help certain foreign nations to recover from the losses occasioned by the war, but would retard such recovery.

Consider again what our tariff policy has meant to American labor. I know personally of one manufacturing company which has plants in France, in Brazil and in the United States. The wages paid labor today at these three plants reduced to American currency are as follows: Unskilled labor gets in France 7½ cents an hour, in Brazil 12½ cents; in this country 40 cents. Skilled labor 10½, 21 and 65 cents respectively. In other words, a laborer in this industry gets six times more per hour in America that he does in France for the same kind of work. Can it be to the interest of the United States that equality be established by the removal of the protection of the tariff?

Case of the Aluminum Company.

As an example I might cite the case of the Aluminum Company of America. The raw product of aluminum is bauxite, deposits of which occur in the United States, in British Guiana, and in many other countries of the world. The principal cost of the manufacture of aluminum is electric power and labor. The cheapest power in the world is hydroelectric; the cheapest labor is foreign.

The Aluminum Company has many power properties in the United States, but others in foreign countries, and the largest power of all is now being developed in Canada. From its plants in the United States the American market is supplied; from its plants abroad the foreign market is supplied. If the present tariff on aluminum is maintained, developments for the expansion of domestic business will be made in the United States.

If the tariff be removed, those developments will occur in foreign countries, and part of the American market be supplied from abroad. The effect of removing the tariff on aluminum would not in the least be to hurt the Aluminum Company, but to deprive the United States of the benefit of enlarged manufactory here. Less capital will be invested here and less labor employed.

The same condition holds true of a great many other large manufacturing industries in the United States. If the tariff is taken off, a larger share of manufacturing will be done abroad, where the costs are less.

The United States is the largest customer in the world today. If we were not prosperous and able to buy, Europe also would suffer. It is inconceivable to me that American labor will ever consent to the abolition of protection, which would bring the American standard of living down to the level of that in Europe, or that the American farmer could survive if the enormous consuming power of the people in this country was curtailed and his market at home destroyed.

DAWES DENOUNCES PRIMARY ELECTIONS

He Declares They Tend to Substitute Minority Rule for Representative Government.

LOCAL ISSUES STRESSED

Choice by Convention, He Tells Chicago Poles, Permits an Open Fight by Impartial Delegates.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—An attack upon the primary election system was made today by Vice President Dawes in an address before 8,000 Polish-Americans at the Municipal Pier, gathered to celebrate the sesquicentennial of American independence.

"The primary system makes possible the presentation of candidates selected by those having a business and personal interest in the continuance of the existing Administration," Mr. Dawes declared. "When this occurs we have exchanged representative government of the people for an oligarchy dominated by self-interest."

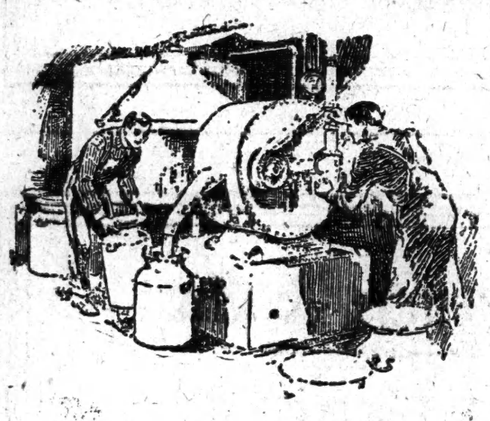
In his attack on the primary system, which he declared is inconsistent with the general plan of the Constitution, the Vice President called upon his audience to join him in his fight to nullify the "system that is subversive to the plan of democracy, permitting rule by an interested minority."

"The primary system," he said, "causes Senatorial contests that involve national issues to be fought out upon local and personal issues, because the candidates of a political party are selected, not by representatives of the party members, but directly by the members of the party themselves. In former days through the nomination by political conventions under a representative system the candidate selected better represented his party's position on great issues.

"An Administration having large patronage and large business contracts to give always holds its interested vote for its selected candidate. The more men running on the primary ticket for the place in question, the more certain is the organization to name its man who can secure a plurality against a divided impartial majority vote. In many instances the nominee of a party selected by a plurality vote with a majority vote divided among several candidates will represent ideas obnoxious to the majority of his party. Yet when he is nominated the habit of party regularity will cause his election. The primary system, therefore, is responsible for the election of some men whose chief effort after election is to disorganize the party and fight its policies.

"The ballot in the primary is so large that voters cannot know the candidates. He votes in the dark for most minor offices. On the other hand a nominating convention would make possible an open fight by impartial delegates against possible corruption or a controlled candidate and better precipitates the issue before the people in the election."

Mr. Dawes paid tribute to Thaddeus Kosciuszko and to the friendliness that exists between America and Poland.



In 1892

L. B. Halsey, then head of the Sheffield Farms Company, installed a pasteurizing machine in his plant at Bloomville, New York. So far as we know this was the first trial of commercial pasteurization in America. The device was of German manufacture and had hitherto been used by butter makers only. It was a continuous heater employing what came to be known as the "flash" method. The milk was heated up to 185° instantaneously by contact with steam-heated coils.

As crude as this machine was in principle and in design it started discussion and experiments. It was found that infants fed on this pasteurized milk suffered less from intestinal troubles. Laboratory workers found that heat destroyed all pathogenic bacteria in infected milk. The best scientific minds in the country took up the study of milk pasteurization.

The old machine at Bloomville started something. The most thrilling, and from the public health standpoint, the most beneficent movement in the history of milk.

AMERICAN THEATRE IN LONDON PLANNED

SAYS BACKING IS ASSURED

British Director Deplores Growth of Vulgarity on Stage and Slip-Shod Productions.

The establishment of an American theatre in London and an English theatre here, which will present the best plays of each country to the theatregoers of the other, is being undertaken by Basil Dean, the English director who directed the plays of Noel Coward and other English playwrights here last season. There is a political purpose in Mr. Dean's plans, for he does believe that plays are an excellent vehicle for interpreting the character of each nation.

Mr. Dean also said he was somewhat perturbed at evidences he has found in England and America of hasty preparation of plays to meet a demand, a haste which, he declared, sacrificed art and fundamental understanding of the technique of the theatre. He was astonished, he said, as a friend of the American theatre at the vulgarities which have crept into recent plays in imitation of the vital writings of Stallings, O'Neill and others, who merely used some of the crudities of life for the purpose of interpreting life.

Financial Backing Assured.

Means to carry out his plan have already been assured to him, Mr. Dean said, and he hoped, before returning home in the Spring to have a theatre here. He is now arranging to produce four plays here. "The Constant Nymph," which he wrote in collaboration with Margaret Kennedy; "Who Cares" and two plays by Noel Coward, which he will produce independently, "This Was a Man" and "The Queen Was in the Parlor."

"It has seemed to me for some time that there was need for a theatre here in which English plays could be produced with English methods and English actors and actresses," said Mr. Dean. "There are some plays which we do a little better than any one else, for instance, what you might call the 'drawing room comedy' type of play, which is pre-eminently English. And there are things which Americans do particularly well, which are distinctly American, such as O'Neill's plays and 'They Knew What They Wanted,' which is being produced very successfully in London.

"Of course, my purpose is one of interpretation, and I feel that such theatres should do much to bring about a mutual understanding. The English comedy is not altogether representative of English life, and I do not want to suggest that that is the only sort of English play we will produce here. We want to make the English theatre here a vehicle for anything which is artistic and will help to interpret England to America, and that applies also to an American theatre in my own country. There will not be much done this year, but I think next season we can start."

Hails Russian Influence.

Mr. Dean was in Russia last Spring, where he saw the Moscow Art Theatre in its home, and was enthusiastic in his praise of the great change it had wrought in the drama of Central Europe.

"Their methods are so different from those of most English and American producers," he said. "Most of the new things in the theatre have come from Central Europe, but people forget that the creators of the new have been thoroughly trained in fundamental theatrical technique. Anything original to be worth while must be founded on a great classic tradition. We sometimes forget that and experiment too much without knowing what we are doing.

"There is a passion for the new in England and here which is misleading. Some one will go to Russia, for instance, and see a new ballet school in which there is very little dancing but rather a rapidly changing series of plastic poses. 'Ah,' they exclaim, 'that is new,' and they rush home to get together some untrained dancers and put on something which is a travesty on art. The same thing is done in the theatre.

"What we need is not a constant effort to be original, but a thorough groundwork in essential principles of dramatic art. Out of that will come new and original work guided by intelligent experience and knowledge of the medium in which we must work."

For a National Theatre.

"That is why I believe America should have a national theatre, a theatre in which there should be a striving for artistry first, for technical excellence, for knowledge of the theatre. Actors would be trained there, directors trained there, and from such a theatre would then spring the originality which is sought so unsatisfactorily at present. At present the stage is going to work at the wrong end, trying to build without a solid foundation.

"There is too much haste in production. I have seen its effects so vividly shown in the quality of the actors and actresses who want parts. The building of new theatres, the demand for new plays and the consequent need for actors have brought a lot of untrained people to the stage. They have one or two superficial successes and think they are thoroughly trained. All your good actresses, and you have many, have worked with patience and understanding to make themselves artists. This quick expansion of the theatre will end some day, and then all these poorly trained people will find their world crashing about them. This is just as true of England as of America.

"There is one thing in the American theatre this season which has struck me, and that is the vulgar imitation of some of the excellent and vital plays which were here last year. Plays like those of Stallings and O'Neill, to speak of only two, were vivid, vital things. But this year there are a number of plays which seem to have overlooked what O'Neill and Stallings were trying to do, and which use phrases and actions which should not be tolerated just to get a gasp from the gallery. That is ridiculous. It is merely weak and stupid imitation to give a thrill. Sex is necessary in the drama, because all life is ruled by sex, but it is not necessary to be vulgar about sex. When it is used to interpret life, to explain some of the great problems of human existence, then it is necessary, but not otherwise.

230,400,000 MATCHES ON BURNING SHIP

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Many thousands of people on the Southeast coast of England watched today one of the most thrilling spectacles ever provided. The steamer Falcon, bound from Ostend to London, was afire from stem to stern with flames leaping forty feet high. Her cargo included thousands of cases containing, it is estimated, 230,400,000 matches.

The crew had abandoned the vessel and two tugs were attempting to pull the flaming torch to safety. As darkness fell, the blazing ship lit up the sea for many miles around and practically all the residents and visitors of the seaside towns she passed in her twenty-five-mile dash turned out to watch the spectacle.

When off the Goodwin Lights the Falcon broke away from the tugs, drifted slowly ashore and went on the rocks near Dover, where the waves breaking over her slowly extinguished the flames.

SEEKS TO RESTRICT CITY'S HUGE BUDGET

Municipal Economy Committee Will Offer Safeguard Plan to Board of Estimate.

OFFICIAL 'CAN'TS' LISTED

McAneny Says Report Is Designed to Give the Board Continuing Control of Purse Strings.

The municipal broadcasting station, WNYC, would be closed down unless it devoted half of its periods to city business or entertainment and opened its studio to citizens discussing municipal policies; the Board of Transportation would be unable to spend its $5,000,000 appropriation unless it submitted detailed estimates like other departments, and departmental savings could not be spent without special approval by the Board of Estimate if the Board of Estimate adopts recommendations for budgetary economies which will be submitted at the budget hearing this morning by the Municipal Economy Committee.

George McAneny, Vice Chairman of the Municipal Economy Committee, also member of the Mayor's Commission, and for six years a member of the Board of Estimate as President, first of the Borough of Manhattan, and then the Board of Aldermen, will present the recommendations of the committee. In commenting on the "strings" which his committee will propose that the Board of Estimate attach to the record-breaking 1927 budget of $474,900,000, Mr. McAneny explained that the "terms and conditions" advised by the committee were designed to give the Board of Estimate continuing control over the purse-strings of the City of New York.

Mr. McAneny's Statement.

"There are already several terms and conditions which limit departments in spending appropriations," said Mr. McAneny. "For example, the Board of Estimate will not permit savings to be spent without its special approval. The increases for the Health Department next year can't be spent until Commissioner Harris reports his plan for using them. The $1,539,080.01 for higher salaries and per diem rates next year, including the one cent, can't be spent until there has been an investigation and special action by the board. For twenty years different boards of estimate have found terms and conditions upon budget spending very helpful in making the tax dollar go further.

Lists New Safeguards.

The Municipal Economy Committee enumerates some of the new safeguards which it would have "set around the spending of the city's millions," as follows:

"For example, unless the Board of Estimate after further investigation especially permits, the following 'can'ts' must be observed:

"Departments can't pay per diem employes for days when they do not work or employ any per diem workers for Sundays and holidays except for reasons approved by the Board of Estimate. Vacancies on June 1 can't be filled by department heads.

"Passenger automobiles can't be used unless records show clearly by whom, for what purpose, where and at what cost. The Mayor's department can't have automobiles repaired outside the central repair shop and central repairing can't be done there unless the Controller first certifies that the records used will show exactly what central repair costs. Revenue producing activities can't spend their appropriations unless the Controller certifies that their records tell clearly what jobs cost, including interest and payments on the city's debt for sites and buildings, water, light, &c.

"Increases for street cleaning can't be spent and new street cleaning machinery can't be bought until a board of three engineers has reported how much time and money are saved by using motor equipment instead of horses and men.

"The Board of Transportation can't spend any of its $5,000,000 until it has submitted detailed estimates like other departments and until the budget director has compared the forces required for different kinds of work and the salaries to be paid, with allowances for similar work by other departments.

"Purchases can't be made by departments unless the budget director reports that the central purchasing commissioner can't buy as well or better.

"WNYC, the city's radio station, can't go on unless it assigns at least half of its periods to information or entertainment with respect to municipal business and unless it permits citizens, under reasonable regulations, to discuss city policies and what happens to the tax dollar.

"Employes for the old Court Houses in City Hall Square can't be continued on the payroll after the new Court House is occupied.

"Special lawyers outside the large regular staff allowed the Corporation Counsel can't be engaged.

Several other proposals are made by the Municipal Economy Committee for giving the Board of Estimate and the public more facts before future large expenditures are allowed.

NEW AIDS ENLISTED IN JEWISH CAMPAIGN

MRS. BORG LEADS WOMEN

She Will Have More Than 180 Assistants--Federation in Brooklyn Rallies Tonight.

The $4,720,000 Fall campaign of the Federation for the Support of Jewish Philanthropic Societies has enlisted many new volunteers to help make it a success, Sol M. Strook, President, announced yesterday. He said Arthur Lehman, Samuel Sachs and Edwin H. Stern had accepted associate chairmanships of the bankers' and brokers' division, of which Albert J. Erdman is councilor, and that Henry Morgenthau, former Ambassador to Turkey, would be Chairman of the Special Prospects' Committee, with Eli H. Bernheim as his associate. The women's division will be led by Mrs. Sidney C. Borg, with more than 180 vice and team chairmen, a young men's division by Mrs. Z. D. Bernstein, and diamonds and jewelry by August Goldsmith and Lawrence S. Meyers.

The list includes the following new division heads:

Millinery, Abe N. Adelson, Charles J. Cohen and Frank Rabinovicm; cotton goods, Saul F. Dribben; boots and shoes, Miles Bleecker; social workers, Jack Nadel; laces and embroideries, David E. Schwab; pawnbrokers, Benjamin Fox; lighter women's apparel and decorative textiles, Dudley D. Sicher; children's and infants' wear, Joseph Love and William Neugass; corsets and brassieres, I. R. Smith; gloves, Harry J. Louis; kimonos and house dresses, Isaac Ginsberg; knit goods and sweaters, Daniel Rheinauer; waste products, wool, Nat C. Meyers; labels and tags, Julius Reis.

Surgical and dental suplies and instruments, Dr. Leon L. Watters; woolens, men's wear, Louis Ritenberg and Louis Surut; east side woolens, Samuel I. Cohen; silks, Robert Rosenthal; upholstery, Mark H. Rogers; woolens, women's wear, Harry Horvitz and Charles H. Silver; yarns, threads, beads and art needlework, Joseph Polack and Miss Uhry; leather, hides and skins, Robert S. Arbib; leather goods and trunk bags, Sol Mutterperl and Morris White; toy association, Joshua L. Cowen; machinery, Walter Lehman; laundries, Sol Kashman; lodges and fraternal orders, Adolph Stern and others.

The Special Prospects' Committee held its first meeting last night at the Park Lane Hotel, it was announced. The business men's council of the Federation will meet at lunch next Friday at 12:30 at the Hotel Pennsylvania to discuss plans for a rally at that hotel on Sunday, Nov. 7. The executive committee of the Real Estate Club of the Federation will meet at the Hotel Biltmore next Thursday noon to complete arrangements for celebration of its fifth anniversary concurrently with the tenth anniversary of the Federation on Nov. 14.

Mr. Strook further announces that the first of a series of "Federation breakfasts" would be held today at the Hotel Pennsylvania. At these breakfasts, campaign executives will confer on developments of the previous twenty-four hours.

The Brooklyn Federation of Jewish Charities announced that it would hold a rally tonight at the Unity Club, Bedford Avenue and Dean Street, at which leaders in every industry will discuss plans for the campaign to be launched on Nov. 1. Jack Gumpert, under whose auspices the drive is to be conducted, and Justice Mitchell May of the Supreme Court, who is the Federation's President, will speak.

EIGHTY-FOUR LOST ON BRITISH WAR SLOOP

Valerian Went Down in Caribbean Hurricane—Commander Among 19 Saved.

LONDON, Oct. 24 (AP).—Members of the crew of the British naval sloop Valerian, lost when she was sunk in the recent hurricane south of Bermuda, numbered about eighty.

This is the estimate of the Admiralty, which in a brief statement relative to the disaster gives the names of nineteen survivors among them that of the vessel's commander, William Usher. The Admiralty lists the total crew as numbering "about 100."

The Valerian was a submarine hunter during the war, and recently was engaged in customs work. She measured 1,250 tons and carried two 4-inch guns and four 3-pounders.

The King has sent through the Admiralty a message of condolence and sympathy to the bereaved relatives.

HALIFAX, N. S., Oct. 24 (AP).—The loss of life in the sinking of the British naval sloop Valerian was placed at eighty-four in dispatches received by cable from Bermuda tonight. The belief was expressed that the sloop foundered after her engines had been smothered by high seas.

Advices received at the office of the Halifax and Bermuda Cable Company here said that the Valerian was on her second voyage to the Bahamas, carrying relief to the inhabitants of the islands who had suffered in an earlier storm. The British naval vessel Cape Town picked up nineteen survivors, but it was believed that the remainder of the sloop's crew of 103 perished.

The British freighter Eastway, whose distress signals were picked up Friday night, was lost in the storm. Only twelve of her crew were saved.

15,000 HONOR DEBS AT GARDEN MEETING

LEADER CALLED HUMANIST

Appeals to the men and women of the Socialist movement in the United States to rededicate their lives to the ideals of Eugene V. Debs were made yesterday afternoon at Madison Square Garden at a memorial meeting to the Socialist leader, who died last Wednesday.

Nearly 15,000 men, women and children attended. Some appeared at Madison Square Garden at 8 A. M., although the meeting was scheduled for 2 P. M. At 10 o'clock 1,000 were in line despite the rain. The doors were opened at noon.

The platform was draped in red and black. The choir of the Workmen's Circle sang "The Funeral March of the Russian Revolutionaries" and the audience joined in singing "The Oath," a Jewish revolutionary hymn. James Phillips sang Henley's "Invictus," a stanza of which Debs wrote as his farewell. The meeting ended with the singing of the "International" by the audience.

List of Speakers.

The speakers were Algernon Lee, Director of the Rand School; James Oneal, editor of The New Leader; Abraham Cahan, editor of The Jewish Daily Forward; Jessie Stephen of the British Labor Party; Joseph Schlossberg, Secretary-Treasurer of the Amalgamated Clothing Workers; Municipal Court Justice Jacob Panken, Socialist candidate for Governor; B. C. Vladek, manager of The Jewish Daily Forward; Frank R. Crosswaith of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters, former Assemblyman A. I. Shiplacoff, Joseph Baskin of the Workmen's Circle, Morris Feinstone of the United Hebrew Trades, former Assemblyman William Karlin, Leonard Frisina of the Italian Chamber of Labor and Morris Novik of the Young People's Socialist League. The Rev. Dr. Norman Thomas presided.

Mr. Oneal, who knew Debs in Terre Haute, where they were both born, praised the late leader as "the noblest and most courageous man of our generation." He spoke of him as not only a great Socialist, "the ripe flower and fruition of this liberating movement, but a wonderful human being, above all a humanist and lover of mankind."

Justice Panken said that if Debs were able he would send a message of cheer and not of sadness, and would urge his comrades to continue the struggle for their goal.

At the Community Church, Park Avenue and Thirty-fourth Street, yesterday morning the Rev. John Haynes Holmes eulogized Debs as "the only Christian" of his time.

"I loved Gene Debs to the very bottom of my soul," Mr. Holmes declared. "We think of Debs primarily as a Socialist, but the Socialists have no exclusive claim to him; he belongs to us all; he belongs to every one who has ideals in his heart."

The International Labor Defense of whose Executive Committee Eugene V. Debs was a member, will hold a memorial mass meeting for him at Carnegie Hall tonight. The Workers (Communist) Party and others have been invited to participate in the meeting.

To Seek $7,500,000 for Palestine.

A campaign of the United Palestine Appeal for $7,500,000 will be launched at a meeting of the Extraordinary Conference on Palestine in Boston, Nov. 21, it was announced yesterday. A special committee, headed by Nathan Straus, has issued the call. Dr. Chaim Weizmann, President of the World Zionist Organization, now on his way to this country, will report on conditions in Palestine at the conference.

Brooklyn Hebrew Home Dinner.

Joseph V. McKee, President of the Board of Aldermen, Borough President James J. Byrne of Brooklyn and Federal Judge Grover M. Moscowitz were guests of honor last night at a dinner at the Brooklyn Jewish Centre, 667 Eastern Parkway, Brooklyn, given by the Brooklyn Hebrew Home and Hospital for the Aged, in honor of its annual day supporters, each of whom contributes $100 or more a year to the home. Supreme Court Justice Edward Lazansky was toastmaster and the speakers were Rabbi H. I. Leventhal and Kings County Judge A. I. Nova. There were 536 guests at the dinner.

WOMAN IS ACQUITTED OF BLINDING HUSBAND

Mrs. Meyerson and Family Agree to Provide for Him the Rest of His Life.

After deliberating until after 3 o'clock yesterday morning, the jury in the case of Mrs. Frieda Meyerson, charged with throwing acid in the face of her husband, Isadore, and causing him to become blind, returned to Part III of the Kings County Court with a verdict of not guilty. The jury began its consideration on Saturday afternoon.

After the verdict was announced Judge Algernon L. Nova ordered a poll of the jury taken at the request of Assistant District Attorney Joseph Gallagher, the prosecutor. Following the poll Mrs. Meyerson and her attorney, Harold W. Reitman of 188 Montague Street, expressed their gratitude to the jury. In discharging Mrs. Meyerson from custody Judge Nova asked her to see that her husband was taken care of.

The act that Mrs. Meyerson was charged with committing took place on April 27, 1924. Her trial began last Monday. In her defense Mrs. Meyerson denied that she threw acid and contended that her husband accidentally got in the way of some scalding hot water she was using for cleansing purposes. Mrs. Meyerson lives at 806 Eastern Parkway, where she is employed as a housekeeper. Meyerson lives at 140 Clara Street.

After leaving court Mrs. Meyerson and members of her family met at the home of Mr. Reitman to consider plans for caring for Mr. Meyerson. Mrs. Meyerson agreed to send $7.50 a week, half of her weekly earnings, to her husband. Her brothers, Louis and Harry Hoffer, agreed to make up any deficit to keep Meyerson supplied with the necessities of life. They also agreed that in the event of the death of their sister they would support Meyerson for the rest of his life.

$75,000 MORE SENT FOR CUBAN RELIEF

HAVANA BURIES 117 VICTIMS

Food Kitchens Are Established in Hurricane Stricken Area—Extortioners Punished.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—An additional fund of $75,000 was today authorized by the American Red Cross for relief of hurricane victims in Cuba, following receipt of a report from the Cuban Red Cross describing the death and destruction in the island and stating that Cuban Red Cross funds were insufficient to meet the needs.

This brings the total American Red Cross contribution to $100,000, in addition to which $10,000 was placed at the disposal of American Ambassador Crowder at Havana for relief of American sufferers.

Ambassador Crowder also reported to the State Department on the seriousness of the situation in Cuba. The American Red Cross has offered to the Cuban Red Cross supplies of typhoid and other serums now in the Florida relief area.

The text of the Cuban Red Cross message acknowledging the first contribution of $25,000 and relating the plight of the Cuban people read:

"We have received the most generous gift of $25,000 from our sister society through the United States Embassy. This aid will in part relieve the great suffering of the families caused by the hurricane. Information is the damage will reach 600 dead, 5,000 injured. Destruction of towns is related in former cable. Funds of Cuban Red Cross are insufficient to take care of the damage. We will never forget the very kind aid of the American Red Cross."

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 24 (AP).—The bodies of 117 storm victims have already been buried here. The Government has found it necessary to ask for outside aid. The American Embassy remained open all last night and today in an endeavor to arrange the delivery of supplies to the stricken area. The American army and navy have been asked for cots and 1,000 large tents as temporary shelter for the homeless.

Relief commissions are distributing free food from kitchens which have been established throughout the storm zone. More than $5,000,000 is available for relief work among the poorer people. Water is scarce and electric lights are still lacking in a greater part of the city.

FOR LESS TALK ON RELIGION

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 24.—The Rev. Dr. John M. Thomas, President of Rutgers College, speaking to Princeton undergraduates in chapel this morning said that this was an age of publicity, but that publicity already played too active a part in religion.

"We talk too much about our religion," he said. "We become too careless in speaking of a thing which should be so sacred to us. It would be better if we discoursed less on the subject.

"I was asked not long ago to be one of a hundred sponsors of an advertising campaign for religion. Undoubtedly it was sincere. I hope it does good, but one shrinks from seeing the love of God blazoned on the billboards. There is a better way than that—the way of the Christian in his home or church, where he does not advertise either his religion or his faith. That is the way of true religion."

Kenworthy Quits Liberals.

LONDON, Oct. 24 (AP).—The split in the Liberal Party, which recently brought about the resignation from the leadership of the Earl of Oxford and Asquith, has led to further defection.

Commander the Hon. Joseph Montague Kenworthy, one of the most active of the Left Wing Liberal leaders, announces that he has joined the Labor Party.

ENGLISH YOUTH THREW MOTHER IN PARIS LAKE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—The mystery of an attempt upon the life of an English visitor to Paris, Mrs. Elizabeth Conrett, 63 years old, had a tragic denouement early this morning when her son of 19 confessed to the police that he had struck his mother three times with a sharp paper cutter, taken her bag and thrown her in the Bois de Boulogne Lake, in the expectation that she would drown.

Clever work by two of the best detectives in Paris lead to the suspicion that the youth committed the revolting crime.

The mother, although in a desperate condition, has tried vainly to protect her youngest son, explaining that it was an unknown man who tried to kill her.

The police at first thought it was an Apache, but when the young man failed to come to the hospital after he was notified of his mother's mishap, suspicions were aroused.

At his boarding house today, Robert Conrett, who is employed by a local bank, calmly confessed the crime.

"I asked my mother to meet me in a secluded part of the Bois," he said. "When she came I struck her three times and threw her in the lake."

While at first refusing to give any other reason except his need of money, Conrett later told the police that if his mother died he would "tell the truth about the whole matter."

Mrs. Conrett's condition remains critical and her oldest son in London has been summoned.

Surgeons for Gas in War.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP).—The American Legion was assured today of the support of the Association of Military Surgeons in its fight against the outlawing of poisonous gas warfare, which has been demanded by the State Department and which is provided by the Geneva Protocol.

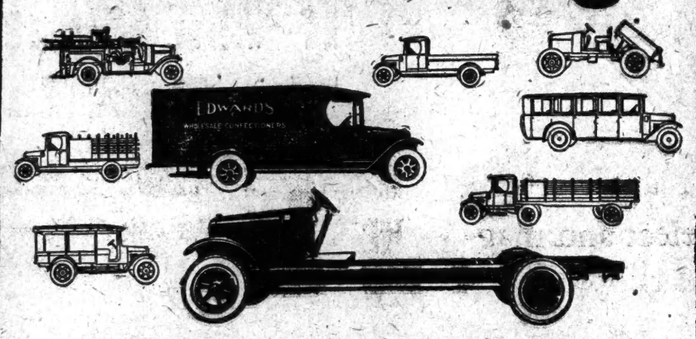
Announcing



the most complete line of 4 and 6-cylinder Speed Trucks

The Harvester organization announces a complete line of improved Speed Trucks of six distinct chassis designs to meet every requirement imaginable for loads up to 1½ tons.

Every International Speed Truck is a truck from the ground up—not a rebuilt passenger car. Engine, clutch, transmission, axles, springs, frame, and all the other essentials are the result of 22 years of truck building experience.

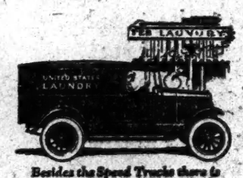
Whether your loads run to bulk or weight, whether your business calls for style and distinction or plain utility in its hauling equipment—there is a 4 or 6-cylinder Speed Truck in either a 1¼ or 1½-ton chassis made to meet your needs exactly. Come in and look them over.

The International line also includes Heavy-Duty Trucks up to 5 tons capacity, Motor Coaches for all requirements and the McCormick-Deering Industrial Tractor.

MODEL S is built to carry a 1¼-ton load. It comes equipped with a 4 or 6-cylinder power plant and with any type of body for regular hauling and delivery.

MODEL SL—safe and low and easy to work with—is a 1½-ton chassis with either a 4 or 6-cylinder engine and a wheelbase of 160 inches. The top of the frame is only 24 inches from the ground.

MODEL SD is a handy, specially-built 1½-ton chassis with a wheelbase of 110 inches, suitable for dump or tractor work. It is ideal for general contracting, road building, and trailer hauling.



Besides the Speed Trucks there is the "Special Delivery," a fast and sturdy 4-cylinder model for ½-ton loads. Any type of body.

Do You Give? —What?

When the emergency call came from the Jews overseas Federation gladly put its own needs aside during the first half of this year. Why?—To encourage the campaign to raise funds for the relief of sufferers abroad. And New York Jewry did its duty.

BUT NOW—

FEDERATION needs your financial and personal aid. It needs that aid in behalf of the suffering, helpless and needy Jews in our midst.

Ninety-one philanthropic institutions comprise FEDERATION. They have done—are doing—a wonderful work among the poor and distressed of New York. But they must have your assistance and they must have it NOW.

For this present year, 1926, we must have your assistance NOW. Give financially to the utmost that you can afford. THEN give us just one day of your time to induce ten other persons to give.

The hour has struck to care for the need at home.

ONE OF THE WONDERS OF THE WORLD

NON-SECTARIAN GROUP

To Be Erected at Hartsdale, Westchester County, Within a Few Minutes by Automobile, Bus or Train From New York City Line

MAIN ENTRANCE

MEMORIAL CHAPEL
The last rites of your blessed dead—the words that consign your loved one to the tomb will be repeated here

Among the towering hills of Westchester lies beautiful Ferncliff Cemetery, away from the rush, turmoil and maddening crowds, where one's loved ones may rest in safety, quiet and peace. No more beautiful spot can be found; located at Hartsdale, Westchester County, New York, and within a few minutes by motor, bus or train from the New York City line and its environs.

It is the intention of the Directors and Trustees to spend a large amount of money to make Ferncliff Cemetery one of the most select and magnificent burial places in the world, with its great multi-crypt mausoleums, private tombs, cloisters, obelisks, gardens, statuary, etc. There is nothing approaching it in beauty and grandeur in the world. From this spot one may see the Orange Mountains, Palisades of New Jersey, and Oyster Bay, Long Island, in the distance.

MAIN CORRIDOR
With our faith in the resurrection of the dead we believe that Christ has prepared a beautiful home for the soul in heaven

ENTRANCE TO PRIVATE ROOM
Here you have the protection of privacy surrounded by the most holy influences

HERETOFORE ONLY THE WEALTHY COULD ENTOMB THEIR DEAD IN A MAUSOLEUM OR TOMB, BUT NOW THE MUTUAL PLAN MAKES IT POSSIBLE FOR THE PEOPLE OF MODERATE MEANS TO HAVE THE SAME PRECIOUS PRIVILEGE

The cost will surprise you, being lower than first class ground burial or cremation, and this is the last and only expense

Since the beginning of the world it has been the recognized duty of man to reverence his dead—to give appropriate expression of his sincere affection and fidelity by providing a suitable resting place for them, according to the custom of the times. It is a comforting thought, as far as consolation is possible, to know that one has done all he can to make the last abode of those who have gone before beautiful and soothing to the eye of the living who come there to reverence their memory. Just as nations honor their illustrious dead by providing an enduring monument so that their names may be perpetuated for all time, it is now possible to do as much for your own beloved dead at no greater cost than that of decent ordinary ground burial. You should bear in mind that mausoleum entombment is the ideal way to care for your dear, beloved dead, and is in keeping with the progress of the times; other methods belong to bygone ages. The directors of this humanitarian movement personally request you to clip the coupon from this notice and send it to the address below, and you will receive a beautifully illustrated book describing this magnificent and imposing edifice that will enable you to get a full, comprehensive idea of its scope. In the event of death before the completion of the mausoleum, the remains will be placed in the Ferncliff Cemetery Vault, free of charge, until the mausoleum is completed.

MAIN STAIRWAYS AND ENTRANCE TO CHAPEL

EXTERIOR VIEW OF NAVE AND CLOISTER
These Mausolea cultivate a sublime idea of faith—They teach that the dead are but "Prisoners of Hope" until the resurrection

THE FERNCLIFF CLOISTER
The only one in America—where you may honor your beloved dead as did the ancients and perpetuate your name and memory forever

You have the choice of just two things. The one typifying death in darkness; death in the depths; looking down, always down, into the grave. The other typifying death in light; death in sunshine and brightness; death in the hope of the resurrection.

CHANGES IN BOXES AT OPERA ARE MANY

TO OPEN WITH 'LA VESTALE'

Initial Performance Next Monday—Important Transfers Among the Patrons.

The Metropolitan Opera Company yesterday made public its list of boxholders for the new season, which will open Monday evening of next week with a revival of "La Vestale." It will be the nineteenth season under the direction of Giulio Gatti-Casazza, General Manager. The box holders' list shows many changes.

Mrs. Ogden Goelet heads the list of parterre box-holders, holding Box No. 1, which she shared last season with Mrs. Richard T. Wilson on Fridays. Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, Mrs. M. Orme Wilson and Mrs. E. Reeve-Merritt again have Box 3, which is assigned to Mrs. J. Sargent Cram on alternate Mondays.

The August Belmont estate, Frank V. Storrs and Mrs. Charles T. Proctor are no longer assigned to Box 4 with Mrs. Clarence M. Hyde. The new occupants are Mrs. O. G. Jennings, on even Mondays, and Mrs. Clarence M. Hyde on odd matinees. Mr. Storrs transfers to Box 18, where other occupants will include Mrs. Charles B. Alexander.

John F. Montgomery and Mrs. William Prentice are assigned to Box 5, also used on different days by the estate of George Peabody Wetmore, Mrs. Harold Brown, Mrs. John Aspegren and W. Watts Sherman.

Vanderbilts Relinquish Box 6.

W. K. Vanderbilt and Harold S. Vanderbilt have relinquished Box 6 to Frazier Jelke, R. Ogden Bacon, Tenbroeck M. Terhune and Dr. J. Henry Lancashire.

Vincent Astor, who last year shared Box 7 with the late Frank A. Munsey, Frazier Jelke and Mrs. Robert S. Brewster, shares it this year with William T. Dewart, executor of the Munsey estate and new owner of The Sun.

Dr. Walter B. James is an addition to Box 11, assigned also to Arthur Curtiss James and Archer M. Huntington.

Otto H. Kahn, Chairman of the Metropolitan Opera, will share Box 14 with a group showing several changes. H. B. Steffanson and Percival S. Hill drop out and Herbert L. Bodman is added.

Clarence H. Mackay Transfers.

Clarence H. Mackay, an opera director, transfers his box holding from No. 15, which he formerly shared with C. Oliver Iselin, Miss Iselin and J. J. Watson Jr., to No. 27, which he will share with John T. Pratt, R. Fulton Cutting and George D. Pratt.

Mrs. Finley J. Shepard is no longer listed as holder on Thursdays of No. 25. John N. Willys, who last year was a holder in Box 26, will be one in No. 25 this season. Additional changes in Box 26 include releases by Mrs. Charles Frederick Hoffman and Aymar Johnson, and the addition of Mrs. Robert C. Gardner, Mrs. A. Pavenstedt and Mrs. James McLean.

Mrs. Stewart Duncan and Frank B. Keech are added to the list of holders of Box 29.

Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt will be in Box 31, with the same holders as last year, and, in addition, Mrs. H. C. Cushing 3d and William H. Vanderbilt.

Mrs. E. C. Jameson, Henry Parrish and E. Farrar Bateson are newcomers to Box 33.

J. P. Morgan is the sole holder of Box 35.

$52,268,000 TO CITY TAX FOR 18 MONTHS

ALBANY, Oct. 24.—Earnings of income taxpayers, the increasing use of the auto and general business prosperity are reflected in checks totaling $52,268,000 sent by State Controller Vincent B. Murphy to New York during the last eighteen months as the city's share in motor vehicle, franchise and income taxes.

Figures revealing these returns were made public today by Mr. Murphy in a statement showing the State's financial turnover since Jan. 1, 1925. The entire amount returned to counties throughout the State totals $84,804,000.

The sources of these returns were: Motor vehicle tax, $12,911,000; income tax, $48,369,000; and franchise tax, $23,582,000.

During the period covered by Mr. Murphy's statement, $504,095,000 in revenues passed through his department, while $481,055,000 was paid out to meet the State's bills. These amounts includes the sum collected for the localities and returned to them.

Adding these totals together the gross turnover of the public dollar in the State recahes the amazing total of $985,000,000.

"Our cash balance is melting rapidly," said the Controller. "At the close of the 1924-1925 fiscal year, it was $25,000,000. At the end of the current fiscal year our balance, according to present estimates, will be only $10,000,000."

The table issued by the Controller of tax returns by the State to the localities shows that New York City received nearly two-thirds of those funds. Next comes Erie County with $5,457,000; Westchester $3,489,000, Monroe $3,114,000 and Onondaga $1,776,000.

To Try for Seaplane Speed Record.

The second of the two racing seaplanes to be used by the American naval fliers in the Schneider Cup race at Norfolk, Va., in Nov. 11, will be tested this afternoon when Lieut. F. H. Conant, U. S. N., who will fly the plane in the cup race, will attempt to break the world's seaplane record, at Port Washington, L. I., over a three kilometre course. Lieut. Conant expects to attain a speed of more than 250 miles per hour. The plane is one of those used in last year's Pulitzer and Schneider Cup races with the original motor replaced by a 12 cylinder V-type 700 horsepower Curtiss engine.

such notice is sent out by any one, I'll tell you right now I will reconvene the Grand Jury myself at the earliest possible moment, whether the Prosecutor is present or not. I see no reason why it should not conclude hearing the witnesses already summoned.

"Mr. Bergen told me yesterday that he had received a telegram from Senator Simpson asking him to call off the meeting of the Grand Jury set for Tuesday. The reason he gave was that he needed two witnesses who would not be available on that date. I think it is not unlikely that Senator Simpson had other reasons as well."

Simpson to Talk to Jurors.

Senator Simpson's comment was:

"Mr. Snyder can do as he likes. The situation is simply this: The State is not ready, owing to the fact that several witnesses are not available just now, to go ahead presenting evidence. If he wants to act without hearing the evidence, why that is quite characteristic of his attitude, and he can do so.

"It seems to me that the Grand Jury will be making a spectacle of itself if it goes ahead without the evidence. I shall appear before the Grand Jury on Tuesday to direct the attention of the Grand Jurors to certain things."

The Grand Jury, under the law, can subpoena witnesses and go into any angle of an investigation it elects to take up. It cannot initiate investigations, it was pointed out, but can act broadly in matters which the Prosecutor or District Attorney has introduced after a charge by a Supreme Court Justice. Justice Charles W. Parker has charged the present jury and nine witnesses have introduced the subject matter of the Hall-Mills case. The process of issuing subpoenas, followed by the Grand Jury, is for it to direct Prosecutor Bergen to produce witnesses whom it may name.

Senator Simpson indicated earlier that the exhumation of Mrs. Mills's body, which had been scheduled for 11 A. M. today, might be delayed. He said that Patrick Hayes, Chief Hudson County detective, who obtained the order for exhumation from Justice Parker on Friday night, would visit this city today. He planned to confer with Dr. Otto H. Schultze, medical expert on the staff of District Attorney Banton of Manhattan.

To Study Medical Testimony.

Chief Hayes will take with him copies of all the medical testimony in respect to the bodies. These will include the evidence given at the preliminary hearings at Somerville and also the findings of the physicians who performed autopsies on Dr. Hall and Mrs. Mills. Dr. Schultze will go over the reports to ascertain whether he can form an independent opinion on the method of death.

The New York expert, it was explained, would pay special attention to what the New Jersey physicians reported on the cut in the throat of the woman. He will also delve into alleged discrepancies in the reports made by Somerset County Physician William H. Long on the manner of entry and exit of the single bullet that ended the clergyman's life. There has been a divergence of opinion among the physicians on whether the bullet entered the temple and came out back of the ear, or vice versa.

In the event that Dr. Schultze finds the reports sufficient for his conclusions, the plan to exhume the body of Mrs. Mills, and later to exhume the body of Dr. Hall, probably will be abandoned. It was thought last night that Dr. Schultze would require at least today to study the reports.

Senator Simpson had discussed the postponement of the Grand Jury in the afternoon, before Mr. Snyder had dictated the course of the investigating body. The Senator explained that one of the witnesses who was not on hand was Jacob H. Van Peltz of New Brunswick. Mr. Van Peltz told the authorities last month that Gorsline had confided to him that he had been in De Russey's Lane with Miss Catherine Rastall on the night of the crime.

Change in Gorsline's Story.

Armed with Van Peltz's statement, the detectives went to Gorsline. He stuck to the story he had told for four years, that he had driven Miss Rastall directly to her home at 13 Senior Street after meeting her in front of the Y. M. C. A. in New Brunswick. After Gorsline had been questioned for twenty-one hours, he broke down and admitted that he had heard shots, screams and mumbled voices at the place and at the hour which Mrs. Jane Gibson, alleged eyewitness to the crime, named. It was Mrs. Gibson's story that led to the indictments in the case.

The special prosecutor said that Van Peltz was absent on a hunting trip. The Senator said that he hoped to have his evidence ready by Friday.

"The Grand Jury told me that they did not want the evidence piecemeal," he added, "but would rather have it all together. If I find that I am ready on Friday I shall go ahead. I am not however, going to let side issues like De Martini and Mrs. Clark hold up the trial. If I find that I am not ready on Friday the Grand Jury proceeding will have to go over until after the trial."

Mrs. Henry Stevens visited her husband in jail yesterday. She said they had "discussed politics in Lavalette, our home town." She reported all the prisoners cheerful.

Church Wedding for Tetrazzini.

FLORENCE, Italy, Oct. 24 (AP).—The religious marriage ceremony of Mme. Louise Tetrazzini, famous operatic singer, and Pietro Vernati was celebrated this morning in the Church of Santa Maria del Fiore. Bishop Fossati of Fiesole officiated. The couple left for their honeymoon in Perugia. The civil ceremony was performed on Saturday by Alderman Sebregdoni.

NEW YORKER'S DEATH STIRS OSSIPEE, N. H.

OSSIPEE, N. H., Oct. 24 (AP).—Earl Styles of New York died today at his Summer camp in Water Village, near here, under circumstances which tonight led to an investigation by County Solicitor William J. Britton.

Dr. E. B. Andrews, medical examiner, who was called to treat Styles after he had collapsed at the wheel of his automobile last night, said the man apparently had died from the effects of a powerful drug. An autopsy was ordered for tomorrow.

Mrs. Styles, who drove into town last night with her husband and a woman companion, said Styles visited Dr. E. W. Hodson and Dr. George W. Carroll in an attempt to obtain some medicine. Both doctors said they refused to fill his order, after which Styles drove away, collapsing on the way home.

Don't Handicap Good Equipment

MODERN office equipment, besides improving appearance, makes for convenience and efficiency—if the eyes that use it are not handicapped by glaring or misplaced lights.

Nature made daylight for eyes. That's why every Emeralite has a special screen that changes ordinary electric light into soft, eye-saving daylite—ideal for reading or working.

Emeralited offices look better—have contented workers — no eye-strain — greater output—and daylite on every desk.

Genuine Emeralites are branded for your protection and have the Daylite Screen. Buy them by name.

MUSIC

By OLIN DOWNES.

English Singers Delight.

A concert by the English Singers, who appeared yesterday afternoon in Town Hall, is for a listener a unique and unforgettable experience, a contact with a beauty that is rare and haunting, and interpretations that in their particular kind are unparalleled on the American concert stage. There may be other groups of singers in England who rival in the material and quality of their offering the six vocalists heard yesterday; here they stand alone and incomparable, because of the wonderful treasure of old English music which they reveal and the singularly eloquent, finished and atmospheric character of their performances.

It is now known, and the knowledge is rapidly spreading among music lovers, that the madrigal composers of Tudor England represented a flowering of her creative spirit that has not been before or since in her tonal history. Then was veritably a golden age of poetry and song, in which composers glorified verse and poets wrote rapturous verbal melody. A young nation, in a plenitude of strength and happiness, poured out its spirit in melody. The music of the old madrigal composers is a wonderful blend of exquisite thoughts and the most cunning workmanship. These composers, and the poets to whose verse they married their genius, touched upon many themes, some of them of profound sadness and poignancy, most of them tender and joyous like the May and the thyme. It is their art, old but imperishably young, which makes the greater part of the repertory of the group heard yesterday.

The program of that occasion contained so much that was lovely and surpassingly eloquent that it would be folly to attempt to discuss its details. Not only secular madrigals by Elizabethan and other composers were sung, but also sacred compositions—motets by William Byrd and Thomas Weelkes—some old folk-songs in characteristic arrangements by Vaughan Williams; three antique French Chansons of a delightfully naïve and archaic quality, by Charles Tessier, Josquin Deprés and Clement Janequin; Italian street cries sung in the manner formerly popular as interludes to puppet shows and farces of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries; later music in the form of duets and trios composed by Purcell and in an arrangement by E. W. Naylor; and further madrigals, a ballet and a canzonet by Thomas Morley, Orlando Gibbons and Weelkes. There was occasion again, as when the English singers appeared here for a single concert last season, to marvel at the variety of the composers' effects, the flexibility of the polyphonic writing, the extremely sensitive rendering of textual meanings, and the conciseness and concentratedness of ideas and workmanship. The composers wasted not a note on a superfluous period. Every tone, every detail of their fabric is important. Every nuance of meaning is there; a hundred effects for which composers would now employ a huge orchestra and many singers are achieved by two to six voices. Then there is the fine irregularity of meter, the vitality and freedom of the rhythms, the frequent harmonic boldness resulting upon fearless and masterly voice-leading and the modal character of many of the ideas. Finally, there is the true genius of English music in the fact that all these pieces are genuinely vocal, melodic in essence, simple and true. There was a time, then, when men thought such thoughts, and wrote such music!

In performance the English Singers merit the highest praise. They are not assembled together for purposes only of virtuosity and beauty of tone. There are many greater voices than those possessed by Flora Mann, Nellie Carson, Lillian Berger, Norman Stone, Norman Notley and Cuthbert Kelly. But among singers there are few indeed who will surpass these for intelligence, simple and unexaggerated feeling, sterling musicianship. They achieve a balance of parts nearer akin to a good string quartet than to the average quartet or larger group of singers. Also, these singers have ears. In almost all instances their intonation was of a singular purity. Certain cadences and chords were treated with the fineness of balance, the exactness of intonation of the string choir of a Toscanini orchestra. There was the finest observation of dynamics. The ensemble achieved a pianissimo that was a whisper and a fortissimo that offered the widest contrast, but never forced the voices past the limit of their natural capacity. And finally there was the treatment of the text—a recurring lesson in enunciation, pronunciation and nuance. How good it was to hear the lyrical treatment of the singing sounds, and the clean, honest mouthing of consonants and syllables! Good to hear this; good, too, to hear genuine English spoken, in certain intervals of the performances, from the stage. It was another matter than American English, which is a bastard tongue, and we are furthest from wishing to extinguish Americanism in the use of the mother language, but it was a beautiful thing to hear true English, sounding so.

There was not only the occasion to sing and enunciate most beautifully in this concert, but also, within carefully observed artistic limits, to touch the arts of the actor and the diseur. The interpretations ranged from the ineffable beauty and melancholy of Gibbons's "Silver Swan," the joyous murmurings, the distant laughter of Deprés's "Petite Camusette," to the toss-pot gusto of the "Wassail Song," set by Williams, and the humor, nearly farcical, of Purcell's "I Spy Celia," and "The Three Fairies." In certain instances vocal coloring, slight motions or facial changes made for more point, subtlety and infectious pleasure than are commonly communicated, even by diseurs and diseuses of fame and accomplishment.

As we have said, the occasion was unique. Long after the conclusion of the printed program the audience remained, to applaud and at last to cheer, following repetitions of "The Turtle Dove" and "The Silver Swan," and still other generous contributions. It is to be hoped that the English Singers will make many more appearances hereabouts until a greater portion of the musical public has had opportunity of hearing them. They will appear this evening, as it has been belatedly announced, with the Beethoven Association. They are the medium of an art that cannot be lost or remain unknown to any who love music and seek in it something more than excitement or merely sensuous pleasure.

"Seed of the Brute" Next Monday.

"Seed of the Brute," a play by Knowles Entrikin, will open at the Little Theatre next Monday night. In the cast will be Robert Ames, Hilda Vaughn, Doris Rankin, Jane Seymour, Claude Cooper, Harold Elliott and Donn Cook. William A. Brady Jr. and Dwight Deere Wiman are the producers of the play.

On the same night the new John Golden Theatre in West Fifty-eighth Street, between Broadway and Seventh Avenue, will open with "Two Girls Wanted," Mr. Golden's production now at the Little, as the first attraction.

"Rigoletto" for Benefit on Nov. 10.

A benefit matinee of "Rigoletto" with Marion Talley in the leading rôle will be given at the Metropolitan Opera House Nov. 10, by the National Opera Club of America for its prise and scholarship fund for trained women singers of America.

VAST AUDIENCE GREETS JOHN M'CORMACK

Even Stage of Carnegie Hall Crowded—Tenor Delights His Hearers as He Opens Season.

John McCormack's admirers braved the rain in numbers that filled Carnegie Hall's last seat and all its stage at the tenor's first concert of the season last night in Carnegie Hall. Officially and visibly twenty-seven pounds lighter since his latest world-tour, Mr. McCormack returned in admirable form, bringing new songs from the Far East and, what was more important, a voice of individuality and a mastery of diction and impassioned phrase that his hearers delighted to welcome.

To his early Bach classic he added Mendelssohn's "On Wings of Song" as an encore, while after Respighi and Elgar and the new Chinese settings of Bantock, the house got him out twice for Coleridge-Taylor's "She Walked Beside the Brook" and Blanche Seaver's "Just for a Day." The Irish folksongs midway in the evening drew an inimitable "Come to the Door," with its refrain of an Irish lover's whisper begging a kiss, and, later to the stage crowd, "Mother Machree." Edwin Schneider played the accompaniments, as for many years, and James Liebling was heard in intervals of 'cello solos.

LAUDER DELIGHTS CHOIR

The final New York concert of the season by the Glasgow Choir, yesterday afternoon in Carnegie Hall, reached its popular climax when Harry Lauder, present in the audience, confronted the gathering from the stage, and all present sang "Auld Lang Syne." Singing the famous song, the members of the chorus, arms crossed, clasped hands with both right and left neighbors, and the performance went with a will. It was one of the many signs of enthusiasm for a choir that numbered many of its countrymen in the audience. Aside, however, from this racial element the program and the singing were of a praiseworthy quality.

The program included the six-part glee, "The Cloud-Capt Towers," by Stevens; the madrigal, "Flow, O My Tears," by Benet; the Irish Cradle Song of Gilbert Esplin; Walter MacFarren's part song, "You Stole My Love"; solos by Agnes MacGregor, William Smith and Margaret Ferguson, for singers; a piano solo, a "Strathspey and Reel," by A. J. Gourlay; and part songs, original and arranged, by Hugh S. Robertson, Mrs. Kennedy-Fraser, P. J. Mansfield, Coleridge-Taylor, Edward Elgar, Festa, Rutland Boughton, Balfour Gardiner and Charles Wood.

The chorus, "The Immortal Hour," from Boughton's opera of that name, beautifully sung, was twice repeated. Robertson's arrangements of Foster's "Massa's in de Cold, Cold Ground" was musicianly in arrangement and a finished performance. Other moments in which the choir was at its best were in Coleridge-Taylor's "Song of Prosperpine," Elgar's "Serenade," Elgar's "O to Be a Wild Wind" and Robertson's "Rowan Tree." The choir was warmly applauded for its many admirable qualities, and the program was lengthened by encores.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

Tonight's new plays are "Daisy Mayme," opening at the Playhouse, and "Saturday Night," with which Eva Le Gallienne's Civic Repertory Theatre commences its season at the Fourteenth Street Theatre. Raquel Meller will also begin a return engagement of three weeks at Henry Miller's Theatre, and Harry Lauder will start a week of appearances at the Century. Senorita Meller's performances will be at 9 o'clock.

Instead of Sidney Howard's "The Silver Cord," the Theatre Guild's next production at the Garrick will be Mr. Howard's new play, "Ned McCobb's Daughter." "The Silver Cord" is scheduled for later in the season. The Guild's production of Shaw's "Pygmalion" will be made in the Guild Theatre under Dudley Digges's direction.

Leni Stengel will be in "Princess Turandot," with which the Provincetown Playhouse will shortly begin its season.

Yvonne D'Arle has returned to the cast of "Countess Maritza" after a brief illness. Marryrose Walsh, an understudy, filled her part during her absence.

Arch Selwyn, who sails for London next week, while abroad will complete arrangements for James W. Elliott to bring to America "The Panorama of the World War." It will probably be shown in a New York armory in the Spring.

"Miss Happiness," a musical comedy by George E. Stoddard and Jay Gorney, is announced for Broadway production after a preliminary engagement in New England. Mabel Withee, William Gaxton, Arthur West and Peggy Hope are in the cast.

A production of "Love of Three Oranges," the Gozzi comedy which Gilbert Seldes has adapted, will be made by the Harvard Dramatic Club this Fall. The play is on the Actors' Theatre schedule.

A statement from the Anne Nichols office says that the New York opening of "Howdy King" has been postponed because of the illness in Pittsburgh of Minor Watson, who acts a leading role.

Nancy Sheridan of "Sure Fire!" has been placed under a three-year contract by Boothe, Gleason & Truex, producers of the play.

Eva Casanova of "Yellow," Lee Tracy of "Broadway," Patrick Kearney, Mildred MacLeod of "If I Was Rich," Clarence Derwent and B. M. Kaye are among those scheduled to speak at the meeting of the Theatre Club, Inc., at the Hotel Astor tomorrow afternoon.

A performance of "Countess Maritza" to aid the Hospital for the Ruptured and Crippled will be given at the Shubert Theatre on Dec. 6.

THE SCREEN

By MORDAUNT HALL.

The Beauty and the Hypocrites.

"REX MAGICIAN," with Alice Terry, Paul Wegener, Ivan Petrovich, Firmin Gemier, Gladys Hamer and others, adapted from a story by Somerset Maugham; directed by Rex Ingram. Overture, "Rhapsody," Carlo Farretti; "A Lion Hound-Up," a short Ufa film; Pietro Capodiferro, trumpeter; "The Enchanted Forest," with Charabot Nordheim, Joyce Coles, John Triesault and ballet corps. At the Capitol.

Expert direction rather overshadows the fantastic narrative of "The Magician," Rex Ingram's latest picture, now on exhibition at the Capitol. This mystical yarn, the originator of which was Somerset Maugham, frequently makes one think of Svengali and also of that shadow character, Dr. Caligari. Although Mr. Ingram's brilliant work is the predominant feature of this subject, it is nevertheless apparent that he and Mr. Maugham make an excellent team for furnishing screen entertainment.

In this new photoplay, Mr. Ingram again shows his genius in bolstering up the interest in scenes by his imagination and his keen attention to detail. The accuracy of the little ideas in this film is enough to make one marvel. One appreciates that a story might be dull and ordinary, but in Mr. Ingram's hands it appears on the screen with subtlety, polish and spark.

Except the setting of the Sorcerer's Castle, everything in this picture is exactly as it should be. There are sequences that are so diverting that they make a short story in themselves. Mr. Ingram does not content himself with any makeshift properties so long as the real thing is procurable. He has a hooded cobra in a side-show of a carnival; the chips that are flung on a Monte Carlo gambling table are of mother-of-pearl and square, to denote the higher valuation; the French bank notes are real and so are the French telegrams. In addition to this Mr. Ingram has some scenes of Paris and of a small French town that are used to excellent advantage, and his only mistake is in mixing realism with fantasy in his scenic effects. The castle in which the queer Dr. Haddo engages in his weird operations is a contrast to the other scenes, for it is so obviously the flimsy work of carpenters and plasterers. While its furnaces and scientific paraphernalia do not stir the imagination nor fill one with horror, it answers the purpose of telling the story, and that's all. Possibly a grim old place of real stone would have lent much more of a thrill to this picture.

In this production one learns of a fearsome surgeon who believes that the blood of a maiden's heart will bring life to a dead body. He apparently gives no thought as to whether the girl will live, so long as he is successful in his experiment. Hence one must look upon him as mad. Dr. Haddo discovers that he can hypnotize Margaret Dauncy, a sculptress, before experimenting on her heart's blood, he marries her and then takes her to the gambling rooms at Monte Carlo, where she plays according to his instructions and wins untold thousands of francs. Dr. Arthur Burdon pursues the girl, but he discovers that the hideous surgeon's cunning is at first too much for him.

Alice Terry, as Margaret Dauncy, is beautiful and phlegmatic. She is the only American principal in the cast. Ivan Petrovich is emphatically sympathetic and capable in the rôle of Dr. Burdon. Paul Wegener, with good make-up, gives a restrained but thoroughly effective performance as the blood-hunting Dr. Haddo. Firmin Gemier appears in a minor rôle.

This is the seventh anniversary of the opening of the Capitol, and Major Edward Bowes is to be congratulated on the distinction of his program in celebrating this event.

Bow Bells.

"London," the current screen offering at the Rivoli Theatre, is the second contribution to this country from the British National Pictures, Inc. It was directed by Herbert Wilcox, who was also responsible for the previous importation, "Nell Gwyn," and Dorothy Gish is beheld once more as a stellar light in a British film.

Mr. Wilcox's work in this picture often rises above the acting of the principals and the narrative, which, incidentally, is based on a special story by Thomas Burke, author of "Limehouse Nights." This tale of two social extremes of London is not conspicuous for the novelty of its adventure. It can be summed up as the experience of a good little poor girl, a conscienceless society idler and a sympathetic young artist. Evidently appreciating that he had nothing outstandingly dramatic with which to deal, Mr. Wilcox has kept as far as possible to something like O. Henry's "Voice of a City," or, as the screen is silent, let it be "The Soul of a City," which idea is emphatically interesting as it depicted with its startling contrasts drawn from the life in a roaring, callous metropolis.

This English director opens with a glimpse of the Tower Bridge, then he goes to the Houses of Parliament, to St. James's Palace. Eventually he takes you to the East Indian docks, with the squirming vessels, and then to Limehouse Causeway, with Burke's copper's narks and wet-lipped Chinese. Throughout the narrative Mr. Wilcox sticks to this notion of depicting the differences in existence. He may show a public house, or saloon, and then switch to an expensive restaurant. He portrays hunger on one side and the toying with food on the other.

His types in the saloons and the Limehouse dance hall are well chosen. The Mayfair people, one might say, are easier to select.

Miss Gish impersonates a sort of "Twinkletoes," and the first time one sees her in this picture she is dancing joyfully down the narrow, dirty sidewalks of the Causeway. She wears a dark Jersey and skirt, which are quite becoming. During her appearance in Mayfair she permits the barber to curl her hair so that she does not look as attractive in expensive gowns as she does in the simple Limehouse clothes. Sometimes Miss Gish is not convincing. When she ought to stagger she merely walks slowly, and it was not necessary to call attention to her well-nourished countenance when she is supposed to be so hungry that she picks up a small crust of bread from the pavement.

Mr. Wilcox impresses one with the chill in the air and the heroine's eagerness for a cup of hot coffee. Miss Gish does very well in her expression of disappointment when somebody knocks the precious coffee out of her hands before she had really sipped it.

"Paris," a picture, was produced by an Englishman in Hollywood. Here you have "London" pictured by an Englishman, and many of the exteriors made within, or not far from, the sound of Bow Bells.

Other Photoplays.

"Midnight Lovers," with Anna Q. Nilsson and Lewis Stone, is the chief film attraction at the Hippodrome.

At the Cameo the International Film Arts Guild is offering D. W. Griffith's "Sorrows of Satan." The subject until Wednesday is "The Birth of a Nation"; the balance of the week, "Broken Blossoms."

Edward A. Schiller, general representative of Loew's, Inc., has been elected to the office of Vice President of the corporation to succeed the late Joseph L. Rhinock, it is announced by the Loew offices. Colonel Schiller, as he is generally known by virtue of having been appointed to that office on the staff of Governor Hardwick of Georgia, first became identified with the Loew organization as manager of the Atlanta theatre. He assisted in forming the Southern circuit of Loew houses and for a while he supervised this territory.

Five years ago he was brought to the home office in New York and since then he has made practically all the negotiations for new theatre properties both here and abroad. Several years ago he was appointed director of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, the Loew picture producing affiliation.

Larger Hall for John Masefield.

The third of a series of six readings from his best known works will be given by John Masefield, English poet and dramatist, this afternoon at 5:30 o'clock in Town Hall, under the auspices of the New School for Social Research. At the first two readings, held in the auditorium of the school, many persons were turned away, and as a result Town Hall was engaged. The remaining readings will take place on Thursday and on Monday and Thursday of next week at the same hour.

TABLES FOR TWO
AT THE MONTMARTRE, ready for the winter—an entertainment made notable by one BETTY DELAUNE, a cunning little chit from the Riviera, and her partner REVEL, whose comedy dances are quite delightful. MILLER and FARRELL, singing their amusing patter songs, should win hosts of new devotees. A new acrobatic dancing team from abroad, named LY ESTRA and FRED, brought the audience to its feet with something like a refined cheer.
ALL of which leads me to EMIL COLEMAN—and, say what you will, nobody can produce music that makes you want to dance more than COLEMAN.
HIS reunion with "CHARLIE" JOURNAL has brought back the Country Club atmosphere of the place.
FOR there is no question about it, clubs may come and clubs may go, one place will have a rage and then another, but there are numbers and numbers of people who never feel completely at home anywhere as they do at the MONTMARTRE. I am one of them.

Don't dope
YOUR Cough

IT is not wise to use remedies which depend upon "dope" such as narcotics, chloroform, cannabis or tar products. They may stop your cough temporarily by numbing the tissues, but this is not enough.

The inflamed air passages must be soothed naturally, the germladen mucus loosened and expelled in order to effect a lasting recovery. PERTUSSIN assists Nature to accomplish these results—and it is absolutely harmless.

ARAB SHEIKS MEET FOR HEIR'S WEDDING

BRIDE A PASHA'S DAUGHTER

MARRAKECH, Morocco, Oct. 24 (AP).—Thousands of Arab sheiks mounted on beautiful steeds and resplendent in white silk robes and multi-colored burnouses shining in the bright African sun, are here to attend the wedding of the son and heir of Mulai Youssef, Sultan of Morocco, to the daughter of El Glaowi, Pasha of Marrakech, and most powerful lord of the Atlas district.

The festivities, in a setting worthy of and rivaling the Arabian nights, began at sunrise today and will last a full week. Mulai Youssef, accompanying his son, Mulai Idriss, the latter bearing the name of the greatest Sultan in the history of Morocco, who in the seventeenth century asked for the hand of the daughter of Louis XIV of France in marriage, arrived here this morning.

Idriss will marry a woman whose face he never saw. The bride's heavy veil, as in the case of all faithful Moslem women, will not be taken off even for the bridegroom until the wedding night. The bride has not been consulted regarding the choice of her husband, and this is not a love match.

El Glaowi, desirous of putting the finishing touch on his great prestige, simply agreed to produce sufficient gold and jewels to induce the Sultan to permit the son of a prophet to marry the daughter of a Pasha.

This is mendicants' day, and none needs go hungry in Marrakech. More than 8,000 persons, many of whom were poor only for a day, ate at noon under tents set in place just outside the Palace of Bahia, the Pasha's residence. Whole beeves, steers and sheep were impaled on the stout limbs of trees and revolved slowly over log fires. Every diner was his own waiter, eager fingers tearing off great strips of meat to be devoured. For sweets and pastries alone 1,100,000 francs was spent by El Glaowi for this Gargantuan repast.

The wedding presents, brought from mountains and plains by Caids and sheiks, and valued at more than 15,000,000 francs, are displayed in a series of delightful courts where fountains play against colored tiles.

This evening, just as the sun disappeared behind the Atlas Range and a marabout, or holy man, from a minaret on the towers of Koutoubia Mosque announced in the plaintive tones of a muezzin's prayer that the daughter of a Pasha was wedding the descendant of a prophet, a cavalcade set forth from Bahia Palace.

The bridegroom, attended by 7,000 horsemen bearing torches and rifles, paraded through romantic Marrakech, the roads lined with pink walls and palm trees. Vast quantities of fireworks were set off by negro slaves, whose servitude was marked by a silver ring piercing one ear.

The real marriage ceremony will take place Wednesday morning. According to the custom, the bridegroom will be washed at the fountain of Mederza Benyoussel and massaged by slaves with the most subtle perfumes. Then the right hand of both bride and bridegroom will be painted with henna by a marabout. The bride will not be allowed to enter the room of her husband until midnight of that evening.

The populace is dancing in the streets of Marrakech tonight to the melancholy music of Arab string instruments of countless orchestras, and El Glaowi, a tall, lean, sallow, rather sinister Moorish chieftain, who, although living nominally under a French protectorate, has achieved his life's ambition. His family has become allied with that of the Prophet Mohammed.

MARGIE MAYER ENGAGED.

To Wed Samuel R. B. Norton, a Descendant of De Witt Clinton.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Mayer of Far Rockaway, L. I., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Miss Margie Mayer, to Samuel R. B. Norton, son of the late Franklin C. Norton and Mrs. Sarah G. I. Norton of Far Rockaway.

Miss Mayer was graduated from the Hewlett School for Girls. Mr. Norton served overseas during the World War with the American expeditionary forces. He is a direct descendant of De Witt Clinton and of the Franklin family of Colonial fame. He is a grandson of Mrs. Susan Araminta Lott of Brooklyn, who is now in her ninety-eighth year.

No date has been set for the wedding.

BISHOP OF LONDON CHIDES PESSIMISTS

GREAT THRONG HEARS HIM

Prelate Also Speaks at Columbia, Urging Christianity to Widen Its Scope to Aid Whole World.

Pessimists over the future of religion were taken to task by the Right Rev. Arthur Foley Winnington-Ingram, Lord Bishop of London, in a sermon yesterday morning in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, which was heard by the largest throng ever to attend one service at the edifice. He also spoke yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in St. Paul's chapel, Columbia University.

The distinguished prelate asserted in his cathedral sermon that during his travels recently in America he had seen many "long-faced Christians." Deploring this, he characterized the Christian church as "the one successful institution in the world."

"It is pitiful to me to hear people asking in your country whether Christianity is 'going to fail.' Why, it can't fail. He who won the victory over death on Easter Day is with us today. The Church is making thousands of new converts all the time. It cannot fail unless we are traitors. It has continued for 2,000 years and it will go right on."

Long before 11 o'clock, when the service was to start, the cathedral was jammed. Admission was by ticket until 10:50, but few of the hundreds who waited in the vestibule and out in the rain were admitted. Policemen were inside to keep the place from becoming overcrowded. There were many students from the colleges and universities of New York in attendance.

The Bishop's topic was: "The Kingship of Christ and What It Means to the world." In a few preliminary remarks he paid his respects to Bishop Manning and expressed appreciation for the welcome he had received throughout America, particularly in "your leading universities, including Columbia, which I can now call my university." Dr. Ingram had reference to the fact that last Friday afternoon Columbia bestowed upon him the honorary degree of "Doctor of Sacred Theology."

Discusses Strike in England.

The Bishop, discussing the strike in England, recalled that by means of the radio the Archbishop and himself had appealed for a service of prayers.

"What is the secret of the strife among nations and what is the secret of strife in the industrial world?" he continued. "It is a jealousy and want of love. The lack of love and trust in the hearts of men is the secret cause of all wars and all industrial troubles."

"He has the instinct of prayer, and yet how hard it is for many people to believe that prayer is really answered! You are foolish if you do not pray. You need the help prayer gives."

Bishop Manning in introducing Dr. Ingram said: "We welcome him because, like his own people in England, we honor and love him for his own sake personally and as a true and faithful ambassador of the Kingdom of God."

The Scripture lessons were read respectively by Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, President of Columbia, and Chancellor Elmer Ellsworth Brown of New York University. In the procession into the cathedral the Lord Bishop of London and the Bishop of New York walked side by side. There were two women in the procession, both of the Faculty of Hunter College. They were Dr. Jane Gray Carter, Professor of Greek, and Miss Adeline G. Wykes, Associate Professor of Art. Others in the procession included Professor Wilhelm A. Braun of Barnard College, Dr. John H. Finley; Professors Robert Ernest Hume, Frederick John Foakes Jackson and William Walker Rockwell of Union Theological Seminary; Professors Marshall S. Brown, Samuel A. Brown and Thomas W. Edmondson of New York University and the following lay trustees of the cathedral: Dr. Butler, George W. Wickersham, Haley Fiske, James Roosevelt, William M. V. Hoffman and William H. Burr.

Says Church Is On the March.

At St. Paul's Chapel, Columbia, the Bishop said: "If you young people get hold of 'the sword of Goliath,' nothing can stop you. The Christian Church has struck its tents and is on the march, but I do urge you that you can't defend the faith without the sword of knowledge and understanding. You must study world conditions. The Mohammedan people are looking to the Christian Church for the first time in history. China is looking to us for help, so is India and, above all, Africa. From every corner of the civilized world the Gospel of Jesus Christ is our hope of a better world."

ON ACQUIRING PERSONALITY.

"What is "personality"? The question was asked last night by the Rev. Edward Charles Russell in his sermon in St. Ann's Episcopal Church, St. Ann's Avenue and 140th Street, the Bronx.

"We used to think that personality was bestowed on us by nature," he said. "However, psychologists tell us today that it is a gift more often acquired through self-realization and improvement, and therefore is an endowment within the reach of every man. At the foundation of personality there must be knowledge, and in the development of one's character it is essential that we know some one thing thoroughly. One of the weaknesses in our complex civilization is that we try to cram into youth a smattering of a great many things."

WARNS ON OUR WEALTH.

Dr. Merrill Says Unless We Cling to Jesus' Ideals We Will Go to Ruin.

American Christianity has a great responsibility, declared the Rev. Dr. William Pierson Merrill in his sermon yesterday in the Brick Presbyterian Church, Fifth Avenue and Thirty-seventh Street. Dr. Merrill's subject was "Shutting Christ Out."

"When before has any nation had such wealth, such power, such a position in the world?" he asked. "Now, as never before, must we who are known as Christians stand by the ideals of Jesus, say what He said about money, and power, and position, and declare that unless our country acts according to those ideals of the eternal Christ of God, she will surely go the way of all the tragic empires of the past."

First English Lutheran Church In Brooklyn Has Silver Jubilee

The English Lutheran Church of our Saviour, Covert Street, near Broadway, Brooklyn, observed its silver jubilee yesterday. Founded on Aug. 3, 1901, it formed the first English speaking congregation of the Missouri Synod in Brooklyn.

The Rev. Dr. George A. Romoser, President of Concordia Institute in Bronxville, who preached the sermon yesterday morning, extolled the advance made by the Lutheran Church in recent years.

"Men go groping through the darkness," he said, "seeking God in the marshes of philosophy, only to fall eventually into the slough of despond. But here, in this tabernacle of stone, there has gone up constant praise to the Lord God who has led you, by devious ways, toward a better life.

"The sweetness of God's teachings has always been uppermost here. None of your preachers has sung panegyrics to the achievements of men. Every sermon preached here for the past twenty-five years has striven to save men from that grievous sea where they could never save themselves."

MAKES STRONG PLEA FOR PRIVACY IN LIFE

WOULD MAKE THEM MORE FIT

Wants Sense of Personal Dignity Cultivated in the Young—Hits Publicity on Sex Subjects.

"The Character Value of Privacy" was the subject discussed yesterday by Dr. Henry Neumann at the meeting of the Brooklyn Society for Ethical Culture, held in the Academy of Music, Brooklyn. He said the desire of the young to direct their own lives sensibly should be encouraged.

"The plea for frankness is no excuse for today's extreme publicity in the treatment of sex life," he said. "Even the most sincere desire to spread necessary information may fail to see that there are truths which had better be conveyed by fathers and mothers rather than by scenario writers or even public teachers. Because the home is the private sanctuary, it is the place where the intimate side of life should receive its most careful nurture. No doubt many homes are still sadly unfit for this task. Why not make them more fit? Every time we shift to other agencies the responsibility which rests primarily on the home, we are tempted to forget where our best efforts should go.

"The great resource against loose living and the vulgarity which paves the way to easy morals is to build up from earliest childhood a strong and fine sense of personal dignity. We are human in the best meaning of the word when we are conscious of something in others and ourselves too precious to be profaned by common handling. Whatever encourages a fine respect for privacy is a help to that sense of genuinely human worth which gives us our deepest moral inspiration."

HAIL PASTOR'S 30 YEARS IN ST. AUGUSTINE PULPIT

As the first part of the Golden Jubilee, and the thirtieth anniversary of the pastorate of the Rev. George Frazier Miller, the Rev. William V. Tunnell, Professor of History at Howard University, Washington, and former pastor of the church, spoke yesterday in St. Augustine's Episcopal Church, Lafayette and Marcy Avenues, Brooklyn.

"It is what people look at," said the preacher, "that determines what they are. In science, the scientist devotes his life to the study of one particular groove of life. One studies rocks, another leaves, and they too often become so occupied with the earthworms that they forget the higher things of life.

"Ten years ago Edison said he did not believe in the immortality of the soul, but today, older and more experienced, he states that he believes in human survival, that death is not all, and that life is immortal. Behind what we call beauty there must be a marvelous personality. Faith is an intangible thing, but the intangible things are the real things of life. Life is a series of mountain peaks, and each peak is a challenge, a dare. The hope of the world is that the children shall be better than the fathers.

"There is such a thing as a holy rivalry, and this has brought this church to the place where it is today at the peak of the hardest of the mountains."

DEDICATES THREE WINDOWS

St. James's Church Apostle Series Completed by Hellner Gift.

Three windows along the south aisle of St. James's Episcopal Church, Madison Avenue and Seventy-first Street, were dedicated at the morning service yesterday in memory of Sylvina Butler Hellner. Following the ceremony, the Rev. Dr. Frank Warfield Crowder spoke on self-denial.

The memorial windows are the gift of Mrs. Hellner's son, George C. Hellner, and complete a series of twelve south aisle windows devoted to the Twelve Apostles. The new windows contain the figures of St. Thomas, St. Matthew and St. James the Less, with scenes from their lives.

Services for Knights of Israel.

Services were held last night in the Greenwich Presbyterian Church, West Thirteenth Street, between Sixth and Seventh Avenues, for the Royal Black Knights of the Camp of Israel, the highest branch of the Orange Institution. Knights present numbered sixty and they came from preceptories in this city, Jersey City and Newark. The sermon was delivered by the pastor of the church, the Rev. Truman A. Kilborne.

Dr. Sockman Finds Real Thinking Vanishing; Calls Political Campaigns Appeals to Bias

Thinking has been supplanted by "sensation" in everyday American life, according to the Rev. Dr. Ralph W. Sockman in his sermon yesterday in the Madison Avenue M. E. Church at Sixtieth Street. He added that political campaigns were often "mere appeals to prejudice."

"What is worse," he said, "is that this thoughtless surface living is causing us to miss the deeper and richer values of life. There is more variety in the stimuli which come to a man in twenty-four hours of modern living than in a year of living a generation ago. Stimuli from without, however, may only tattoo the surface of a person's life. Like the sailor lad who brings back from his foreign travel no great deep wealth of experience, but only the surface designs tattooed on his skin, many of us derive no rich ennobling development, but only surface impressions from all the varied sights and sounds in this fairy-land of the twentieth century.

"If, as Dean Inge reminds us, accumulated knowledge is not progress, certainly the mere increase of life's implements and impressions is not culture. It is an open question whether with all our improved accessories of living we are getting more of life's values than did our forefathers.

"We must learn to live more deeply. We must discover and use the resources for happiness within ourselves. We cannot turn back the onward sweep of inventions and material development. We would not if we could. But our crowded schedules must give room for solitude and our hurrying throngs must take time for meditation. Thus can we return to an appreciation of life's simplicities."

DRYS URGED TO VOTE ON REFERENDUM

Excuses Won't Count Much With Public Opinion, Asserts Rev. Mr. Wagner.

BUT HE DISCOUNTS EFFECT

New York State's Objections Cannot Alter Volstead Act, the Pastor Points Out.

The Rev. C. Everett Wagner, pastor of the West Side M. E. Church, 461 West Forty-fourth Street, referred to the prohibition referendum in his sermon yesterday. He said that the decision of the Court of Appeals, affirming the validity of the referendum, left the dry voters with no "justifiable reason to dodge the marking of the ballots on election day."

"Suppose the dry voters do evade the prohibition referendum on Nov. 3 and it wins," he asked, "the forthcoming excuse would be, the drys did not vote on it. Such evidence will not carry much weight on the scales of public opinion. Besides, the drys have faith in referendums under a Democratic form of Government. If the referendum is victorious in New York State, the large numbers of people who voted against it would have a counter-balancing effect. The referendum is not a law that eventually would go into effect, it is only an expression of opinion. That is quite different from previous referendums submitted to the voters.

"It is the height of fancy to predict that a New York State vote on the modification of the Volstead Act will swiftly change national opinion. The Eighteenth Amendment became a part of the Constitution by other States. A State that never went dry in pre-prohibition times would naturally be expected to be the first to register objections to it. And thus the predictions of antagonists to the Volstead act are to be greatly discounted. The effect will not be anything near what they forecast."

ADVISES TO VOTE "NO."

Dr. Simons Thinks Time Is Not Ripe to Change Dry Law.

Another minister to discuss the prohibition referendum yesterday was the Rev. Dr. Minot Simons of All Souls' Unitarian Church, Fourth Avenue and Twentieth Street. He said his advice was to vote "no" on the referendum.

"A 'yes' vote at the present time is a vote in the dark," he added. "I have believed for some time that the Eighteenth Amendment was a mistake. It was brought about before public opinion was prepared to back up so drastic a change. No law can be enforced merely because the statute has been passed; it must have the sanction of public opinion. National prohibition now seems to be confronted by such a divided opinion that it is seriously and perhaps fatally handicapped.

"The amendment and the Volstead act seemed to have gone too far, and if so, it is a matter of enormous importance to decide how much too far. Is it time now to start something for a change? There has been too little thought about that to make any change anything but hazardous."

DENIES LAW WAS "PUT OVER."

The Rev. Mr. White Says Soldiers Elected Dry Congress.

The Rev. Arthur K. White preached on prohibition last night in the Pillar of Fire Church, Sterling Place, Brooklyn. He denied that prohibition had been "put over" while the soldiers were in France, and as proof said that the soldiers had elected the Congressmen who voted for the Eighteenth Amendment before they left for France.

"To repeal the Prohibition law is impracticable," he asserted, "if not impossible, without virtually nullifying the entire Constitution. Enforcement is a practical possibility, and education must aid us in making the law effective. People who live right in their hearts before God have little trouble regarding these laws, for the desire to break them has been taken away. Surely the country needs an awakening of the moral conscience, of real Christian sentiment—a genuine revival of heart-felt religion."

FINDS HOPE IN AFFLICTIONS.

Dr. J. S. Durkee Says God's Promises Are Not Sops for Childish Faith.

The Rev. Dr. J. Stanley Durkee was the preacher yesterday in Plymouth Congregational Church, Orange Street, Brooklyn. His text was from Job v, 23. "For thou shalt be in league with the stones of the field."

"This text stands in the midst of great and marvelous promises," he said. "Here we are told that those who are in league with God and with His creation shall be delivered from their troubles and shall have their home in peace and quietness. What greater and surer promises could one ask for as he faces the life of today?

"But we are inclined to say: Evils do touch us and sorrows and disasters do smite our daily living; these promises are but sops for childish faith. Are they? The dungeon prison of Joseph reveals the golden stairs up which he climbs to his throne. The crucifixion of Jesus liberated redemptive powers which eventually will remold and control the world."

GODLESS RELIGION HOPELESS, HE SAYS

Dr. Fosdick Deplores Attempt to Build Up Scientific Conception of World.

PURPOSE BEHIND ALL LIFE

To Deny This Leaves Nothing, and All Ambitions Fail, He Asserts In Plea for Faith.

A man-made scientific conception of the world that gives no credit to God and His Divine Purpose, can leave little hope in the human heart, the Rev. Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick told a congregation that packed the Park Avenue Baptist Church, Park Avenue and Sixty-sixth Street, yesterday morning.

"One of the most significant movements in the religious life of today is the attempt to build up a religion without God," Dr. Fosdick said. "He who does not believe in God thinks the universe is a gigantic machine, and would call religion nothing else than devotion to the ideals of the race. So difficult is this problem that many people are giving up their faith. Often our churches do not help such folk. We take God for granted, and talk about Him as though there were no questions involved, but all of you know there are questions to be answered.

"The trouble with so much of our doubt as to whether or not God exists is our preconceived picture of Him. We picture Him a king, a judge, a father, a high tower, and all religion accentuates these pictures. Then one day a colossus of interrogation comes crashing down on us. Does God exist? Does the God which we have pictured exist?

"It would be a strange world that has come from ancient chaos to modern order if there was nothing like a great purpose in it; if there was nothing that brought us music, mothers' love, the laughter of little children, men who love honor, and homes on every obscure street, where love and sacrifice are exhibited. Something brought us to the Sermon on the Mount and to Him who spake it.

"If we deny there is a great purpose behind all life, the whole of human progress is something like a skyrocket, which has a glorious ascension, only to finally fall a dead stick, sans light, sans life, sans hope, sans everything. No, we must realize God is the powerful goodness that has brought us up along the strange spiral that is human history."

PARENTS BLAMED FOR ERRING YOUTH

Spiritual Food Has Been Denied to Children, the Rev. B. F. Farber Says.

Youth was defended last night by the Rev. Dr. Benjamin F. Farber, who spoke in the Fourth Presbyterian Church, West End Avenue and Ninety-first Street. His sermon was one of a series on the American home. The young people in the average home, he said, have been "more sinned against than sinning."

"Those who are responsible for their rearing have not acquainted them with the facts of life and the necessity of obedience to the laws of health, social life and spiritual development," said Dr. Farber. "Dwarfed in spiritual growth themselves, parents have not given to their children the spiritual food necessary for the soul, and without that food the soul cannot grow.

"In the home children first learn the things of God and the great principles upon which all true living is based. The home is the meeting place of our children, the place where parents find their greatest responsibilities and also their deepest satisfactions. If there be no home spirit or atmosphere, then youth will have no regard for such a place. If there be no ideals or principles, then youth cannot be expected to have any.

"Some one must get across to youth that those who 'sow the wind shall reap the whirlwind.' It is not only the word of Scripture, it is the declaration of science. We are hearing and reading a good deal about the young people of today. We are told about their promiscuous relations, their wild parties, their bad manners and their irresponsibility. Unpleasant as it is, we must admit that much of it is true.

"Science has declared that it is an unalterable fact that the strength of a people is in direct proportion to the purity of its womanhood and the virility of its manhood. Intemperance has ruined life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness. Let America take heed how she deals with this vital issue. And while we are doing it let youth remember the folly and sin of loose and shallow living. There is a message that must be brought home to parents and others who have youth under their care."

Dr. McComas on St. Paul in Prison.

The Rev. Dr. J. P. McComas preached on "Perseverance" yesterday in St. Paul's Episcopal Chapel, Broadway and Fulton Street. He pictured St. Paul in his imprisonment, with a soldier always nearby and controlling his activities. "But St. Paul," he continued, "like all constructive people, was not a fault-finder. He never complains of it. Instead he tried to see what he could gain from it, and he draws from it powerful spiritual lessons. He shows the necessity for separation."

TELLS THE IDLE RICH TO EMULATE MARIE

Rev. E. S. Young Calls Queen a Challenge to Women to Make Opportunities a Blessing.

'ANOTHER VICTORIA,' HE SAYS

Finds Her an Example of Woman's New Place in World—Praises Her Service to Her People.

The Rev. S. Edward Young, pastor of the Bedford Presbyterian Church, Nostrand Avenue and Dean Street, Brooklyn, paid tribute yesterday to Queen Marie. The Queen's patriotism and her energy should be a stimulating example to Americans of the leisure class, he said.

"Our idle well-to-do women are among our greatest problems," he said. "Many of them take the means provided by somebody's hard toil and spend their days and nights in nothing better than vapid entertainment. Some of them, while their husbands rack brains and nerves to get the wherewithal, revel in gayeties and vie in expenditures that do nobody any good. They flaunt their clothes and jewels and equipages in the faces of their poor sisters in such a manner as to increase that support which bandits already have from masses of the people who sometimes chuckle, rather than become horrified, when a rich woman is relieved of a few thousand dollars' worth of gems.

"Queen Marie is a distinct reinforcement to the movement, none too strong yet, to promote real service to humanity from those who otherwise would be workless, and purposeless and often familyless spenders of money they do not earn themselves. As royalty goes, Queen Marie should be about the least consequential of sovereigns and sovereign consorts; but as personal usefulness goes, she is another Queen Victoria, giving herself unstintedly to her people and mankind at large, and every Rumanian's importance is appreciably heightened by the life and public conduct of the Queen.

"She is a brilliant illustration of woman's new place in the world and a ringing challenge to her comfortably situated sisters everywhere to make their own opportunities the blessings to others which they ought to be."

SCORES 'WORSHIP' OF QUEEN.

Dr. Reisner Finds It 'Disgusting'—Assails Her Activity on Sunday.

Americans who "worship" Queen Marie are "thin thinkers," according to the Rev. Dr. Christian F. Reisner, who preached last night in Chelsea Methodist Episcopal Church, Fort Washington Avenue and 178th Street.

"Our present worship of an exceptional woman who wears a gold crown would not be carried to such nauseating extremes if we were not thin thinkers," he said. "It exhibits our crass prosperity and vulgar glorification of royalty and betrays present-day cheap love of display. The Queen may be sweet and witty and tactful, but why should Americans bow and cringe and parade before her? Imagine placing a mere woman on a throne in Philadelphia, while red-blooded Americans file by and kiss her hand! And recall the extravagant hotel quarters—$400,000 spent to prepare rooms at the Ambassador—and the ten-car train, and so on.

"To what are free-blooded Americans coming? How can any good come to us from such disgusting dust-licking and exaltation of a flesh and blood person who does not even represent a Pope? Will we win Europe's friendship by such extravagant and wasteful display while we insist that these bankrupt nations pay us $1,000,000 a day for sixty-two years. Why not rather select an unknown American mother and glorify her than revive a false notion in democratic America that born royalty is better than character that wins crowns by sacrifice and service? We are cheapening ourselves and exalting wrong ideals by such praise.

"And why should this European ruler fail to respect our Sunday? Why should she use it to help some unknown woman make a fortune at a Sunday night concert for some meagerly defined charity? Would she enjoy having an American official come to her country and trample upon the religious day and customs of her Greek church subjects as she does of our millions of Protestants by this encouragement of the misuse of our worship day? Whatever others may believe, Protestants are convinced that they need a day of quiet for a spiritual development that insures poise and self-mastery."

HATRED TOWARD JEWS CALLED A CHALLENGE

"Even if all the alleged causes for hatred of Jews were founded on fact—and they are not—they would form a challenge to Christianity, a challenge which, if left unanswered, would be an indictment which spells failure to follow the teachings of that man, that rabbi, that Jew, whom so many Christians worship as their savior!" declared Dr. Louis Mann, rabbi of the Sinai Congregation of Chicago, speaking before the Free Synagogue in Carnegie Hall yesterday morning. Dr. Mann, who is a successor to the late Emil Hirsch in Chicago, and who holds a professorship in Oriental languages in the University of Chicago, spoke on "The Jewish Problem—Is It Jewish or Christian?" Dr. Wise, rabbi of the Free Synagogue, was preaching in Rabbi Mann's temple in Chicago.

While deploring that the Jewish problem was largely a Christian one, Dr. Mann also charged to his people some of the faults that the "so-called Christians" blame them for. He also blamed, most bitterly, the Jew who, in order to get along better, let go his heritage as one of the chosen people and apologized or crawled his way through life. The sole wish of the Jew, he said, was for self-preservation as a religious group, for political and civil rights and duties equal to all other peoples.

This evening at a meeting held at the home of Mrs. Adolf Lewisohn, 881 Fifth Avenue, Rabbi Mann will address the Jewish Big Sisters. The rabbi's congregation is the largest in Chicago.

MR. MILLS PROMISES.

Some people think that Representative MILLS is uncommonly anxious to be Governor. They point to certain campaigning methods of his in proof of this. But it seems that they are doing him a wrong. He must be more concerned about the defeat of Governor SMITH, and the triumph of his own party, than about his own election. For if he were desperately set on being Governor, he surely would not have disqualified himself for that office in advance, as he did on Saturday.

A delegation of school teachers went to him on that day to ask him what he meant to do about the Ricca bill increasing their salaries. It had twice been vetoed by Governor SMITH, for good reasons given. The representative of the Teachers' Welfare League said to Mr. MILLS: "We must appeal to Albany next year, and we want a Governor there who will sign the bill." According to the report of The Herald Tribune, Mr. MILLS replied: "I have said that I will sign the Ricca bill when I am elected Governor, and I now repeat that promise."

As a profound student of government, Mr. MILLS must be acquainted with the Constitution of the State of New York. In Article XIII it lays down the oath which an elected officer must take before he can qualify. He must "solemnly swear," among other things which he has not done, "as a consideration or reward for the giving or withholding a vote at the election," that "I have not made any promise to influence the giving or withholding any such vote." This is an oath which Mr. MILLS, after what he said to the school teachers on Saturday, must know that as an honorable man he cannot take.

Quite apart from this disregard of the State Constitution, the unqualified pledge which Mr. MILLS gave to the teachers is not at all to his credit. He spoke in entire disregard of the financial needs of New York City. He coolly threw out of the window the report of the Citizens' Committee on Teachers' Salaries, which in several respects was destructive of the rough-and-ready provisions of the Ricca bill. He gave no heed to the comprehensive Friedsam report on the question of teachers' salaries throughout the State. Everything which stood between him and gaining the favor of the school teachers, who may cast as many as 25,000 votes in this city, he incontinently brushed aside. The result which he sought to attain is hinted at in the optimistic figures which the Republican managers are now giving out about the election in this city, where, they gleefully say, the whole vote of the school teachers will be cast for Mr. MILLS. If he had been a demagogue and done this thing, people would only have smiled at his unblushing hunt for votes no matter how obtained. But what shall they think of the high-toned man, the authority on public finance, the candidate appealing to thoughtful citizens, when he thus forgets himself and stoops to a course which may be illegal and certainly is indecent?

NO FIVE-CENT FARE REFERENDUM

The unanimous decision of the Court of Appeals against the validity of the five-cent fare referendum bill puts a quietus on what was perhaps the most impudent attempt ever made to befog and bedevil the voters of New York. The only object of the bill was to deceive. The citizen's attention was to be fixed upon the five-cent fare alone. Doubtless a one-cent fare or no fare would be approved. Judge POUND'S opinion shows what goods were concealed under the false label, the defective title, of the law:

> It prohibits any change in any contract or franchise of any city railroad corporation with respect to preferentials, bonuses or subsidies or obligations to render public services. Contracts might be modified without affecting the five-cent fare feature. The five-cent fare referendum has a catching note of popular appeal. The voter might easily gain from this title that the subject and nature of the legislation was thus limited, whereas the hands of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment are effectively tied as to all modifications of the contracts or franchises. Everything is to be settled by popular vote, including those problems which are to be solved by experts after study and hearings.

A referendum for every proposed change in the subway contracts; referendum on referendum; referendums purposely made impossible by the requirement of a majority of qualified voters. And there is more and better meat in the cocoanut than this. The referendum was adopted as a local law by the Municipal Assembly under the Home Rule act. Let us see this consummate fruit of home rule as practiced in the City Hall in 1925. This local law calmly strips the Board of Estimate and Apportionment of the powers and duties given it by the State and hands them over to the voters of the city, "not a local authority." Hear Judge POUND:

> By the local law in question, the local authorities have no power to express their independent judgment on matters calling for expert knowledge. They become a mere register to record the will of the voters. They may not even consider the proposition until the voters have acted upon it. The local law either applies to only the street surface roads or else it attempts to supersede the State law without complying with the requirements of the city Home Rule law. If it does not repeal the decision above referred to, that provision remains in force. If it is intended to supersede the State law, it is ineffective in that regard.

The plain intention is to prohibit all action by the local authorities. If there is a shred in the law that could be saved, it is not worth saving. The remnant would be a "maimed and worthless thing," which it would be folly to submit to the voters. So this scheme for making transportation contracts immune from change or correction is smashed. While courts do not usually pass upon a law until actual litigation arises under it, that rule, as Judge POUND says, is "one of prudence rather than of power. Exceptional and extraordinary circumstances" might prevent any actual suit. Thus, if the law were approved, the Board of Estimate, in its discretion not subject to judicial review, might refuse its consent to any proposed change in contracts or franchises, and so choke off litigation.

COPING WITH CRIME IN NEW JERSEY.

Governor MOORE of New Jersey has summoned the law enforcement officers to meet the Crime Commission and discuss what changes in the penal code are necessary to put an end to the outbreak of robbery and murder. District Attorney BANTON of this city thinks that New Jersey is now going through the same kind of experience that gosded New York into enacting the Baumes laws. He is surprised that "Jersey justice" has not been equal to the emergency. The suspects in the terrible Elizabeth murder are ex-convicts, who are supposed to have found New York too hot for them. Governor MOORE recently consulted with Police Commissioner MCLAUGHLIN. It is reported that the New Jersey Legislature will be asked to take the Baumes laws as models. District Attorney BANTON has told Governor MOORE that it is yet too early to draw conclusions about their effectiveness. The cases coming up under them have been few. More than one Judge is inclined to think that very severe sentences may defeat the purpose in view, especially when offenders are young and do not have bad criminal records. Only habitual criminals would probably receive long terms. Mr. BANTON believes that the surest deterrent of crime is "quick arrest, speedy and successful prosecution and the imposition of punishment fitting the offense."

CHARLES R. HARDIN, a Democratic candidate for the Senate in New Jersey, urges better coordination between the State police and county and municipal officers in the first stages of pursuit of highwaymen. He proposes a radio alarm system. He also would have admission to bail made more difficult and parole and probation privileges stricter. As to quick arrest in hold-up cases, it has been recommended that every city have a distinctive signal that could be sounded when highwaymen were fleeing in automobiles. This would be notice that any motor car speeding through the streets must be stopped by policemen. In Elizabeth such an alarm after the mail robbery and assassination would have put every patrolman and traffic officer as well as citizens on the alert and escape would have been almost impossible.

To his conference in Trenton next Friday Governor MOORE has called Judges, county prosecutors, police chiefs and magistrates. "If between now and Friday," wrote the Governor, "you can give the matter careful thought and come prepared to express your views, you will be rendering a service to the State." When the Legislature meets in January Governor MOORE will make known to it the conclusions of the Trenton conference and ask for amendments of the criminal code.

INVADING THE FOREST RESERVE.

In discussing on Friday the general question of water power, Governor SMITH referred to an application now before the State Water Control Commission for a concession on the Salmon River in the Adirondacks. He spoke of it as an insidious "water grab" for the benefit of the Malone Light and Power Company. Many of the details were set forth in yesterday's TIMES by the Secretary of the Adirondack Civic League. That body believes the plan to be not only vicious in itself but really to constitute an impairment of the forest reserve. The attempt seems to be to obtain indirectly what was planned two years ago by the so-called Ferris Amendment, which authorized entrance upon the forest reserves by water-power companies, but which was overwhelmingly voted down by the people.

The present application involves many technical details hard for the ordinary man to understand. But anybody can see the danger and folly of allowing any damage to the State's property in the forest reserve, forever set apart by the Constitution for the public benefit. This at least may be said with confidence: The case is one for the most searching inquiry. The State Water Control Commission ought not to move in the matter until after the fullest investigation into every aspect of the Salmon River application. Are the steps proposed warranted under the law? Is the compensation to be offered to the State for the use of the water at all adequate? Who are the real, hidden beneficiaries, as distinct from the company making the formal application? Until these questions and others like them are answered satisfactorily, the whole thing will be under suspicion, and the project should not be proceeded with.

THE NEW LAMP OF ALADDIN.

The simple, intelligible scientific story of the marvelous power of the cathode ray tube invented by Dr. W. D. COOLIDGE of the General Electric Company which appeared in THE TIMES last week surpasses the most extravagant tale of the romancer. The lamp of Aladdin had no magic to compare with this torch. And probably not since Prometheus filched the fire of the gods hidden in a stalk and gave its flame to man has a more potent instrument been put into his hands. Beyond it there is "only a hope" that one may be invented which will emit electrons at the speed of 186,000 miles a second. One hardly dares to think of the possible consequences, for man would then be able to do what the Creator did when He said "Let there be light"—not only make but destroy on a world scale.

The practical results of this invention it is not possible to estimate, but the manifestation of its concentrated energy seems magical as it makes one mineral glow like red-hot iron yet without heat, another normally white or nearly white to burn with "glowing blue, amber, ruby and amethyst," and still others of dull colors to become luminous and sometimes to scintillate. Diamonds even are not proof against its electronic bombardment and become suffused with a light that never was in their facets before. It purifies milk, turns hair white (or brings it in black in some instances, apparently), tears to pieces organic substances in the vegetable world, turns certain liquids into solids and makes changes in the human skin. How it is done—that is, how the little instrument enables electrons to speed up from the rate of a mile or two a second to that of 150,000 miles a second, and then delivers them through a "nickel plate" window in countless invisible billions—would be indeed "incredible" if not vouched for by the results which cannot be disputed and which cannot be explained on any other theory.

Dr. VERNON KELLOGG was lamenting only a few days ago on his return from Europe that we, having depended so largely in the past upon the pure science work of foreign scientists who now find themselves without resources, would be at a serious disadvantage. He must take heart in this demonstration. What with the "Millikan rays" and the "Coolidge tube," we are as Americans making Promethean gifts to mankind.

SEIPEL AGAIN CHANCELLOR.

In selecting Mgr. SEIPEL to be Chancellor again, the Austrian Parliament has reinstated in office one of the ablest men in Europe. His past services to his country and to Central Europe have been notable. The occasion for his return is to be found in the local political quarrels which have disturbed Austria since his resignation as Chancellor two years ago. The demand for his service is a tribute to his personal ability, rather than an indication of any radical change in policy. Among those who support him are the Pan-Germans, who favor union with Germany. This does not imply that he is in any way pledged to work for their objective. The question of union with Germany is still largely academic.

To Chancellor SEIPEL falls once more the necessary but thankless task of enforcing strict public economy. Although Austria's finances no longer are under the supervision of the League of Nations, she has obligations to those who helped her out of the financial chaos after the armistice. The foreign debt is still large. Meeting the charges on it, while at the same time balancing the budget without resorting to inflation, is just as difficult as it was while the League Commissioner, Dr. ZIMMERMAN, had his office in Vienna. The politicians are naturally loath to see any reductions in the numbers or salaries of officeholders. Most of the Government employes believe that they are underpaid.

In international matters there is much which the Chancellor can do. In this sphere he is thoroughly at home. His skill and tact were largely responsible for the salvation of Austrian finance by the League of Nations. His personal contacts with the leading statesmen in the neighboring nations did much to improve the relations between them and Austria, and helped to assuage the intense bitterness that marked the attitude of the peoples of the former Austro-Hungarian Empire when they formed the Succession States.

There is still much to be done before the final adjustments are completed. The old Austro-Hungarian Empire had an economic unity which the new States have broken but which still cries to be reborn. The principal manufacturing centres were in and about Vienna and in what was then known as Bohemia. The agricultural centre was the great plain of the Danube River and its tributaries, mostly in Hungary and Croatia. These regions are now separated by tariff barriers. Yet each part still needs the other. To Mgr. SEIPEL will fall the opportunity of again working toward a closer economic cooperation between these different nations which by nature have so many interests in common.

PEDAL COMPARISONS.

An Englishman who has completed his seventieth year in the leather business comes forward with the information that the feet of the women of today are smaller and daintier than those on which our grandmothers tripped delicately. This is a surprising statement, especially since it comes from England, where women have somewhat aggressively worn flat heels for at least a generation. Walking is still a popular method of keeping warm in that land of open fires, and it cannot be managed comfortably on pretty little spikes. The impression has been current that everywhere women's feet are larger than they used to be because greater use of athletic sports has developed the bone and muscle. Especially in England would one expect to find the active flapper trotting on feet easily able to support her activity.

Girls and young men are taller than they used to be. There has been ample statistical proof of the increase in size of the average young person in this country. Doctors attribute the more athletic physique of the younger generation to better nourishing and generally improved living conditions. The evidence is to be seen everywhere. Towering young men are noticeably more numerous in crowds. Growing girls whose hands and feet seem not quite under control probably give the impression of greater height than they actually have. Their astonishing thinness adds inches to their apparent stature. It is hard to believe that they are capable of the demure tininess of the ladies whose feet like little mice stole in and out. The elegant petticoat of those seductive days must have aided in the effect.

Extremely high heels contribute to the apparent smallness of the foot. Exercise certainly increases muscle, and if our grandmothers had larger feet than the girls of today, they must have done more walking than they are ordinarily credited with. They not only walked upstairs and down, from one end of the large kitchen to the other, but they also took occasional sprints to the barn or the chicken yard. If girls persist in wearing the high heels on which they are now hobbling about, the exercise of walking will seem arduous, and when they have developed what one flapper proudly called "taxicab feet," the size will surely be diminished.

THE ARMENIAN CALAMITY.

The Armenian people, who have suffered every kind of persecution at the hand of man, who have been driven in great multitudes into exile and who have, to the number of more than a million, found shelter at last within the borders of Russia, are now victims of a disastrous earthquake. Alexandropol (renamed Leninakan), the centre of the disturbance, is but a short distance from Mount Ararat, where NOAH found dry land after the Deluge and began to till the soil again under the bow of promise. Here a remnant of the Armenian nation have been bravely working to establish themselves again. With the help of their kin in other parts of the world and of the Near East Relief, which has been taking care especially of their orphans, a good beginning has been made. They have been employing new methods of agriculture and stock-raising and have made progress in bringing water from the hills for irrigation.

The seemingly overwhelming disaster must be especially serious for people with so slight an economic margin. Fortunately, there is a group of American relief workers at Alexandropol—nurses, doctors, teachers, agriculturists, industrialists—accustomed to deal with suffering and need on a large scale, who were ready to give prompt and efficient aid. Whatever relief was possible with the resources at hand has doubtless been given. Nearly ten thousand children are housed in what were once Russian barracks in the outskirts of Alexandropol. The number has in the last few years been gradually reduced as the boys and girls have been sent out with agricultural and industrial training and at least an elementary education, to become workers and often leaders in the Armenian villages and cities. The first reports of the earthquake do not show any losses of life among these children or the relief workers, but it will be to the Near East Relief that all the people in distress throughout Armenia will naturally look for any relief that comes from America. Its work is well and gratefully known from Batum down past Ararat into Persia. It has also been the channel through which other countries have given to the rescue and training of children in that part of the world. It has sent something promptly from its own funds in this emergency, but the indications are that a large sum will be needed.

What is feared is that there has been great loss not only of life but also of stores. What with the infliction which the Armenians have suffered from the Turks, their losses during the war between the Turks and Russians over their territory, the severe rigors of last Winter, and now the devastation of the earthquake, they deserve the sympathy and aid of the world. Unless and until other plans are made for sending funds, it is to be assumed that the Near East Relief, 151 Fifth Avenue, will receive special gifts for prompt transmission.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

It Will Only Confirm Their Faith.

The existence of a large number of "Smith Republicans" has long been violently suspected. It is now officially recognized. The chief organ of the Republican Party in this city makes a solemn, even tearful, appeal to Republicans who have been in the habit of voting for Governor SMITH not to do so this year.

The argument made is rather queer. Why, this man SMITH is a thoroughgoing Democrat. He fills the offices at his disposal only with members of his own party. He omits no opportunity to attack and ridicule the Republican Party of New York. How can any large body of Republicans think for a moment of voting for him?

Well, it might have occurred to this Republican oracle that Smith Republicans have heartily approved of the Governor's denunciation of Republican policy at Albany. They have believed it to be not only selfish but stupid. They have seen their party in this State constantly sinking in public esteem because of the blind opposition of the Republican leaders at Albany to the measures of governmental reform which Governor SMITH has advocated, borrowing some of them from high Republican authorities of other days like Mr. ROOT. It is not probable, therefore, that they are going to be deterred this year from doing what they have done in previous contests—that is, register in the most emphatic way open to them their disapproval of what has gone on for years at Albany in the name of Republicanism.

The fact that their independent course has at last got under the skin of their party managers will be an incentive to many of them to keep on with the good work which they have been doing until the Republican organization brings forth fruits meet for repentance.

Horses, Milk and Flivvers.

Unless and until man invents a habit-forming automobile that starts, steers and stops itself without interference or thought by the driver, milkmen in the city will continue to use horses on their morning deliveries.

In The Dairyman's League News is a full-page article devoted to experiments made to determine the relative utility of automobiles and horses in delivering milk. From this it appears that the horse wins out largely because it needs so little attention from the driver. In fact, experiments were made which showed that in a journey of three hours and eleven minutes, delivering to more than 200 customers, the milkman spent only nine and a half minutes in handling his horse. Inasmuch as the animals come to know their routes, they stop and start at a word from the driver, who can rearrange his bottles. If he has an automobile, his entire attention is necessarily given to it.

There are other reasons why the horse is the better of the two. These have been carefully tested and tabulated, such as relative ability to get over bad roads, the climbing of hills, the elimination of waste motion, &c. These interest students of scientific management more than the general public.

Hereafter, when the sedate pounding of iron-shod hoofs on the hard pavement disturbs our slumbers in the early morning, we shall think of the fact that until the inventors can devise a car that responds to "giddap" and "whoa", the world will be safe for horses.

Finding Homes for Dependent Children.

One thing only is required of the children in care of the Child Placing Committee of the State Charities Aid Association. For twenty-eight years all that has been asked is that the child should be in need of the tender care of a father and mother. Good or bad, plain or beautiful, healthy or ill, obedient or untrained, all are accepted. Foundlings a few days old or waifs up to sixteen years are placed in homes where a foster child will receive care, training and affection.

The little girl of four who will be placed in a home today completes a total of 4,000 for whom homes have been found since the beginning of this work. She has had examinations by a doctor and by a psychologist. She has been boarded in the home of a good woman in moderate circumstances who cooperated with the association in training the child. A visitor will continue to call on the family taking the little girl unless she is adopted, for she remains a ward of the committee.

The first thought in such cases is of the many advantages to the child brought up in a good home. The foster parents want the child and are prepared to love and care for it in all ways. But the child does something for the home, too. The parents' lives are enriched by a deep and living interest that brings an enlargement of happiness to be got in no other way.

How to Be Stainless.

We are glad to see that the Government has undertaken to tell people how to remove stains. We have always felt so helpless in the premises. When we got grease on our coat we knew enough to try it first with warm water and soap, rubbing thoroughly. If that didn't work, we could always tap a little gasoline out of the car. Moreover, we had a misty notion about taking out candle-wax with the aid of blotting paper and a hot iron. But these were the utter limits of our knowledge.

What should be done when the waiter spills the soup on your sleeve, or the salad dressing in your lap? Until now these matters have been mysteries not for our prying. They need be so no longer. In Farmers' Bulletin No. 1,474, the United States Department of Agriculture tells us just how to act in these and a hundred other appalling contingencies. Sitting on fly-paper, for instance: "Fly-paper (sticky)—See Resins and Resinous Substances. * * * Use turpentine, benzol, carbon tetrachloride, chloroform, wood or denatured alcohol, ether, kerosene or gasoline. * * * Dip the spot in it and rub."

The pamphlet really ought to be an appendix to every book on etiquette.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Reading the letter of Edith Wilkinson on cancellation of all war debts, with her references to Robert U. Johnson and Jefferson W. Baker and other Americans who want to keep Paris pleasant for future visits, I feel moved to ask why if we ought to cancel war debts, should we hesitate to cancel the war debts to our own citizens, France to hers and England to hers? A war debt is a war debt wherever it may fall. Our capitalists, corporations and financial houses have our war bonds. Why not cancel them? Why not create financial chaos at home as well as internationally?

England and France are pushing Russia for debts; France wants the German reparations with a greed that cannot be overstressed. All of them want their pound of flesh, but "Uncle Shylock" should be the great distributing source of the blood to flow.

If we cancel the war debts owing to us it is our citizens who will have to pay the principal and interest for sixty-two years and more.

When it comes to political and commercial relations, it is possible the United States can survive the period that Europe stands, tin cup in hand, begging contributions to support her military and diplomatic extravagances. There are countries in the world outside of Europe. Why not build them up with our investments and make them friends? Why no trade with "poor desolate Europe" for some of her colonial outlyings in America tha menace us for the future? Europe's grasp on them is strangely significant of her desire to love us. YOUNG E. ALLISON.

An Ex-Republican's Tariff Views.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The Chairman of the National Republican Congressional Committee says: "In 1902 the Democratic leaders denounced the then pending Fordney-McCumber Tariff bill and now, seeing a nation prosperous through political policies in which the Republican tariff is the keynote, the Democratic leaders hastily are silencing their tongues and trying to forget past predictions."

As a lifelong Republican, until recently, I most emphatically deny that any tariff policy has had anything to do with our so-called prosperity. If there is prosperity, it is in spite of all the tariffs that the Republicans can saddle on the people. One might as well say that if a narcotic fiend happens to be strong for any length of time, it is because of his unfortunate infliction that he is so.

The gentleman further says: "That the tariff has earned for the people $1,000,000,000 in increased customs receipts." Who pays this billion dollars? Is it not the people themselves?

Another statement, which is as false as it is illogical, is the one to the effect that the tariff has increased our foreign trade. Pray, how does this miracle work, when it is admitted that it deters our best foreign customers from buying our goods?

Only the election of Democratic Senators and Representatives can help break the strangle-hold that this iniquitous tariff has upon every consumer in America.

Mr. Osborne Mourned.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The world has lost a great man. Thomas Mott Osborne's unselfishness and understanding of the underworld none can appreciate except one who has worked with him through his entire career.

When his sons left for their own homes he gave unstintingly of himself, in every manner, shape and form, to what we name the underworld, though he never called it that.

I feel that I can speak more freely than any one else, for I fully appreciate and know the great good that he has accomplished. It is impossible to estimate the loss of Mr. Osborne. HELENE HARTLEY JENKINS.

A PRAYER IN LATE AUTUMN.

When Life has borne its harvest from my heart,
And only tarnished husks are there,
Grotesquely stacked and bristling the torn ground,
And there is Winter in the air;
When, like this field, I wait—within my soul
The scars of lost fertility,
And I am ugly, not with conquering strength,
But with a sere fragility—
God, let me keep my sense of humor then,
Grant me some clumsy power to shield
My awful dearth just as one pumpkin mocks,
In clownish glee, this frosted field!

MR. MILLS'S SHORTCOMINGS

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The more I read of the present Gubernatorial campaign the more reason I see for voting for Alfred E. Smith.

From the beginning of Mr. Mills's tour through the State he has sought to divert the attention of the voters from the real issues of the campaign and force them upon a milk diet, which has not been a very healthy one. When forced to change his argument he has shown that he is not what one would call an expert at State government, or else that he is ignorant of facts.

In bringing up the question of a mythical milk scandal he first brought to light his small knowledge of the facts. The issue itself evidently was fed to him by a man who is neither a true Democrat nor a true Republican; a man who, through his papers, some years ago, attempted to defile the character of the same Alfred E. Smith by the same cry of "milk." Mr. Mills naturally could not be blamed for accepting the support of these papers, which, through their circulation, attempt to dictate to the voters, but no doubt he sees by this time that he has made a grave mistake.

The milk investigation was started and convictions were obtained—all before Mr. Mills became a candidate. And it was found that all the graft occurred during the administration of a man who was sponsored by the same man who is trying to direct Mr. Mills's campaign in an effort to get revenge upon the one man who rid both our city and State of his clutches.

At present Justice Kelby, a Republican, is heading the continuation of the investigation. He has repudiated Mr. Mills's charges, and has offered to do anything the Republican candidate might suggest, but so far this challenge is unaccepted.

Mr. Mills in his latest charges about the milk supply states that thirty-nine out of forty samples of the milk distributed in Queens County were adulterated, but I note by this morning's paper that he again hedges when the District Attorney of that county asks him to submit proofs. Mr. Mills replies by saying that a few days will not make any difference in the investigation, which proves that as a protector of the milk supply and exposer of scandals he is a good politician.

In the prohibition issue he is slightly better in that he tells us how he is to vote, but refuses to catch himself by advising his fellow-Republicans how to vote.

He tackled the question of appropriations once, but dropped it like a hot potato. The reason was quite plain. He did not answer Governor Smith's question as to what he would do if he were Governor. Mr. Mills did not deny that he could not have the appropriations voted by the people for the elimination of grade crossings and the improvements needed throughout the State revoked. He did not deny that this grade crossing elimination meant the saving of lives. He did not deny that State hospitals and other buildings were needed for years. He forgot that even Mr. Hughes failed to get these improvements, and that Mr. Hughes admitted this last year when Governor Smith fought for them.

Mr. Mills shows that he is a man of the capitalists in that he approves of the private control of the State's water power—a thing which the late Theodore Roosevelt fought against. He does not deny that the public can be exploited by such control.

Furthermore, some Republican papers do not seem to be confining themselves to State issues, but are trying their best to make a Presidential campaign out of it by saying that a vote for Governor Smith is a vote for him as a Presidential candidate in 1928.

In the first place, they are paying him a compliment by thus attacking him. They admit by such a statement that he is a foremost candidate, and that if elected as Governor he will be a hard man to beat.

Alfred E. Smith does not have to talk in this campaign to elect himself—he need only refer to his record. What makes his record all the more impressive is that he brought about all his reforms with a hostile Republican Legislature, which did not pass them until public opinion forced them to do so. He has proved not only a financial expert but an Executive the like of which this State has never known. He may enjoy personal popularity, but behind it all he has ability which makes him worthy of a fourth term and in 1928 the Democratic nominee for President.

Questioning Mr. Celler's View.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

The statement of my opponent for the office of Congressman for the Tenth District with reference to the Bacon bill and the Colonel Carmi Thompson mission to the Philippines was printed in the newspapers a short time ago.

In the opinion of Mr. Celler, the purpose of the mission and other Administration activities has been to exploit the Filipinos in the interest of American rubber capitalists.

Is it too much to ask that Mr. Celler furnish us with some supporting evidence of his contention? I believe that if none is forthcoming we may rightly conclude that the present Administration is making an honest effort to settle a perplexing problem.

Certainly, in the light of Cuba's problem with Japanese and Chinese immigration, the time is not ripe for another similar situation to be invited in this part of the world, as would be inevitably the case if Philippine independence were granted.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Candidate Mills has repeatedly charged that the supply of milk in New York City is adulterated and unsafe. This has been reprinted from Maine to California.

Mills after the election should either be compelled to publicly prove the charges or be held in utter contempt and buried in political oblivion.

Civic pride and common decency require that no man should be permitted to slander officials, unduly alarm citizens on a matter so important to the public health and injure the fair name of a city with impunity.

NAVY DAY WILL SEE NEW WARSHIP BEGUN

Keel for First of Eight New Cruisers to Be Laid Here at Celebration Wednesday.

Federation Head and Other Labor Leaders Will Attend Ceremony at Brooklyn Yard.

Shipbuilding at the Brooklyn Navy Yard, which has been suspended since 1921 as a result of the Washington Arms Conference, will be resumed on Wednesday and will be accompanied by appropriate ceremonies, as a further celebration of the annual Navy Day. An official announcement to this effect was made yesterday. Precisely at noon the Navy Yard constructors will formally lay the keel of the U. S. S. Pensacola, the first of the 10,000 ton so-called "treaty cruisers" to be built in this country. William Green, President of the American Federation of Labor, has accepted an invitation to drive the first rivet of the new cruiser.

Mr. Green's presence, it was said, would emphasize the interest of organized labor in the resumption of shipbuilding activities here. "It will be recalled," said the announcement, "that activities at the Brooklyn Navy Yard were much curtailed and many thousand men thrown out of employment as a result of the scrapping of the battleships building there at the time of the Washington conference."

Labor Leaders to Attend.

Other labor leaders expected to attend the ceremonies include: Roy Horn, President, International Brotherhood of Boiler Makers, Iron Ship Builders and Helpers of North America; J. J. Hynes, President, Sheet Metal Workers' International Association; G. F. Hedrick, President, Brotherhood of Painters, Decorators and Paper Hangers of America; James Wilson, President, Pattern Makers' League of North America; John Goefield, President, United Association of Plumbers and Steamfitters of the United States and Canada; James O'Connell, President, Metal Trades Department, A. F. of L., and the Secretary of that department, A. J. Borres.

The new Pensacola will have a speed of 32 knots, a length over all of 585½ feet, a 66-foot beam and a draught of 19½ feet. Its battery will comprise ten 8-inch guns, four 5-inch anti-aircraft guns and six torpedo tubes. The navy announcement continued:

"Since the restrictions imposed on capital ships by the Washington treaties, the light cruiser type occupies the next most prominent place among combatant vessels, especially as no restrictions except size are imposed on this type.

"The importance of this is indicated by the fact that Great Britain has authorized and is building twelve vessels of this type, and Japan has authorized twelve, six of which have already been completed. While the United States has authorized eight, funds have been appropriated for beginning actual construction of only five, of which the Pensacola is the first to have her keel laid."

Addresses Over the Radio.

The navy also announced that a naval vessels would be open for th inspection of visitors to the yard o Wednesday.

An extensive radio program has bee arranged for celebration of the day, ac cording to the announcement, whic said that Curtis D. Wilbur, Secreta of the Navy; Lieut. Commander Byrd who made the first flight by airplane across the North Pole, and others would speak through Station WEAF from 8:30 to 9:30 that night; Mayor Hanna of Syracuse, N. Y., Station WFBL, 7:30 P. M.; Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, Station WGBS, 7 P. M., and Mayor O'Neil of Rochester, N. Y., Station WHEC, 9:30 P. M.

AWARDS TO 5,000 PUPILS.

Jewish Association Gives Prizes for Religious School Work.

The Jewish Education Association awarded five thousand prizes at three meetings yesterday to pupils who had shown proficiency in study and superior attendance records at three hundred religious schools in the city in the past year. The meeting places and the respective speakers were: Cooper Union, Judge Otto A. Rosalsky, Bernard Semel, President of the association; Israel Unterberg and Benjamin Veit, Director of Junior High Schools of the Board of Education; Stuyvesant High School, Dr. Robert B. Brodie, Principal of Seward Park High School, J. Lazarowitz and Harry Liebowitz; Thomas Jefferson High School, Brooklyn, John Rudavsky, Pincus Rudoy, President of the Hebrew Principals' Association, Ephraim Caplan, Jacob H. Cohen and Rabbi Maxwell Sachs.

The prizes comprised Summer vacation scholarships at the camp maintained by the Central Jewish Institute, books, medals and pennants, and were offered by the association as an additional incentive to Jewish children attending religious schools. Three rallies will be held on Oct. 31 in other parts of Manhattan, and two on Nov. 7, it was announced.

GIFTS FOR CITY COLLEGE.

Henry Wollman Creates Two Funds and Alumni Give Jefferson Bust.

Three gifts to City College were announced yesterday by Acting President Frederick B. Robinson.

Henry Wollman, who recently presented to the college a residual estate of $300,000 to be used by the School of Business and Civic Administration, gave a sum of money, the amount of which was not announced, to establish a new prize in accountancy. The prize is to be awarded annually to the student writing the best essay on the function of the accountant. Mr. Wollman also gave a fund to purchase reference books for the library.

A committee of alumni presented a bust of Thomas Jefferson, the work of Robert I. Aitken. The committee was headed by Admiral Louis M. Josephthal. The Board of Trustees approved the gifts at its last meeting.

Jefferson's bust will be placed in the marble corridor of the main building of the college, at Convent Avenue and 140th Street.

He has distinguished himself in both tuberculosis and cancer research and received the Jung cancer research prize in January, 1924.

ASSAILS SMITH FOR TEACHERS' PAY VETO

Henry W. Taft Says Governor Was Determined to Kill All Salary Rise Bills of Republicans.

CALLS REASONS 'PRETEXTS'

Asserts Times Editorial Which He Calls Misleading, Was Distributed to Teachers.

Efforts by the Democratic Party to charge Republican legislative leaders with the responsibility for the failure to provide pay increases for New York City public school teachers fall upon examination of the facts, Henry W. Taft declared yesterday. He said it was difficult to see why Governor Smith had refused to give a salary increase to the teachers.

He added that the teachers must wait another year for salary increases because the money that should have gone to the increase of their salaries had been turned over for paving city streets, by the action of a Democratic City Administration.

"A persistent effort has been made in this campaign to charge upon Republican leaders in the Legislature responsibility for the failure to put into effect proposed schedules raising and adjusting salaries of the teaching force in the schools of this city," Mr. Taft said. "This has been done through statements by Governor Smith and by circulation to every teacher in the school system of an editorial in THE NEW YORK TIMES of Oct. 12, entitled 'The Mayor's Committee on Teachers' Salaries.'

Quotes Editorial in The Times.

"In the editorial referred to, a statement is made that 'if the salary bills recommended by the Friedsam Commission had been passed by the Legislature, the minimum salary would have been raised throughout the State. This would have been made possible only by an increased State appropriation. As the bill providing for this additional State appropriation was not passed, New York City would have found itself unable to make the increases unless there could be reduced expenditures in other departments.'

"In black type in the copy sent to the teachers appeared this statement:

"'The appointment of the Mayor's committee carried into effect the Governor's recommendation that since the State made no appropriation out of its own funds and since the city could not, according to official views, make the proposed mandatory increases within the constitutional limitation, a committee of representative citizens should be appointed to study the subject of teachers' salaries with a view to recommending local action.'

"The clear implication from these statements is that the Governor was justified in vetoing the salary bills of 1926; that this was made imperative by the failure of the Republican leaders to pass the bill recommended by the Friedsam Commission; that the city would not have been able to finance the salary schedules without cutting down the appropriation for other departments, and that if became necessary to have the whole matter considered by the unofficial committee appointed by the Mayor.

Calls Conclusions Unjustified.

"No one of these conclusions is justified by the facts. For a reason which is not yet manifest, the Governor was determined to veto all teacher salary bills favored by the Republicans in the Legislatures of 1925 and 1926 and the editorial in question merely repeated pretexts which the Governor gave for his action. The excuse which for political reasons he has most frequently given, and which is referred to in THE TIMES editorial, is that the Republican leaders would not pass the so-called Cole-Rice bill, containing the provisions for State aid recommended by the Friedsam Commission.

"THE TIMES said that if the bill was passed, the minimum 'would again have been lifted throughout the State,' presumably referring to the minimum salary. As a matter of fact, the Cole-Rice bill fixed no minimum salaries, but merely apportioned State aid in accordance with a fixed system. The editorial proceeds as follows:

"'As the bill providing for this additional State appropriation was not passed, New York City would have been unable to make the increases.'

"This is grossly misleading. The ability of New York City to make increases provided for in the salary bills of 1926 was not dependent upon the passage of the Cole-Rice bill, although the Governor sought to give the impression that if the Cole-Rice bill was passed it 'would have provided the money.' Here the Governor was wrong, as a statement concerning the Cole-Rice bill will disclose.

Provisions of the Bill.

"That bill provided for an additional appropriation of $18,000,000 for the entire State for the first year, of which New York City would have received about $13,000,000. But it was provided in the bill that it was not to take effect until July 8, 1927, and as State school moneys are paid to the localities in March and May, New York City would not have received one dollar under the Cole-Rice bill until March and May, 1928—two years after the passage of the bills. The Governor must have known these facts when he vetoed the bills.

"Indeed, he stated in his letter transmitting the report of the commission, that its 'program, so far as appropriations are concerned, must wait till next year.' I am credibly informed that before vetoing the bills and before the Friedsam Commission had made its report and before the Cole-Rice bill had been introduced, the Governor had said that he would veto any bills for increasing the salaries of the teachers of New York City.

"But that is not all. Although the Friedsam report was sent to the Legislature on April 8, the printed copies for the members did not reach the Legislature until three days before the day fixed for adjournment. It was a pamphlet of 146 pages. It contained an elaborate statement and recommendations. Obviously, it would have been necessary that it be studied and discussed, and it would have been impossible in the time at the disposition of the Legislature to pass the necessary bills carrying it into effect. This the Governor knew when he sought to throw the responsibility upon the Republican leaders.

Cites Governor's "Excuse."

"THE TIMES editorial accepts the excuse of the Governor that the city would have been 'compelled to suffer financial embarrassment if these salary bills were approved.' On Oct. 12, when the editorial was written, it was already known that, through property assessments in this city, there would be available a surplus over and above the requirements for the tentative budget which would have enabled the city to put into effect the schedule called for in the bills of 1926, which had been vetoed by the Governor, and a situation had already arisen which was referred to by the Governor when he vetoed the Ricca-Kleinfeld bill of 1925, in which the salary increases could now be made by the city itself through the Board of Estimate and Apportionment. It was not necessary that the Mayor's committee should study the matter, because the increased assessment made the necessary funds available if they were not diverted to other purposes.

"And yet, only last night at Utica, the Governor is reported to have said that he 'had vetoed the teachers' salary bills last May at the request of the city to give it an opportunity to increase teachers' salaries without mandatory legislation.'

Questions Governor's Reasons.

"And so we find the Governor first charging that the Republican leaders are themselves responsible for defeating the bills for increased salaries, because they would not provide State funds, and then in the next breath excusing his veto upon the ground that the city would voluntarily appropriate the money when funds were available, as that time arrived and as the Board of Estimate had the necessary surplus funds to put the increased schedule into effect.

"On Oct. 13 Controller Berry reported to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment that there was $15,000,000 of unencumbered funds for the coming year. He did not, however, recommend that this should be appropriated to teachers' salaries, but that it should be used for repaving and the expenses of the Transportation Board. Not a suggestion was made, either by the Governor or any member of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, that the $15,000,000 should be used to raise the salaries of the teachers, although this was exactly the amount of the expected deficit in revenues for 1927 which, as he said, caused the Governor to veto the salary bills of 1926."

Discusses Governor's Veto.

Mr. Taft recalled that Governor Smith in vetoing the Ricca bill in 1926 said that the necessary running expenses of the City Government would be $283,100,000, and that the city could not raise the $18,000,000 additional required for the salary increases. He declared the Governor's action in 1925 had been based upon an inaccurate estimate of the increase in taxable property assessment in the city, which proved to be $1,645,000,000 instead of $1,000,000,000, as the Governor estimated. He added that the Board of Estimate had not used the increased taxing power available to increase the salaries, as the Governor had predicted it would.

"Taking him at his word," Mr. Taft continued, "the teachers petitioned the Board of Education and applied to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment for the sum of $5,700,000 for salary increases, but the application, as usual, was without avail.

"The tax rate for city and county purposes for 1926 is .0139 and the unused taxing power is .0011. This latter figure applied to the assessed valuations appearing on the tax bills would give $14,325,000 more than enough to put in operation the Ricca-Kleinfeld bill. If, therefore, the Governor had signed that bill, he would not have embarrassed the city financially and the teachers would now be receiving the modest increases, whose necessity neither the Governor nor any member of the Board of Estimate ever questioned. Still less would the salary bills of 1926 have financially embarrassed the city if their provisions had gone into effect, for the Walker administration has had at its disposal the largest increase of taxing power in many years.

Asks Why "Mistakes" Were Not Remedied.

"If we grant that the Governor and the Controller in 1925 and 1926 made honest mistakes in judgment in their estimate of the probable financial resources of the city for 1927, why did they not unite, as they might successfully have united during the past week, in applying the rich surplus discovered by the increased property assessment, in an endeavor to undo the harm brought about by the Governor's vetoes of 1925 and 1926?

"It would have been a simple matter indeed for the Board of Estimate and Apportionment to have added the $15,000,000 surplus to the budget of the Board of Education, and this would have made it possible for that board to put in full force on Jan. 1, 1927, the salary schedules reported by the Citizens' Committee, which have met the approval of the great mass of the teachers and supervisors, and which the Citizens' Committee estimated would cost a little over $13,000,000. This could have been accomplished on the request of the Governor, the leader of his party. That he failed to do so is convincing evidence that he, and he alone, is responsible for withholding from the teachers of this city just and reasonable compensation for their services.

"In his speech at Utica last night, already referred to, he said that he vetoed the bills 'because the city asked for an opportunity to increase teachers' salaries there without mandatory legislation.' He surely knew that a sufficient amount was available for the increase. He also knew that the welfare of the schools was more important than the indefinite expense of paving and paying the expenses of the Transportation Board. He also knew that as the leader of his party the Board of Estimate and Apportionment would not dare to refuse his request that the surplus be appropriated to raising the salaries of teachers, as he intimated in his veto messages of 1925 and 1926 would be done when it could be done without financial embarrassment to the city.

Questions Governor's Sincerity.

"Why the Governor refused to give the salary increase to the teachers it is difficult to see, but one questions the sincerity of his protestations when he reads that he said in one of his veto messages that he did not 'believe it right for the teachers who would benefit by the bills to urge their passage before the Legislature * * *' in order to preserve the morale and promote the efficiency of the great army of school teachers in the City of New York. The Board of Education, the body charged by law with the administration of the educational system of the city, should initiate where legislation is required to make effective any of these bills.'

"It is not necessary to discuss the merits of the bill, for neither Governor Smith nor anyone else has questioned the reasonableness of the proposed ways in which the increase could be made provided it was without his cooperation as Governor. He has tried to pass the responsibility first to the Board of Estimate and Apportionment, then to the Board of Education, then to the Republican leaders of the Senate and the Assembly, then to the Friedsam Committee, and then to the Mayor's unofficial committee. In the meantime the salaries have not been increased, and the situation has been thrown into such confusion that any proposed salary increase has been postponed indefinitely.

"The history of the schools in the last thirty years shows that neither the Board of Education nor the Board of Estimate and Apportionment nor the Mayor has ever initiated any measure to make the salaries of our teaching and superintending force keep pace with the increase in the cost of living. This fact must have been known to the Governor, and he must also have known that unless the Legislature had from time to time intervened, the teachers of this city could never have found any relief.

"For another year the teacher must endure, for his salary increase goes to pay for the paving of the city streets."

L. B. SANDERSON DIES; SHIPPING PIONEER

HEAD OF SANDERSON & SON

Combined Shipping Interests of His Two Brothers and Himself the Largest in World.

Lloyd Bowen Sanderson, dean of the shipping men in New York City, general manager of the Royal Mail and Pacific Steam Navigation Company, 26 Broadway, and senior partner in the firm of Sanderson & Son, died yesterday at his home, 927 Park Avenue in his sixty-first year. He is survived by his wife, Ottilie Force Sanderson; two sons, Lloyd Bowen Sanderson Jr. and Robert Monro Sanderson, both associated with their father in business, and four brothers.

Funeral services will be held at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning in Trinity Church, Broadway and Wall Street. The burial services will be private.

Two of Mr. Sanderson's brothers, both his senior in years, are important figures in the shipping world—Harold A. Sanderson, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the International Mercantile Marine Company, and Oswald Sanderson, managing director of the Ellerman-Wilson Line of Hull, England. The combined shipping interests of the three brothers are the largest in the world. The two other brothers are R. P. C. Sanderson of the Baldwin Locomotive Works in Philadelphia and Percy Sanderson of Vancouver, B. C.

Mr. Sanderson was born at Oxton, Cheshire, England, a son of the Richard Sanderson who in 1878 founded Sanderson & Son in old State Street, this city. He was educated at a French lycee at Caen, Normandy, and at Birkenhead School in Liverpool. He had a country home at Rumson, N. J.

Mr. Sanderson was of uncommonly fine physique, 6 feet 3 inches in height and broad in proportion. He was a member of the Racquet and Tennis and Rumson Country Clubs, the St. George's Society, of which he had been president for two successive years; India House and White's of London.

FEDERATION STARTS 'FIGHT FOR YOUTH'

American Body Opens Drive on Militarism, Child Labor and Compulsory Training.

The American Federation of Youth, at the end of its first conference, yesterday afternoon at the International House, on Riverside Drive, went on record as favoring a nation-wide program of enlightenment to combat compulsory military training and militarism, imperialism and child labor, which it says are outstanding evils in this country today.

The text of the resolution, adopted by a vote of 54 to 23, was as follows: "The Fall conference of the American Federation of Youth, desirous of seeing the building of a youth movement which will embrace all youth organizations in a struggle against militarism, imperialism and child labor, recommends to the Executive Council of the Federation that it carry out a program of enlightenment on youth problems through debates, mass meetings, forums and publications, in order to further effectively its fight for youth rights."

Discussion yesterday afternoon brought out the major problems facing American youth, as seen by the conference, to be child labor, excess profits of capitalists, compulsory military training, marriage failures, educational wrongs, birth control, lack of religion in colleges and schools, imperialism and colonial growth, curtailment of free speech and employer opposition to trade unions.

Delegates urged that youths should take a greater interest in politics and make more effort to get into office.

B. E. HARRISS DEAD; A COTTON AUTHORITY

Baylis E. Harriss, Mayor of Galveston, Texas, and one of the foremost authorities on cotton, died yesterday in a hospital at Asheville, N. C., according to word received here last night. Death was due to heart disease, with which he was stricken while playing golf at the Asheville Country Club several days ago. The funeral services will be held at his late home in Galveston on Wednesday. His age was 43.

Mayor Harriss leaves a wife, five children, three brothers—Richard T., William Lewis and Robert M. Harriss—and two sisters, Mrs. A. W. Sully and Mrs. C. E. Warren.

He was a member of the cotton firm of Harriss, Irby & Vose and belonged to the New York, New Orleans, Dallas and Galveston cotton exchanges. He had been President of the Texas Cotton Association and of the Galvosten Cotton Exchange.

During a session of the Democratic National Convention in Madison Square Garden in June and July, 1924, Mayor Harriss sent from Galveston to THE NEW YORK TIMES two telegrams that caused remark and amusement. The Mayor, in vigorous and picturesque language, urged the nomination of "Old Al" Smith and the defeat of McAdoo and the Klan.

The Eternal Arts of the East

A Vivid Word Picture of the Camels

At daybreak in Arabia, when a long caravan of camels from afar came down the mountain, the writer saw each one bearing on its back bales of wool, bags of Mocha coffee, spices of Araby, rugs from Persia and shawls from India.

They were on the way to the port of Aden, there to load their goods on ships to cross the Ocean.

Each floor of this store and warehouse is a camel that comes down in the morning early.

The Store Camel carries from afar treasures from every land, some of which have traveled thousands of miles before reaching our sales floors—all the way from the dusky, mahogany red men of East India to the lands of the Red Indians of North America.

The Far East goods are rapidly growing scarce.

December 3, 1915

SEEING the objects of serene and flawless loveliness reposing so tranquilly in The Oriental House at Wanamaker's... as if they had blossomed there like lotus flowers in a still pool . . . who would dream of the almost insuperable difficulties met and conquered that they might be here for Western eyes to gaze upon?... Jades and porcelains from an Emperor's palace... Jewelled plaques from the shrine of a Thibetan god . . . Great temple figures, larger than life size, of the T'ang Dynasty —618 to 906 A. D. . . . Rare crystals of almost visionary beauty . . . Pellucid rose quartz figures, the color of lotus petals . . . Lamps and lanterns like frozen moonlight, their translucent lacework a miniature of the Taj Mahal in alabaster... Snuff bottles in many a rare and precious substance . . . Palace vases . . . Priests' robes, stiff with brocade of gold and silver . . . The jewelled mirror of an Empress . . . Almost literally, in the words of a Chinese poem written in the First century B. C.

"We go to the Golden Palace We set out the jade cups"

BUT with what patience and persistence of the journey, by train, by steamer, by camel back and bullock-cart! A journey of 50,000 miles, requiring six months to accomplish. The quest leading through the stress of wartime in China, undeterred by battle or barricade. To remote, all but inaccessible, places that the ordinary traveller never sees. And to places of the most romantic loveliness, of legendary fame, whose very names are magical. To the Purple Forbidden City of Peking, with its wonderful blue roofs, its gleaming golden tiles, and the "soft rose-red walls of that enclosure where the Son of Heaven dwelt." . . . To the Seven Fountains in the Vale of Kashmir... The Holy City of Benares... The Pink City of Jaipur and old Amber... To Burma and Mandalay . . . Taking the "golden road to Samarkand" like the pilgrims of old... Reaching even the threshold of mysterious Thibet. Often the quest of a single fine piece... rumor of which had travelled from afar... leading from one country over the border line of another.

And Here are the Treasures

From China, wonderful potteries and porcelains, ivories, bronzes, crystals and other hard stones, textiles and embroideries. Above all, the marvelous carvings wrought from jade, a substance "more tenacious than granite", more difficult to work than steel; synonym and symbol to the Chinese of supreme virtue and beauty, of all perfection in the highest sense.

Carvings wrought with infinite patience and difficulty, with jewel-sand and the treadle wheel. Yet attaining such a delicacy, illusive softness and limpid polish that they seem to have been caressed out of the stone. Marvelous teak wood furniture from the Imperial Palace. Ancient carved lacquers. Objects dating from the Chou Dynasty—1122 to 225 B. C. —from the great epochs of T'ang and Sung, the fine craftsmanship of the Ming Dynasty. From Korea, old wedding chests with their curiously wrought metal clasps and hinges... From Jaipur, enamelled brasses in jewel-like colors. From Delhi and Agra, objects of lace-like alabaster, inlaid jewel, boxes, ivories, miniature paintings, gorgeous hangings embroidered in gold and silver... Exquisite saris from Benares, gold and silver tissues... Rugs, Gubbas and Broghari hangings from Peshawur on the frontier of Afghanistan... Angora rugs and embroidered hangings from romantic Kashmir, 8700 feet high in the foot-hills of the Himalayas. Chuddar shawls—the famous ring-shawls—so fine that nine square yards will go easily through a small finger ring. Jewels—turquoise, chrysophrase and lapis lazuli, mined in the Himalayas . . .

From Thibet, the gorgeous panels richly encrusted with jewels, and the altar accessories, made centuries ago at Nepal for Thibetan monasteries.

From Persia, old lacquer bookcovers, writing boxes and fan holders. And paintings so fine they will bear microscopic inspection.

Such a quest—and conquest—cannot be gauged by length and labor alone. Love and life-long devotion, and above all the sixth sense of the connoisseur—without which all labor would be in vain—the specialist's rare skill—these are still more important, indeed indispensable factors in success. The Wanamaker representative goes always as a friend . . . in love and reverence . . . needing no interpreter. For only to a friend will the Chinese open their treasure houses, revealing precious things they would never show to another, rarities that otherwise would never come on the market at all.

If this sketchy review leads you to a personal visit, you will readily see that the Oriental House at Wanamaker's is not a bazaar—haphazard miscellany of good bad and indifferent—but a very notable collection of the Eternal Arts of the East—the most notable of its kind in the world outside of museums.

The Wanamaker Oriental House

. . . encases the eternal arts of the East in photographic form—32 specimens done in soft tints... holding the elusive quality of the original . . . coming to you as messengers of the thousand and one other objects in the Wanamaker Oriental House. Objects which sages and scholars and artists have actually lived with in the East . . . and which you now in the West may live with in your own homes.

32 specimens; suggesting 10,000 more in the House

Program of Compositions by Greig, Locatelli, Chopin, Corelli, Couperin and Popper

Marcel Hubert will again play on the magnificent Montagnana 'cello from the Rodman Wanamaker Collection of Rare Italian Instruments

What the Press has said of Hubert:

New York Times: "M. Hubert proved himself a player of singularly pure tone and repose of style. He had, withal, the undying fire of temperament that set the life blood stirring in suave melodies of classic masters."

New York Herald Tribune: "Marcel Hubert, 19, wins favor as he makes U. S. debut . . . a young man of notable technical ability with a smooth tone of satisfactory strength and good quality . . . sometimes unusually velvety . . . on the whole placing M. Hubert, it seemed, on the first class." F. D. P.

New York Sun: "A sensitive, intelligent young musician with fine talents already matured and developed . . . a musical perspective and sense of form which placed his lighter numbers in a high plane."

New York Evening World: "M. Hubert has amassed a scintillant technique and a style of Gallic finesse." F. D. Stokes.

New York Evening Post: "Throughout there was the glow of temperament, of understanding and of technical skill most satisfying."

Brooklyn Standard Union: "A new and very important figure in the solo 'cellist field has arrived in the person of this young Frenchman. He had at his disposal the famous Montagnana 'cello now acquired for the Wanamaker Collection. From this precious instrument M. Hubert drew a tone of magnified beauty, a tone akin to that of Kreisler's on the violin."

New York World: "He played on a Montagnana 'cello with so luscious a tenor tone that its sensuousness must have been enhanced by the antiquarian associations of the instrument."

The Decorative Importance of

BELMAISON REPRODUCTION FURNITURE

There are just two reasons for the position of decorative importance and authority that Belmaison Reproductions have inevitably come to occupy. But in them lies the secret of all that Belmaison has accomplished.

Sending its good pieces to carefully planned interiors, not only in and near New York, but throughout the country, Belmaison Reproductions are exact and faithful copies of actual antique pieces designed by the great cabinetmakers of the past—in many cases of pieces which we ourselves have discovered, in this country and abroad. And their diversity is so great that with them one may easily furnish an entire house of practically any good style or period.

QUEEN ANNE WALNUT FOR BEDROOM AND DINING ROOM

Two of Belmaison's interiors show, for example, the many possibilities of Queen Anne walnut, with it graceful curving lines, its delicate and dignified ornament. In one, a pine-panelled room, are correct reproductions of the gracious drawing-room furniture—the tall cabinets, tables, high-backed chairs and sofas—of the age. In another, equaly correct and charming pieces compose a most agreeable bedroom.

ENGLISH OAK AND 18TH CENTURY MAHOGANY

Other interiors have been arranged as indication of what may be done with oak in Tudor and Jacobean houses. There are refectory and gate leg tables, Yorkshire chairs, court cupboards and hospitable open-shelved dressers. And many attractive pieces for a man's study or bedroom. Here too are reproductions of the fine mahogany of the latter part of the 18th Century, so perfect in every detail that it is difficult to realize that they are not originals. Pedestal dining-tables. Beautiful chairs after oil Sheraton and Hepplewhite examples. Sideboards, writing tables and stately high-post beds.

FRENCH PROVINCIAL, SPANISH AND EARLY AMERICAN EXAMPLES

Here are no end of picturesque pieces for a house in the rustic French manner. Louis XV. draw top tables. Quaint rush-seated beech-wood chairs and benches. All sorts of engaging small tables. The graceful poudreuse. Nor has the decorative furniture of Spain been forgotten. The quaint small tables and stools. The delightful painted and gilded beds characteristic of Catalonia. The good Italian pieces of the 17th and 18th Centuries, in their gaiety of paint or dignity of dark carved walnut. And all the simplicity and charm of early America in the maple reproductions for bedroom, dining-room and living-room.

OVERSTUFFED CHAIRS AND SOFAS COVERED WITH ANTIQUE MATERIALS

Comfortable overstuffed furniture of good simple lines has been covered with antique materials of great decorative merit—old Italian filat filaticcio, lovely, warm-hued old damasks, and the gay quilted petticoats of Provence—bringing such pieces so essential to comfort into harmony with the stylized room. The collection comprises both the large and important pieces, and every possible variety of what the French call petits meubles.

BRITAIN CONTINUES CONTROL OF RUBBER

CUT IN ALLOWANCE LIKELY

With Price for Current Quarter Under 21 Pence the 100% Standard Will Probably Go.

OUR DEMAND A BIG FACTOR

Growth of American Auto Industry Is Expected to Take Care of 40,000-Ton Surplus.

LONDON, Oct. 24 (AP).—The Colonial Office has decided that the Stevenson Scheme for the restriction of rubber exports from Ceylon and Malaya shall continue for at least another year, but under new regulations. These regulations will be put into effect Nov. 1 and will not be changed until November, 1927.

If it should then be decided to continue the policy of restriction for a further period, the official statement says, any changes that may then be considered desirable will be made.

The New Regulations.

Following are the new regulations:

1.—If the average price of rubber in London is under 21, but not under 15 pence per pound during any quarter, the exportable percentage of standard productions for the ensuing quarter at the minimum rate of duty will be reduced by 10. If, however, the reduction thus effected is a reduction from the figure of 100 per cent., the reduced percentage for the ensuing quarter will be 80.

2.—If the average price of any quarter is not under 21, but less than 24 pence, there will be no change in the ensuing quarter. If, however, in each of the three consecutive quarters the average price is not under 21, then the percentage for the ensuing quarter will be increased by 10.

3.—If the average price for any quarter is 24 or over, the percentage will be increased by 10 for the ensuing quarter. If, however, the increase effectable under this regulation is an increase from 80 per cent., the increased percentage for the ensuing quarter will be 100.

4.—If the average descends below 15 in any quarter, the percentage in the ensuing quarter will be reduced to 60.

5.—If the average exceeds 36 in any quarter, the percentage in the ensuing quarter will be increased to 100.

Reduction to 80 Per Cent. Likely.

By the new rubber regulations it seems probable that the coming quarter will see a reduction of the exportable allowance from the present 100 per cent. to 80 per cent. The average price of rubber for the current quarter up to Oct. 20 was 20.149 pence, and the average must exceed 21 pence to justify continuance of the 100 per cent. standard of exports.

Apprehension had existed in the market that the Colonial Office might decide to cancel unused export coupons as a further measure of restriction. These unused coupons would permit the export of an additional 40,000 tons, and as they have not been interfered with it is estimated that they will counteract a 20 per cent. reduction in the exportable allowance for another six months.

It is recognized in the rubber market in London that the situation is still largely dominated by the United States and depends to some extent on the growth of the motor industry in America, and that, although in the current year production exceeded consumption by, roughly, 40,000 tons, such surplus would be none too high if the American motor industry developed as expected.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP).—Government control has been established over the production and marketing of nine important commodities which the United States must purchase from abroad to a total of more than $1,000,000,000 annually, the Commerce Department reported today, and further extension of the trend is possible. The situation was summarized in advance sheets of the forthcoming annual report of the department.

On the heels of the great success attained by the British rubber restrictions, foreign Governments have sought to lift up the price of long staple cotton, camphor, coffee, iodine, nitrates, potash, mercury and sisal. Most of these, E. G. Holt, Chief of the department's rubber division, pointed out, are essential to American industrial activity, and the United States stands as the greatest single national consumer of them.

"Unless some deterrent arises, the enormous profits of some of the controls already in operation will not only serve to stimulate unreasonable prices for other controlled products, but will serve to encourage attempts upon other commodities," Mr. Holt predicted.

"It is the belief of the department that this development will be retarded by the demonstration of practical defense action in the case of rubber during the last fiscal year."

Mr. Holt noted that the "defensive measures" against rubber prices had resulted in longer use of rubber articles, notably automobile tires, and more repairs. The example, which was successful in breaking the first high price levels for rubber, might be successfully followed, he suggested, if the other foreign controls should attempt the same mulcting of the American user of their products.

RUBBER MARKET STEADY IN LONDON

WIDE ARBITRATION URGED BY CHURCHES

Federal Council Asks Religious Congregations to Devote the Armistice Week to Peace.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 (AP).—Declaring the United States, Great Britain and Japan still reserve to themselves the right to resort to war to maintain their rights and secure their interests, the Federal Council of Churches, in an Armistice Day message today, called on all great nations to set up effective agencies of international arbitration.

The message, which is being sent to thousands of congregations over the country, calling for the observance of Sunday, Nov. 7, and of the entire week in behalf of world peace, declares that many European nations are "ahead" of the United States in their pledges not to resort to war, and unless progress is made toward a general arbitral code the alternative would be "ever increasing competitive preparation for war and recurring wars."

"The United States," the message read, "has a notable record to its credit. It established with Great Britain the accord by which, on a 3,000-mile frontier, for over a century, neither Government has had a soldier or a fort. It has secured large additions to its territories in ways thoroughly honorable—by purchase. It has settled many serious disputes by arbitration. It has maintained its army at a minimum.

"In the Far East it has pursued a policy that has won substantial friendships. It has agreed with other nations having powerful navies to establish a fixed ratio for capital vessels and with Great Britain and Japan, it has actually scrapped many powerful battleships. It has steadily set its face against militaristic imperialism. For this record American citizens may well be proud and advocates of world peace grateful.

"The latest steps in our national policy of peace have been to authorize adhesion (under certain conditions) to the protocol of the Permanent Court of International Justice and the sending of representatives to sit with the League of Nation's Preliminary Commission on Disarmament.

"American citizens need, however, to guard against undue satisfaction over our national history. A tendency exists in some quarters to exaggerate our virtues and achievements and to ignore our failures and wrongdoings. We have not been quite so altruistic as eulogistic orators have often depicted. Nor have we been altogether free from aggression and the spirit and practice of imperialism.

"The United States, Great Britain, Japan and several other of the great nations are still unwilling to agree in advance to settle every dispute by processes of peace; they still are unwilling to have their policies and procedures openly questioned at the bar of the world's public opinion; they still reserve to themselves the right to resort to war for maintaining their 'rights' and securing their 'interests'; they still adhere to the doctrine of absolute national sovereignty.

"This general situation makes clear the line along which advance may and now should be made by all the great nations, including the United States."

Brooklyn Baby Contest Ends.

The contest to decide the most perfect baby born in the Brooklyn Hebrew Maternity Hospital, 1,397 Eastern Parkway, during the last year ended yesterday with the awarding of first prize to Ira Wilenken, eleven-months-old son of Mrs. Sarah Wilenken, 1,703 Carroll Street. Ruth Pincus, ten-months-old daughter of Mrs. Yetta Pincus, 177 Powell Street, received second prize. More than 1,000 babies were originally entered in the contest.

'Copec' Bids Churches Merge Like Business for World Peace

Miss Lucy Gardner, Secretary of "Copec," a London ethical society, delivered the sermon at St. George's Episcopal Church, Stuyvesant Square and East Sixteenth Street, yesterday morning. Her topic was "The Christian in a Non-Christian Society."

The object of "Copec"—a contraction of "Christian Order in Politics, Economics and Citizenship"—is to bring all the churches together in the same way that businesses merge, said Miss Gardner. She explained the goal of the society as "world-wide peace through religion."

"The great question Christians have to face today," she said, "is: Do we believe that our life can be so ordered that the human race can eat and live and travel from place to place on a code based on the teaching of Jesus Christ? The answer is 'Yes,' or 'No.' We are here, because we believe it can be.

"If there was one definite and specific answer to the question of how the Christian gospel could be made the basis for our life, it would be different. But Christ did not give that; he came to show us great principles. In these days of large factories and workshops, it is very important that Christians uphold the principle of letting each individual contribute his share to the common stock."

POLICE FORBID COOK TO ADDRESS MINERS

Cook Talks of "Revolution" and Communist Orators Pour In to Exhort Miners.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The Staffordshire police took drastic action against "Emperor" Cook today. In the week-end propaganda campaign he is conducting in the coal fields he had planned to address meetings of miners in Staffordshire, but upon his arrival in the Cannock Chase area today he discovered that the Chief Constable of Staffordshire had issued a ban against his speaking.

He was to have addressed two meetings, but police were present in large numbers to see that they were not held. The meetings were proclaimed under the Emergency Powers act, and the action of the police, according to the Labor organ, The Daily Herald, was taken on orders from the Home Secretary, Sir William Joynson-Hicks.

Recently several London newspapers have been pointing out the nature of some of Cook's utterances and suggesting that it was time the Government took serious note of the fact that they were bringing the Secretary of the Miners' Federation within the arms of the law. The Daily Telegram, for instance, said: "It is intolerable that this man should go on preaching the organization of violence day after day with complete impunity."

The Daily Mail said: "A great many of the public are wondering why Mr. Cook has not already been laid by the heels."

Cook himself apparently was taken completely by surprise by today's police move. He had received no hint that his speeches would be banned until he was on his way to the Cannock Chase District, when he met hundreds of miners who had been turned back by the police. Further on he became upon more of the men, and in the centre of them were the head police officials surrounded by a number of mounted and foot police.

Cook was stopped and the police officials read to him the proclamation banning the meetings. Meanwhile waiting miners crowded around Cook's auto, and the mounted police had to clear them away. The men then called for a speech from Cook. Failing to get any response from him, they sang "The Red Flag."

Cook asked the police for permission to say a few words to the men so they could disperse quietly, but this was refused.

Cook Talks of Revolution.

In a statement made at Coalville afterward Cook declared the action of the police authorities meant prohibition of free speech and he intimated that this might have led to rioting and bloodshed had not he and his colleague, Mr. Richardson, Treasurer of the Miners' Federation, been prepared to appeal to the men to act in a peaceable manner. The Police Inspector told him, "We can disperse the crowd," which meant the police would use force. The action of the police, said Cook, would only consolidate the men and make them loyal to the federation. He concluded with a warning to the authorities that today's action had done more to bring about a revolution in this country and lay Toryism low than all the speeches he had delivered.

The effect of the police action on the miners remains to be seen, but The Daily Herald says it is able to state that many of the men who had returned to work will not re-enter the pits tomorrow. That newspaper also declares that the Home Secretary placed a ban on Cook's speeches because he had realized that the propaganda campaign of the miners' leaders in the coal fields was meeting with too much success. Finally, the paper predicts that when Parliament meets tomorrow the Labor members will give the Government a warm time.

On the other hand, The London Times says Cook's propaganda campaign has by no means met with the success claimed. His meetings have been sparsely attended. The Times says, and his speeches have not aroused any great enthusiasm.

Officers' Blanket Authority.

The Home Secretary, Sir William Johnson-Hicks, interviewed tonight, said he had no knowledge of the banning of the Staffordshire meetings.

"I recently issued an order to all the chief constables," he said, "authorizing them under the Emergency Regulations act to stop any meeting which in their opinion was likely to cause a breach of the peace. The Chief Constables act on their own responsibility. They are on the spot, and I am not. If they are satisfied that there is such a meeting anywhere in their districts they are bound to stop it."

According to The Daily Mail, as a result of the banning of Cook swarms of speakers from the Communist minority movement were rushed into Staffordshire from surrounding counties. They went to almost every village, says the paper, and attempted to create an atmosphere of tension by appealing to the miners to cease work as a protest against the act of the authorities. Large parties of extra police have been drafted into the vicinity of the pits.

Accounts of what happened today when the police informed Cook that he would not be allowed to speak differ. While some say there was no disturbance, others declare that when Cook was being escorted to his car by the police the miners who had gathered attempted to obtain his release, and some blows were struck. Richardson, who was with Cook, is said to have been roughly handled in the crush and to have had all the buttons torn off his overcoat. There was a great deal of booing and shouting at the police, who, however, had little difficulty in dispersing the demonstration.

FARM SCHOLARSHIPS OPEN.

Chance Offered to City Boys to Attend Doylestown (Pa.) School.

Scholarships are open to New York City boys who desire to attend the National Farm School at Doylestown, Pa., according to Abraham Erlanger, Chairman of the expansion project of the school. Last year sixty scholarships were offered to New York boys, and seventy-three were admitted to the school. The scholarships are open to boys between the ages of 16 and 21 who have a grammar school education. They provide a three-year course in scientific and practical Agriculture and a complete high school course.

The school is now carrying on a campaign for funds to expand its work, including the purchase of land, the erection of new dormitories, the conversion of the school into a co-educational institution, and establishment of a fund to enable graduates to acquire farms.

Sought Route to India That Alexander Trod; British Explorer Aided by Akhoond of Swat

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—In an endeavor to trace the route followed by Alexander the Great when he invaded India, the English explorer, Sir Aurel Stein, succeeded last Spring in penetrating a region untrodden by Europeans since Alexander's army swept into it more than 2,200 years ago.

Sir Aurel Stein's achievement, which was beset with perils, crowned efforts extending over more than twenty years. He has just divulged here the first part of the record of his hazardous trip, which was undertaken on behalf on the Indian Archaeological Survey and with the sanction of the Government of India. It took him to a hitherto unvisited tract of territory beyond the present northwestern frontier of India through which, according to him, Alexander must have marched in 327 and 326 B. C. when on his way from Kabul River to invade the Punjab.

The first part of Sir Aurel's description is taken up largely with his earlier efforts to penetrate this forbidden land. Though he had tried for a long time previously it was not until 1904 that he succeeded in penetrating part of it and in being the first European to ascend Mount Mahaban Peak, which he hoped—in vain—to identify with a mountain mentioned in the ancient chronicle of Alexander's Indian campaign.

He continued his investigations in 1906, visiting territory which he felt assured was traversed by the Macedonian army. Further research, however, was prevented at that time by the fact that the bulk of the region was still inaccessible to Europeans. Sir Aurel kept up his efforts, nevertheless, until in 1921 he again visited the dangerous unknown frontier territories, but he failed to reach the area along the Indus which he believed Alexander had traversed, because the Pathan tribes there were engaged in deadly feuds, making the journey altogether too perilous for a European.

Finally the frontier region which he wished to visit came under the sway of a strong ruler, a grandson, by the way, of that Akhoond of Swat made famous years ago in a poem by the American poet Lanigan. Aided by this potentate and the British Indian authorities, Sir Aurel Stein was enabled to explore what he terms the "fascinating region" which before had been closed to research.

FINDS DEATH RATE FROM LIQUOR RISING

FISHER'S FIGURES DISPUTED

Cornell Economist Says Arrests Increase and That Young Adults Are Drinking More.

Deaths from alcoholism increased 14 per cent. among more than 17,000,000 industrial policy holders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company in the first nine months of 1926, according to the results of a survey made public yesterday by the company. These deaths totaled 433, and the death rate was 3.3 per 100,000. For the same period last year it was 2.9 per cent.

The report discloses that "cirrhosis of the liver, closely associated with alcoholism, accounted for 863 deaths in the same period," and that deaths from that cause were at the rate of 6.6 per 100,000, as against 6.7 for 1925 and 6.3 for 1924.

"In certain States, namely Colorado, Connecticut, Delaware, Illinois, Maryland, Missouri, New Jersey, New York, Rhode Island and in the District of Columbia, the rate in 1924 was more than quadruple that of 1920. Wyoming registered the highest alcoholism death rate, both in 1924 and 1923, with Rhode Island and Massachusetts standing second and third, respectively."

Walter F. Willcox, Professor of Economics and Statistics at Cornell University, issued a statement yesterday taking issue with Professor Irving Fisher of Yale regarding the benefits from prohibition enumerated in Professor Fisher's book, "Prohibition at Its Worst."

Professor Willcox declares that Professor Fisher has blundered in his indictment of the statistics on increased drunkenness compiled by the Moderation League from the police records of fifty American cities.

"He accepts the estimate of the World League Against Alcoholism that before prohibition only 40 per cent. of the persons drunk in public were arrested but that now 90 per cent. are arrested."

Professor Willcox says it is certain that the number of arrests in 1924 for drunkenness increased over 1923 only about as fast as the population, "but the number for 1925, now available, shows an increase about double that of the population."

"About arrests we do not know," he says; "about deaths from alcoholism we do. The average age of persons dying from alcoholism in the four-fifths of the United States for which we have the information decreased by more than six months between 1916 and 1923. In the same period the average age of all persons dying above the age of 15 increased by a year and a half. From the fact that the average age of deaths due to alcoholism is falling while that from all other causes of death combined is rising, I infer that probably excessive indulgence in alcohol is becoming more common rather than less among young adults."

ARMS COMMISSION NEARS END OF LABORS

GENEVA, Oct. 24.—The military experts of the Preparatory Disarmament Commission are expected to terminate their labors at the end of this week, and the American delegation, which has been in Geneva since May 12, will sail on the George Washington on Nov. 11.

The next meeting is expected about Easter. The interval is considered necessary to give the Japanese Government time to study the experts' labors and send its delegates back to Geneva.

As already reported, reconsideration of the naval question under the new rules led Britain, Japan, Argentina and Chile to combine with the United States thesis which paves the way for completion of the Washington accords. Italy has stated she will compromise and although France is withholding a statement of her attitude it is generally believed she will take the same step as Italy.

Generally considered, the Americans have gained a great victory. France, thanks to compromises and modifications, had the backing of some sixteen States. Now she has only nine, while on the American side there are eight. Now, when the Preparatory Committee takes up the replies and seeks a common understanding, France will have to give way just as much as America, whereas, under the former conditions, France would have been able to force Americans to give in 90 per cent.

The American delegation has refused to date to make a statement of the general labors, but it is none the less evident that they are extremely satisfied with the manner in which the work has progressed in the past month.

$50,000 FUR THEFT CHARGED TO SEVEN

MAY FACE OTHER CHARGES

Connection of Band With Similar Robberies Totaling $500,000 Sought in Investigation.

Seven men held yesterday at Police Headquarters on charges of complicity in a $50,000 fur robbery at the store of Maurice L. Farber & Co., 29 West Thirty-sixth Street, are being investigated also, the police said, for possible connection with other similar robberies, which in recent months have aggregated $500,000 losses in the city.

All the prisoners denied the charge. They will be arraigned in the Tombs Court today. They were recorded by the police as Joseph Levine, Detroit, and Samuel Marcus, Hotel Vendig, both of whom gave their occupations as printers; Martin Tilzer, a jobber, 1,475 Grand Concourse, Bronx; Joseph Stern, a salesman, Hotel Belleclaire; Benjamin Marcus, salesman, 70 Belleville Avenue, Newark; Joseph Stein, salesman, 1,554 Ocean Avenue, Brooklyn, and George Lemole, chauffeur, 160 Prince Street.

Three of the men were arrested with Stein on Saturday night in his Brooklyn apartment, where, the police said, they found most of the stolen furs. At the Hotel Belleclaire a room clerk said Stern was not known there, and that there had been no arrest there of three of the men as reported by the police.

Farber & Co.'s place was robbed on Oct. 20. The thieves got in by cutting a hole through the fourth floor of an adjoining building, to which they gained access from the roof, but the furs were stored on the third floor of the Farber building, which apparently had been unknown to the robbers. They carried the furs up one flight and through this hole and piled them at the foot of the stairs next door. Then they broke open the street door and loaded the furs into autos.

The arrests were made by the Safe and Loft Squad, headed by Captain Richard Curtayne.

Drowns Himself After Hitting Wife, Daughters, and Granddaughters With Furnace Tool.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ill., Oct. 24.—W. O. Potter, former City Judge and for three terms State Senator and until four months ago Federal District Attorney for Illinois, killed his wife, two daughters and two granddaughters early this morning and then committed suicide by drowning himself in a cistern five feet from the back door of his home.

It was brought out in testimony at the inquest that Potter had been brooding recently over financial losses, ill health and the loss of his position four months ago as Federal Attorney. The verdict of the Coroner's jury was that Potter committed the murders "while temporarily insane."

The dead are: W. O. Potter, 56; Mrs. Myrtle Spiller Potter, 53, his wife; Mrs. Ducille Potter White, 28, daughter of Judge Potter and wife of Dr. Gilbert White of Miami, Fla.; Louise Potter, 16, high school student; Phyllis White, 4, a grandchild, and Cynthia White, aged 23 days, a grandchild.

The only members of the family to escape were Judge Potter's son, Morris Potter, a lawyer, 26 years old, who left home early in the evening to go to Murphysboro and who discovered the dead bodies when he entered the home at 2 A. M., and Gilbert White Jr., a six-year-old grandson, who was at the home of his maternal grandmother at Olney, Ill.

The family had all retired, and while neighbors saw lights at midnight, they did not suspect any trouble. When Morris Potter returned home he saw the light and believed his sister was reading, but when he went up stairs found the bodies of his mother and younger sister in a room at the head of the stairs, their heads crushed.

The police and neighbors were called, and in the same rooms were found the bodies of the two babies, while that of their mother was found in the bathroom. Each of the women had put up a desperate fight. Their skulls were fractured and arms broken. The family was killed with an iron furnace shaker, weighing about fifteen pounds.

Plan Zangwill Memorial Colony.

A new settlement of Jewish agricultural colonists in Russia is to be made as a memorial to Israel Zangwill, according to an announcement yesterday by David A. Brown, Chairman of the United Jewish Campaign, which is now carrying on a program of Jewish relief and rehabilitation in Eastern Europe. A colony of seventy-five families will be established at an estimated cost of $50,000. The Soviet Government has approved the project, Mr. Brown said.

BESSARABIAN CRISIS SEEMS NEAR AN END

MAY SCREEN CAROL'S CASE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BUCHAREST, Oct. 24.—The impression is being spread abroad here that the troublesome Bessarabian question will be definitely settled before Parliament meets on Nov. 15, by the Italian ratification of Rumania's annexation of the Province, and also by signing a direct agreement with Russia whereby Moscow withdraws her claims to Bessarabia, recognizing it as Rumanian.

These promises, while undoubtedly officially inspired, do not involve all official responsibility that might be desired and need for the present to be taken with reserve. It is possible that they are intended merely to quiet public opinion, which has been disturbed by two events.

The first was the recent Italo-Rumanian treaty received here, precisely because it was thought that it would weaken rather than strengthen the Rumanian position in Bessarabia. As the Italian mission headed by Premier Umberto is expected to arrive tomorrow to invite the King and Queen to visit Rome it is obviously necessary to prepare a genuinely cordial public reception and these promises are intended to silence criticism of the treaty with Italy.

Secondly, the public, despite all the denials of the Foreign Office and the Court Chamberlain, persists in coupling the Queen's reconciliation with Prince Carol with the King's postponement of Parliament until Nov. 15, and in concluding that the latter is due to the necessity of gaining time for the alleged negotiations with Prince Carol, so that the message from the throne can inform Parliament of an important development in the questions of the regency and the succession to the crown.

The Hand of Mussolini Is Seen.

Government circles apparently are trying to detract the public from this explanation by ascribing the postponement of Parliament to a desire to allow the message from the throne to announce the settlement of the Bessarabian problem.

In view of the Rumanian opposition to this treaty it is probable that Mussolini is using his best offices in Moscow to gain Russia's consent to the loss of Bessarabia. It costs him nothing, and the settlement of such a question certainly would be a magnificent feather in the Fascist diplomatic cap.

However, one may be reasonably skeptical of his success—for Bessarabia costs Moscow something. If he fails, it is unlikely that Rome will find it "in her general interests," as Mussolini phrased it to Premier Averescu, to ratify Rumanian annexation now.

All this seems to depend on Moscow.

Accompanying Umberto's mission are experts involved in the negotiation of the Italo-Rumanian commercial treaty. Here it is believed that Italy is chiefly interested in improving the Rumanian market for her goods and in escaping her dependence upon American oil by getting her future supply from Rumania.

To the latter end Italy desired to build several oil refineries here and, if possible, participate directly in the exploitation of the oil field within the limits of the present Rumanian mining law requiring that 51 per cent. of the control be in the hands of Rumanians.

The desire to market Italian manufactures here presents a greater difficulty than the oil side of the treaty. The former conflicts with Rumania's protectionist policy, complicated by measures intended to protect her currency from depreciation, which together are responsible for the existing laws.

Hesitates to Lower Duties.

Any important privileges granted to an ally would involve a radical change in tariff policies, as through the most favored nation clauses contained in other Rumanian commercial treaties, similar rights would have to be extended to other nations.

The Government at present is working out a revision of the tariff laws. Until this is done it seems unlikely that the commercial treaty with Italy will be definitely concluded.

Italy is thought specifically to desire a market in Rumania for her cotton and silk textiles, hemp weaving, autos, small industrial motors and fruits and flowers. Rumania before the World War imported the greatest part of Italian exports of flowers, but now it prohibits the importation of them.

BELGIUM STABILIZES FRANC.

Rate Near 35 to $1 Expected in Decree to Be Issued Today.

BRUSSELS, Oct. 24.—The official Moniteur tomorrow morning will publish the royal decree proclaiming stabilization of the Belgian franc. Other important financial decrees to be published are the convention between the State and the National Bank and the revised statutes of the National Bank.

These decrees, which had been in readiness for more than a week, were officially promulgated at midnight after the Cabinet Council, presided over by King Albert, had been in session since 3 o'clock in the evening.

M. Francqui, Minister of Finance, announced the favorable results of his mission to London, where he concluded an agreement for a long term stabilization loan of $100,000,000, which will soon be issued in various markets.

It is reported that the stabilization rate has probably been fixed at 175 francs to the pound sterling, about 35 to the dollar.

Will Rogers Finds Odd People And a Wonderful Country

To the Editor of The New York Times:

JOPLIN, Mo., Oct. 24.—You meet the oddest people on your travels. I met a fellow who did not claim to be in Lovers' Lane the night of the Hall-Mills murder. If they had charged admission to that they would have made more than the Dempsey-Tunney fight. You people certainly have a wonderful country in this America, and I am thoroughly enjoying my trip.

DYE MARKET RULE IS AIM OF GERMANS

OUR IMPORTS INCREASED

But Output and Sales of Domestic Product Advanced, Tariff Commission Report Shows.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Germany is making energetic efforts to regain her former dominance of the world's dye markets, in the opinion of the Tariff Commission, which tonight issued its annual report on the dye and synthetic organic chemical industry. Discussing the international dye situation in 1925, the commission asserts that that year was marked by a vigorous attempt by Germany to gain lost ground in the international dye trade.

"A trust known as the I. G. Teerfarben Industrie was formed by the consolidation of six German dye producers," the commission's report continues. "This was one of the most ambitious undertakings in the history of German finance and is primarily intended to reduce manufacturing costs."

A second project was the consolidation of the foreign sales agencies, the purpose of which is to increase the competitive strength of the German cartel in each of the foreign markets.

"In 1925 the exports of German dyes amounted to 75,879,025 pounds, valued at $44,331,183, an increase of 24 per cent. in quantity and 43 per cent. in value over 1924," the report states. "By value, the 1925 exports were 85 per cent. and by quantity 33 per cent. of the pre-war 1913 figures. In certain tonnage dyes Germany has encountered competition from the new producing countries in the higher-priced products she has been successful in increasing her export trade to both producing and non-producing nations.

"The new producing nations, regarding dye manufacture as a key industry and essential to national defense, have adopted protective measures with a view to stimulating dye manufacture. Competition, however, will undoubtedly reduce the capacity in coming years to a figure more nearly the pre-war level, allowing for increases in population and per capita consumption."

Italy has made progress in the manufacture of new dyes, the commission reports, and Spain recently adopted a system of dye import control for protection of the home industry. Japan has extended the provisions of its dye subsidy to firms producing certain dyes, while Russia, in an effort to establish a dye industry, is now producing certain "crudes," "intermediates" and dyes.

A feature noted in the progress made in 1925 is expansion in the field of synthetic organic chemicals not derived from coal tars. The output was 156,878,000 pounds, or 32 per cent. over 1924.

More than 90 per cent. of the total quantity of dyes consumed in the United States in 1925 were of domestic manufacture and certain of the lower-priced colors were exported in significant amounts. The progress of the industry was shown not only in increased output but in the production for the first time in the United States of many vat dyes, direct developed dyes, alizarin derivatives and special colors for dyeing rayon and certain mixed fibers.

The output of coal-tar dyes by seventy-five firms was 86,345,638 pounds, as compared with 68,679,000 pounds in 1924. The total sales in the two years were 79,303,451 pounds, valued at $37,468,332, and 64,961,483 pounds, valued at $35,012,490, respectively.

The weighted average price of all domestic dyes sold was about 13 per cent. less in 1925 than in 1924. The price in 1925 was 47 cents per pound, compared with 54 cents in 1924 and $1.36 in 1917.

QUEBEC DRY PLAN CALLED A FAILURE

Government Control Brings Worse Corruption Than Total Ban, Canadian Says.

"There are more drunkards on the streets of Montreal one-half hour after closing of liquor dispensaries than there are on the streets of New York in a month," Ben H. Spence, Secretary of the Dominion Alliance for Suppression of the Liquor Traffic, said yesterday in an address in the Hanson Place Methodist Episcopal Church, 920 East Tenth Street, Brooklyn.

Speaking on "The Truth About the Quebec Plan," Mr. Spence, who is also Canadian Secretary of the World League Against Alcoholism, said that Government sale and control of alcohol meant the intrenching of the liquor traffic in the lives of the people.

"Prohibition may mean the bootleg corruption of police and governments," he continued, "but Government sale and control, which allows the citizens to obtain alcohol in any manner, means nothing more nor less than the loss of control and the corruption and pollution of the very race itself."

"The amount of liquor sold illegally in Toronto at the present time," he said, "is far less than before the Quebec plan went into effect and I think the same is true in New York. I prefer a license system to the Government sale system of the Quebec plan. In any event you may have a higher enforcement of prohibition from a poor law, well enforced, than from a good law, poorly enforced. The strategic point in the world fight is in the United States. If you lose, we lose and the world loses."

100,000 HOMELESS IN ARMENIAN QUAKE

WHOLE COUNTRY TERRIFIED

Shocks Lasting Day and a Half Make Many Fear End of World —Aid Sorely Needed.

LENINAKAN, Armenia, Oct. 24 (AP).—More than 400 persons were killed and hundreds of others were fatally injured in the succession of earthquakes in Armenia which began Friday evening and continued until early today, late reports, which increase the toll of the disaster, show.

The earthquakes destroyed the greater part of this city of 40,000 inhabitants and twelve thriving towns in the neighborhood and left 100,000 families homeless. The whole republic has been terrified. The destruction amounts to millions of dollars.

From time immemorial Leninakan, formerly Alexandropol, has been a gigantic volcanic amphitheatre, due to the activity of Mount Ararat and Mount Alagos in the Tertiary Period, but the city never before experienced such a violent and disastrous upheaval as that which leveled nearly all human habitations on the great Leninakan plain Friday night.

The second shock, five-fold stronger than the first, tore open giant fissures in the great volcanic mountain of Alagos, which is 14,000 feet high and gleams with perpetual snow.

The precise number of dead in all the affected areas, which total 100 square miles, will not be known for several days, as telegraphic communication has been largely destroyed. Desperate efforts are being made by soldiers of the Red Army, firemen and American relief workers to extricate those buried alive.

Darkness Intensifies Terror.

Entire cemeteries were disrupted by the series of earth shocks, and bodies were scattered everywhere in grim disorder.

The terror of the populace in Leninakan was increased by the fact that the earthquake occurred in total darkness, the first shock having dislocated all the electric and gas mains, and further subterranean convulsions recurring through the night caused the people to fear that the end of the world had come.

The buildings occupied by the American Near East Relief were among the few that escaped destruction. Although there were more than fifty American doctors, nurses, clerks and relief workers in the structures at the time, all miraculously escaped harm.

At the first sign of the earthquake, which came while the Americans were at supper, with the crashing of windows, loud cries of the orphans and violent oscillation of the buildings, the American nurses, led by Miss Janet MacKay of Buffalo, Miss Dorothy Stratton of New York and Miss Bella Bass of Rome, Ga., mobilized the terror-stricken youngsters, and, directing the older children to sing Armenian folklore songs, marched the entire 9,000 to places of safety.

Three Governments Rush Aid.

Karakala, famed in biblical story for having given shelter to Lot, is like a shell-torn city in devastated France. The new buildings in that place were completely shattered, but it is believed that the American relief workers escaped.

The famous Valley of Araxes, the traditional seat of the Garden of Eden, was swept clean of houses, trees, cattle and all human abodes. Most of the dwellers here are of nomadic character, and the majority escaped by fleeing to the hills.

The Armenian, Georgian and Azerbaijan Governments were quick to come to the rescue of the afflicted people. They contributed $200,000 and dispatched Red Cross trains with doctors and nurses, battalions of soldiers and firemen.

Tents, cots, blankets, food and medicine are urgently needed. Armenia, whose desperate efforts to retrieve itself from the ravages of war, invasion, famine and successive massacres have been almost nullified by the present catastrophe, needs help.

CLEAR POLICEMAN IN THEFT.

Department Heads Find Monahan Could Not Have Stopped Hold-Up.

George de Nitte, proprietor of the Village Supper Club, 55 and 57 Kenmare Street, who was shot in the head there early yesterday morning when he resisted robbery of himself and more than twenty guests by four gunmen, may recover, it was said at St. Vincent's Hospital last night. De Nitte was also recorded at the hospital as "George Burns," the name he used in conducting the club.

A bullet hit a woman guest, Margaret Kanzey, a nurse at the Hospital for Joint Diseases, at 1,919 Madison Avenue, causing a wound in her shoulder. She is under treatment at the Bread Street Hospital. Her wound is not considered dangerous. It was Miss Kanzey's first visit to this club, to which she was accompanied by several friends.

An assistant of De Nitte said the doors of the club was closed when the robbers appeared, and that it was opened when the leader of the four armed men announced they were policemen. In the place at the time was Detective Patrick Monahan of the Narcotic Squad, who said he was unable to interfere or to attempt an arrest because he was unarmed.

Monahan was questioned by Police Commissioner McLaughlin, Inspector John J. Sullivan of Brooklyn and Deputy Inspector Thomas W. Mullarkey of the Second Division. Monahan told them that he was not on duty, and had left his pistol in an auto in front of the restaurant to avoid any suspicion that might have prevented his admission. He was robbed like the others of his watch, pin and money.

It was decided that there was nothing irregular in Monahan's conduct. Commissioner McLaughlin said: "He [Monahan] was there, but not

HARVARD TEAM'S RISE TRIBUTE TO HORWEEN

Crowley Says Victory Over Dartmouth Puts It on Par With Others in Big Three.

BROWN IS UP WITH LEADERS

PRINCETON HAS WORK TO DO

By CHARLES F. CROWLEY,
Head Columbia Football Coach.

The football world doffs its hat to Arnold Horween. In the short space of three weeks the young Harvard coach has brought about a remarkable football rejuvenation.

Three weeks ago today Harvard football was in the doldrums. The Crimson team that lost to Geneva appeared to be of the same pattern as those of the preceding régime. Harvard men were despondent and even the most biased adherents found it difficult to see any ray of hope in the situation. They could only ask that criticism of the new coaching staff be withheld until Horween had had a fair chance to inaugurate his system.

Harvard's football stock has soared and it is not to be wondered that the undergraduates at Cambridge shouted their glee from the dormitory windows Saturday night. A fine job of coaching has been turned in by the young Crimson coach, whose team humbled Dartmouth Saturday to give Harvard its first victory over the Green in four years.

There is a lesson in this victory of the Crimson that can be of profit to the entire football world. Many than ever before it can be appreciated now how unwise and unfair it is to expect a new coach to "produce" before he has had the opportunity to lay his foundation. As a rule, it takes at least a year to do this. That Horween has done it in a few weeks is all the more to his glory.

Had any one said following the Geneva or Holy Cross game that Harvard might shortly take its place as an equal favorite with Yale and Princeton to capture the Big Three honors he would have been laughed at, except by those who understood the handicap Horween was placed under in facing two such stiff games at the outset and who saw the improvement in the team against Holy Cross. Yet today that is exactly where, in my opinion, Harvard stands, in spite of the disheartening loss of Turner and Crosby and also in spite of the fact that no "finds" have been uncovered, with the exception of Guarnaccia, in the back field.

Yale's Defeat a Surprise.

Standing with the victory of Harvard as the most notable feature of Saturday's development in the East was the defeat of Yale. While the defeat of Yale was a surprise, and to me more so than was Harvard's victory, it was not totally unexpected, for McLaughry's men are powerful physical specimens, whose only handicap had been their lack of speed, and the Brown coach is one to get the utmost out of his material.

While McLaughry was equipping his brilliant array of backs with the same versatile attack that he developed at Amherst, Ed McMillan, 1925 Princeton captain and centre, was injecting the drive and lift to the line that rid the forwards of their sluggishness, and there evolved a Brown team fully the equal of Yale in all-around ability and so rugged and strong under punishment that Yale's greater wealth of reserves counted for little.

More difficult to understand than Yale's defeat was the narrow margin of Princeton's victory over Lehigh. In spite of the fact that the Tigers had been anything but impressive in their previous games, it was expected that Roper's eleven would have an easy time against Lehigh, which had scored only six points in its four previous games. Even allowing for the improvement shown by Wendell's team in this game, the one-point margin of Princeton's victory will probably cause a lot of head shaking among Princeton followers.

But I, for one, still have faith in this Princeton team. There is too much good material at Nassau for me to believe that Princeton's season will be a failure. I am mindful of the transformation that has taken place in Princeton teams in the past, and I look for one this year. Remember that Jake Slagle and Ted Williams did not get into the game, while Captain Davis was in the line for the first time. Roper is not too much concerned with his October games. It is for Yale and Harvard that he is preparing and conserving his strength, and I am confident that the Princeton team in two weeks will be a much stronger one.

Eastern Title Field Cut.

The results of Saturday's play reduced still further the list of eligibles for Eastern honors. Yale seemed to be the strongest championship contender until it met Brown. Now it is an open race, with at least half a dozen teams on almost an equal footing. Brown, by virtue of its victory, takes a prominent place among the title aspirants and there are also Pennsylvania, Army, N. Y. U., Navy, W. and J., Holy Cross, Cornell, Lafayette, West Virginia and Boston College. All of these teams have kept their slates clean, although Navy escaped defeat on Saturday by Colgate only through Lloyd's taking a fumble and running 99 yards in the closing minutes.

In the other sections of the country there were developments no less interesting than those in the East. Michigan was thoroughly tested by Illinois and not until the final quarter was she able to make capital of her passing game, so well did the Illini cover Friedman's passes to Oosterbaan. On the other hand, the Michigan line was so strong that the renowned Peters was unable to get loose as Grange did two years ago.

Northwestern covered itself with glory in holding Notre Dame to 6 points, while Ohio State followed up its victory over Columbia with an even more impressive performance against Iowa.

In the South Sewanee startled the football world by holding the powerful Alabama team to a safety, although the Birminghamers defeated Georgia Tech 21-0 and Vanderbilt 12-7, and on the Pacific Coast the all-conquering Southern California eleven administered the third successive defeat to the Golden Bears of California. A summary of the Eastern games follows:

Gradual Development Shown.

HARVARD (Harvard 12, Dartmouth 12).—The Harvard team has been showing gradual development from the start, and in this game the Crimson put to profit the intensive coaching it has received from Horween and his assistants. It was a fiercely aggressive Harvard team, confident of itself and machine-like on the attack.

In spite of the kicking and passing prowess of Dooley, the scrappiness of Harvard, its alertness, the great work in the line, which outplayed the Dartmouth forwards, and the rise of Miller and French to the occasion, brought a well-earned victory to the Crimson. A finer game of football than this could not be asked for.

All the thrills of a see-saw affair between two closely matched teams, both equipped with a strong running attack and a well developed overhead game, were there, and French's run of forty-seven yards for the winning touchdown in the closing minutes furnished a worthy climax. Harvard cannot be praised too highly for this victory over a Dartmouth team that ranks with the best, in spite of its defeat by Yale and particularly for a victory that brought to an end a losing streak of three years against the Green.

YALE (Brown 7, Yale 0).—The downfall of the Elis comes as a shock to those who had come to belive that the conquerors of Dartmouth were well nigh invincible. Yale made a great fight and lost little of its prestige in the game, for the team it lost to played far better football than almost every one suspected it capable of playing.

Is Randall, Mishel and Al Cornsweet, McLaughry has three fast, clever ball carriers and in Lawrence a strong tantering back. With a powerful line in front of them and two outstanding men on the wings, they passed and ran with better success than the Yale offensive met with.

Dee McGunigle, the hero of Yale's victory over Dartmouth, played a magnificent game, passing, kicking and doing most of the running with the ball, but his efforts went for naught against the marvelous defensive work of the Brown line and the berserk fighting spirit of the entire Providence team. It was Brown's beautifully masked forward passing attack that brought the lone touchdown of the game that was probably more responsible for the victory than anything else.

Princeton Wastes Opportunities.

PRINCETON (Princeton 7, Lehigh 6).—Coach Roper sent his team into the game with orders to use only its simplest plays and kept Slagle and Williams on the side lines. Lehigh, much stronger on the defensive than in any of its previous games, checked these plays so well that the Tigers were unable to score until the third period, although they wasted several opportunities for a touchdown.

There was no question as to which was the better team, however, in spite of the disappointing showing of the Orange and Black. Lehigh is to be commended for its plucky fight and for its forward-passing attack, which resulted in a touchdown in the final period, but I look for a much more sustained Princeton offense and a stouter line in the games ahead.

NAVY (Navy 15, Colgate 7).—It is doubtful if the season will record a more heart breaking game for any team to lose than Colgate lost here. Leading at 7–6 and with the ball on Navy's 1-yard line after making a march of 60 yards, the Maroon saw its well-earned victory go up in smoke as Lloyd picked up a fumble and raced 99 yards in the last two minutes of play.

Here was another bitterly fought struggle between two evenly matched teams. Colgate was expected to make matters interesting for Navy, but the Middies were favored to win, and it turned out that they did only through one of those breaks which must be looked for in any game. Both teams were strong on the offense, each alternating in launching an attack for sustained marches against lines that were anything but weak. Both used the forward pass liberally, Colgate having exceptional success through the air. It is worthy of note that for all the passing not a single penalty was inflicted under the new rule which imposes a loss of 5 yards for a second incompleted pass in a sequence of four downs. This speaks for the carefulness and thoroughness with which Coaches Ingram and Hauser have built up their passing game.

N. Y. U. Overpowers Rutgers.

NEW YORK UNIVERSITY (N. Y. U. 30, Rutgers 0).—There were some who looked for Rutgers to give Chick Meehan's team a stiff battle in spite of the decisive victory of the Violet over Tulane. Rutgers had held the powerful W. and J. team to a 19–6 score and therefore was not to be taken lightly, but N. Y. U., was simply too overwhelming on the attack, with Strong, Roberts and Conner performing in their best style and Lassman and his mates in the line were a stonewall against the Rutgers offense.

It should be generally conceded now that Meehan has one of the most formidable teams in the East. Lack of experience has counted slightly against the team, but with each game the backs are becoming surer in their handling of the ball and the forwards are handling themselves like veterans. The team that beats N. Y. U. will come close to being the champion.

COLUMBIA (Columbia 24, Duke 0).—In Duke, Columbia met a clever, hard-fighting outfit that provided the opposition I was glad to get in preparation for the Cornell game. There were defects in our play that will have to be overcome and a certain sluggishness, but it was probably the reaction to the game with Ohio State. I expect the men to be much keener this week in preparation for the game with Cornell.

FORDHAM (W. & J. 28, Fordham 13).—Washington and Jefferson, an unbeaten team, was clearly the favorite over Fordham and in holding the Presidents to so close a score as they did Coach Gaigan's men acquitted themselves well. Outweighed considerably, the Maroon fought courageously, but it was a losing fight against so stalwart a line and so powerful a back field as W. & J. presented.

SYRACUSE—(Syracuse 10, Penn State 0).—This was a splendid victory for Syracuse to win, I personally had thought that the losses suffered by Reynolds would prove too great a handicap to be overcome, but in spite of them Syracuse's strong attack and her success with the forward pass carried her through to triumph over a bitterly resisting Penn State team. This victory shows that Syracuse's reserves are of high calibre.

WEST VA.—(West Va. 7, West Va. Wesleyan 0).—Whenever these two rivals meet a good battle can always be looked for and this game was no exception. West Virginia, unbeaten, was the favorite and came through as anticipated, but not until after the bitterest fight. The winning team made fifteen first downs to five for its opponents, but failed to make the most of its opportunities in the face of the stubborn resistance offered by West Virginia Wesleyan.

Penn Has Great Power.

PENNSYLVANIA.—(Penn 36, Williams 9).—The game was hardly more than a work-out for Lou Young's high powered team. He withdrew his first string men after the first period or else the score might have been larger. Williams made a brave hearted fight, but Penn was too strong and too clever on the attack.

PITTSBURGH (Carnegie Tech 14, Pitt 0).—Pitt is not having one of its best seasons, but after its victory over Colgate was thought to have an equal chance against Carnegie Tech, which had held W. and J. to 17-6. Lack of consistency on the attack and the poorness of the interference cost the Panthers dearly, for they made twice as many first downs as their opponents. Carnegie made the most of its scoring chances while Pitt lost its punch when it needed it most.

C. C. N. Y. (C. C. N. Y. 29, Rhode Island State 0).—This was the third successive victory for City College and its most impressive showing of the season. Rhode Island State held Brown to 14-0 early in the season, so Coach Parker's men have reason to feel proud of themselves, particularly in view of the fact that they were playing without the services of their captain.

AMHERST (Amherst 20, Wesleyan 0).—This was the first game of the Little Three, and Amherst, as expected, won without any difficulty. Wesleyan was outweighed and had no ball carrier to compare with Caddigan, whose plunges were good for from 5 to 10 yards almost every time. Amherst won the Little Three title last year and should retain it.

HOLY CROSS (Holy Cross 21, Western Maryland 14).—Western Maryland, under the coaching of Dick Harlow, formerly of Colgate, furnished a surprise for the unbeaten Holy Cross team. Scoring all its points in the first half, the Purple had a real scare in the second half and the outcome was in doubt up until the last whistle.

BOSTON COLLEGE (Boston College 61, St. Louis U. 2).—This was a mere romp for the strong Boston team, and added another to the triumphs of the East over the West.

The powerful Georgetown eleven swamped Elon at 61-14, and Lafayette had no trouble in defeating Albright, 30 to 7. St. John's College of Brooklyn made a strong comeback after being swept off its feet in the first period by Providence College and earned a 6-6 tie.

AMHERST, Mass., Oct. 24.—Robert Wilson of New York City today was elected captain of the Amherst College freshman eleven. He is the son of Eugene S. Wilson, '02, former three-sport star here.

U. S. Government Horse Breeding Industry Now Leads World; Has Invested $1,000,000

In six years the United States Government has become the greatest breeder of horses in the world. In that time it has produced 22,308 horses, the total last year having been 5,940. This year it will breed some 7,000 more, while next year's figures undoubtedly will reach 10,000.

The Government has invested approximately $1,000,000 to date in its breeding enterprise. Offsetting this expenditure an inventory of assets shows that it now owns 462 stallions and brood mares, valued at $676,901. The horses produced are valued at $3,744,000, and $150,000 have been collected in fees.

The remarkable growth and present scope of the Government's horse breeding activities are illustrated in data compiled by Colonel R. O. Whitehead, chief of the Remount Bureau of the War Department, for submission to Congress with the bureau's appropriation estimates for the ensuing year.

The pre-eminence this country has attained in breeding is attributed to the thoroughbred race horse. There are other factors, but they are considered subordinate. The thoroughbred is the barometer reflecting the condition of the entire breeding industry. Due to the increasing popularity of racing the thoroughbred breeding industry is enjoying unprecedented prosperity and because of it horses of all types are bringing higher prices than ever before.

MICHIGAN IS AHEAD IN BIG TEN RATING

But Ohio State and Northwestern Also Have Not Lost to Conference Teams.

WOLVERINES ARE FAVORITE

Line Felt to Be Too Strong and Backs Too Versatile for Others —Karow Leads Scorers.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24 (AP).—With two Conference victories and only two field goals scored against them this season, Michigan has a slight lead over the other four undefeated Big Ten teams for the 1926 championship.

Ohio State and Northwestern have one victory apiece, but Northwestern has lost a non-Conference game, a bitter battle Saturday to Notre Dame, 6 to 0. With a wealth of backfield material, Coach Wilce and his Buckeyes are hopeful that this year's title may descend upon them.

Wisconsin and Purdue likewise have gone undefeated so far this season, and have one Big Ten victory apiece. In addition, the Badgers have not been scored upon, but their scoreless tie with Purdue of two weeks ago mars the otherwise clear record of these two teams. Purdue was beaten by the Navy.

The pressing problem seems to be the stopping of the Wolverines and Ohio State seems to have an excellent chance, judging from its defeat of Iowa yesterday. Northwestern has an excellent opportunity to finish undefeated and Purdue and Wisconsin still are possibilities, but Michigan, with victories over Illinois and Minnesota, has the edge.

Yost Has Strong Line.

Yost's warriors have so much ability that the team will be hard to defeat. The line is outstanding and the backfield is of championship class.

It is apparent that Jack Wilce has something in his Ohio State team that resembles his famous teams of 1920 and 1921. Ohio State was not expected to give Iowa such a lopsided lacing after the showing of the Hawkeyes against Illinois, but the probable explanation is that Zuppke took Iowa in its stride, while the Iowans were keyed up for a supreme effort.

Yesterday Chicago was beaten by Purdue, but the Maroons acquitted themselves in such fashion that Coach Stagg's critics had no complaint to make. The Maroons played a popular sort of a game, using passes and wide end runs and presented a more deceptive offense than the Purdue squad had faced this season.

Indians Losing Ground.

Wisconsin was figured to give Indiana a lacing, as Pat Page's team gave everything it had against Northwestern a week ago and was due for a slump. The experts figure that Indiana is one of the weakest teams in the Conference, but that Page can make it play over its head on occasions.

Minnesota ran amuck against Wabash, a team that Purdue had difficulty in beating, but the Gophers were much too big for the "Little Giants."

Team.	W.	L.	T.	TP.	OP.
Michigan	2	0	0	130	6
Ohio State	1	0	0	142	27
Northwestern	1	0	0	67	6
Purdue	1	0	1	40	21
Wisconsin	1	0	1	78	7
Illinois	1	1	0	76	20
Minnesota	0	1	0	127	4
Chicago	0	1	0	53	20
Indiana	0	2	0	47	80
Iowa	0	2	0	76	48

Captain Marty Karow and Bo Molenda, plunging for Ohio State and Michigan, respectively, Saturday maintained their positions as leading Western Conference point scorers.

The leading point scorers, including non-Conference games:

Player and Team.	TP.	T.	PGFG.
Karow, Ohio State	48	8	0 0
Molenda, Michigan	44	7	0 0

HARVARD PREPARES FOR PRINCETON TILT

Will Rest Today, Then Plans to Take Tufts in Stride for First Big Three Clash.

GAMACHE AGAIN HURTS LEG

Star Centre, However, Will Be Ready for Coming Games—Simonds Likely Guard Fixture.

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 24.—The hard bumps which Harvard received in its game with Dartmouth yesterday were speedily forgotten by the players in their joy over having won a game in which they had been considered to have only a fighting chance.

Ernie Gamache, whose defensive play at centre was one of the most brilliant features of the Cambridge play, injured his crippled leg again, but he will be available for Princeton.

There will be no work for the first-string men and for many of the substitutes tomorrow, but on Tuesday the start will be made for Princeton on Nov. 6, with only slight preparation for Saturday's game with Tufts. The coaches were much pleased with the improvement shown by Al Miller, the tackle play of Pratt and Coady on the line, and the way the quarterback, Putnam, got fight into the team, even though he gave the coaches frequent cases of nerves by running line plays on fourth downs in his own territory late in the game when Harvard was behind. Simonds will probably be kept at guard on the basis of the showing he made against Dartmouth.

EAST IS FAR AHEAD IN WINNING GAMES

Has Won Sixteen Intersectional Battles—Midwest and South Have Four Victories.

Scoring three victories while losing one game, the East added to its lead in the race for intersectional football honors as a result of Saturday's games. The East now is in front with sixteen games won while the Midwest and South are tied at four each.

The East has lost only four times in intersectional contests while the Midwest has fallen nine times and the South on ten occasions. The Southwest has been defeated once and has not yet won an intersectional battle.

Columbia's victory over Duke helped the East to increase its lead and when Holy Cross defeated Western Maryland and Boston College downed St. Louis University two more victories were registered for the East. The lone defeat was registered in the Fordham contest when W. and J. went south with the game.

Only three ties have been chalked up so far this season. They are between the South and Midwest, the South and the East and the Southwest and the Midwest.

The table of intersectional games follows:

	East.	M'west.	South.	S.W.	Total Won.
East	..	7	9	0	16
Midwest	3	..	1	0	4
South	1	3	..	1	5

RAIN KEEPS HORSEMEN IDLE

Game With Quaker Eleven at Commercial Field Postponed.

The Brooklyn Horseman-Philadelphia Quaker professional football game, which was scheduled for yesterday afternoon at Commercial Field, was postponed on account of rain. Although the field was a sea of mud the Horsemen were in uniform and quite willing to play. However, the Quakers asked for a postponement, the date to be decided later.

The Brooklyn team was out on the field practicing for the benefit of some 200 spectators who braved the rain in the hope of seeing a game.

WILSON ELEVEN THREATENS

By RICHARDS VIDMER.

As dusk was turning to darkness in the Yankee Stadium yesterday, blotting out the last glimpse of a scoreless struggle between the New York Yankees and the Western Wildcats, Eddie Tryon broke loose.

Down the field he swept, his mud-caked shoes splashing over 80 yards of the watery gridiron as he dashed onward. A tackler was eluded here, another tossed aside as he flung his hips with snake-like movements. And when he carried the ball finally over the last blurred chalk mark he carried the colors of Red Grange to a 6—0 victory in the first game of the American Football League in New York.

That late romp over the slippery turf that was dotted with silvery puddles of water accomplished what a score of other bright stars of the past had failed to do. For nearly two hours a lethargic throng of 20,000 had sat through a downpour of steady rain and peered through the gray mist that hung like a pall of gloom over the field without seeing either team score.

The great Red Grange, the famous George Wilson, Jimmy Lawson, Bullet Baker, Pooley Hubert and others who have inscribed their names indelibly in the annals of intercollegiate football had made their efforts in vain. They had broken loose for long gains, but they had been stopped each time before the objective was reached. And the crowd had settled back into silence as the two teams swayed back and forth, scoreless and apparently helpless before the power of the other.

Yankees Near Own Goal.

Then, as the last quarter neared its completion and with the Yankees striving to shake off the menace of their own goal ports that loomed dangerously near at their backs, Tryon broke away and recalled all the sensational runs he made at Colgate in that mad, muddy dash to the other end of the field.

From the mass of dark gray figures he emerged with the ball. An anonymous halfback reached for his flying legs and floundered in the mire as the runner moved on. Another tackler, whose identity was lost under a mask of clinging earth, strove to drive the slippery runner out of bounds as he reached midfield, but he moved forward down the sideline.

The crowd was surprising, in view of the weather, but it was a mere handful compared with the great gathering of 70,000 that filled the Polo Grounds a year ago when Grange played his first game here.

They came to see Red again yesterday, which was evidenced from the few erratic cheers that were hurled from the grand stand, but it wasn't Red who carried the Yankees to victory; not Red who scampered 80 yards through the mud to arouse the thong; not Red, but Eddie Tryon.

Grange has lost some of the collegiate glamor that was his when he was known from coast to coast as the Galloping Ghost, but he is still the Phantom of the Prairies, and more than once he threatened to sweep past the defense and down the field on one of his well-known jaunts. Several times he almost shook himself loose. Almost, but not quite, for always there seemed to be one more Wildcat to pass who refused to be eluded.

The weather undoubtedly spoiled a gala throng. With a clear blue sky overhead and dry ground underfoot there is no doubt that the attendance figures would have been doubled or tripled. All the preparations for a large gathering of spectators were made, and even though the turn-out was comparatively small and scattered, the program was followed.

Cheering Is Scattered.

In one section a band in bright blue uniforms played popular music. Two girl cheer-leaders, dressed in white skirts and sweaters with a big "Y" emblazoned on the front, attempted to bring forth a cheer from the crowd before the game started, but the answer was feeble and they soon retired to the seclusion of a dugout, reappearing again only once. When Tryon made his touchdown every one was more or less yelling anywhere, so they came out to lend some system to the ovation.

Through the first half the play swayed back and forth with the Yankees having the few opportunities that were presented for a score. Late in the second quarter a Wildcat fumble was recovered by a Yankee and when Grange ripped off 15 yards around end the goal posts were in sight.

Art Coglizer, former Missouri end, was rushed in to try a field goal, but he missed from the 33-yard line on his first attempt and again from the 32 a minute later when opportunity again presented itself.

In the second half some spectacular ground gaining by Wilson put the ball in a position for a field goal by the Wildcats, but Lawson missed from the 33-yard mark. Again in the fourth period a pass to Flaherty, who raced 30 yards after catching the ball, opened the way for a Wildcat score, but again Lawson missed, this time from the 15-yard line and squarely in front of the goal. It was just a moment later than Tryon made his run that turned the tide.

Many of the college football teams have passed the century scoring point, while some of them are fast approaching the double century. Georgetown lacks only three points of having amassed 200 points, Boston College has yet to have its line crossed, while Wisconsin has held rivals to 2 points. Penn is second in point scoring with 188.

LIONS ARE BEATEN AT HARTFORD, 16-6

Special to The New York Times.

HARTFORD, Conn., Oct. 24.—The Brooklyn Lions of the National Football League were powerless before Hartford today and George Mulligan's Blues splashed to a 16 to 6 victory in a pouring rain. It was the first league triumph for Hartford.

Brooklyn's only touchdown came in the third period when Louis Smythe of Hartford, attacking the Lions' goal line, hurled a forward pass into the arms of Herman Bagby, who raced 95 yards to a touchdown.

Harris (Hite) Brian, formerly of Grove City College, scored the first touchdown for Hartford this year when he took Smythe's forward pass and sprinted 30 yards to the goal, neatly sidestepping Bagby, the Lions' safety man.

In the final period Vic Radzevitch entered the game long enough to boot the soggy ball over the uprights from the 25-yard mark, and Red O'Neil, former Connecticut Aggie captain and centre, clutched a bounding ball which the Lions fumbled on their 30-yard mark and dashed unmolested for a touchdown.

Hartford, with a new backfield in Chuck Corgan, Brian, Smythe and Enid Wilson, formerly of Pennsylvania, had little difficulty in piercing the Lions' defense, while Brooklyn made only two first downs by rushing. The Blues also showed the better passing game.

ROCK ISLAND GETS TIE WITH NEWARK

NEWARK, N. J., Oct. 24.—The Newark and Rock Island elevens of the American Professional Football League played to a scoreless tie at Davids Stadium here this afternoon.

A heavy rain, which fell for several hours previous to the game and which continued throughout the game, turned the field into a quagmire and made sustained advances by either team almost impossible.

Both relied mainly on line plunging, with an occasional end sweep and frequent punting.

Rock Island had two chances to score, both by the field goal route, but Bradshaw missed a 35-yard drop-kick in the first period and a 27-yard trial in the fourth. The visitors outrushed the home team, five first downs to two.

By IK SHUMAN.

Tim Mara's New York football Giants, held through the first two periods at the Polo Grounds yesterday to punting, were encouraged by the line-bursting of Hinkey Haines along in the third period, which resulted in a touchdown against the Kansas City cowboys. This outburst gave the Giants new strength after two periods of exchanging punts and, followed in the fourth period with a forward pass from Koppisch to Bomar from the 37-yard line, which brought a second touchdown, defeated the Cowboys in their initial appearance here by 13 to 0.

The result seemed to be entirely satisfactory to the 10,000 professional football fans who huddled in the stands during the rain, while the gladiators fought valiantly on a slippery field.

The Giants outplayed the Cowboys, even during the punting of the first half, when on every exchange of boots Hogan of Washington and Jefferson gained an advantage for his team over Bloodgood of the Cowboys, a former Nebraska star. But it remained for Haines, a former Penn State player, who has carried the lustre of his college prowess to the professional gridiron, to show what could be really done at carrying the ball. He carried it alone from the Giants' 29-yard line in the third period in five successive plays to the Cowboys' 18-yard line; and although a dropkick for goal there by Hogan failed, it was enough to show the Giants what could be done. After the Cowboys had punted again, the Giants alternated with the attack of Haines, and Cowboy Hill of Oklahoma carried the ball for a touchdown, Hill going through centre from the 4-yard line for the points. Hogan kicked goal.

Voss and Bomar Excel.

But it was not only on the offense that the Giants looked good. They were also good defensively. Voss of the University of Detroit, who played left end, and Bomar of Vanderbilt, who played right end, and Murtagh of Georgetown, centre, breaking through the interference of the Cowboys time after time to spill their plays and throw the men for losses. Voss particularly starred at blocking punts, and in the third period his blocking of a punt by Bloodgood at the 15-yard line helped pave the way for the first touchdown.

Milton Rehnquist, former Bethany player and right tackle of the Cowboys, suffered a broken rib in the fourth period during a pile-up of players after a fumble in the Cowboys' backfield on their 26-yard line. He recovered the ball, but was carried off the field unconscious. Dr. Harry March, club physician of the Giants, said later that he had sustained a fracture of the sixth rib at the spinal column and that, while the injury was not serious, he would not be able to play for the remainder of the season.

The Giants, who were more successful during the day with forward passes than their opponents, got a chance after the punt which followed this fumble to vary their line-plunging with an attack overhead, and they went all the way from their own 30-yard line to score the second touchdown.

Hagerty Goes 19 Yards.

Hagerty of Georgetown, who followed Haines in the game, tore through left tackle for 19 yards. Koppisch of Columbia, who had succeeded Hogan, went through the same spot on two successive plays to the Cowboys' 37-yard line. He tried again there, but could not gain, and then he threw a pass to Bomar, who caught the ball on the dead run. He was helped across the goal line by a tackle from behind by Munn. Grigg failed to kick goal.

The Giants will meet the Brooklyn Lions at the Polo Grounds next Sunday in a benefit for the charity funds of the Elks.

Brown Coach Says Scouting Helped Team Defeat Yale

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 24.—Coach McLaughry of the Brown football team today ascribed much of his team's success over Yale to the fact that the Saturday before he attended the Yale-Dartmouth game in the Bowl. "I knew what Yale had in the way of a forward-passing attack," he said, "and I went home and taught it to the boys at Brown. My boys were schooled all last week in how to stop the Yale attack, and in addition I taught a few plays that caught Yale flatfooted."

JONES LAUDS WORK OF BROWN ELEVEN

REGULARS RETURN TODAY

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 23.—Head Coach Tad Jones said tonight that the Yale eleven was no more depressed by Brown's victory than it was elated over Dartmouth's defeat a week ago.

"Coach McLaughry came here with a strong team," said Jones, "and his Brown players took advantage of every opportunity in a clean, hard fought contest. The Yale coaches did not underrate the strength of Brown, but were prepared for a close contest.

"Brown's success in playing the game without substitutes was an excellent achievement. The game of football should be played that way all the time. This pinch-hitting strategy is something that should not be used. Coach McLaughry did well to keep his original team on the gridiron until the final gun was fired. I tried to do the same, but McGunigle could not continue and had to come out, and at the last some rush line changes seemed necessary."

Many Regulars Returning.

A start will be made tomorrow in emptying the Yale hospital of regulars who have been crippled for two or three weeks. Larry Noble will return to left halfback and Bill Vandegrift and Behens Ryan to right tackle, where they have alternated all the Fall. Guy Richards, first-string left tackle; Dick Wortham and Jack Flaherty, guards, and Dwight Fishwick, end, will begin scrimmaging this week, and the coaches believe that all will be ready to take part in Saturday's game against Army.

It was learned tonight that Jimmy Wadsworth Jr., son of the New York Senator, is suffering from water on the knee. A slight injury was received ten days ago, which was slightly aggravated when he played ten minutes against Dartmouth, the acute knee condition developing the past three or four days.

Sturhahn to Get Rest.

The only player who took part in yesterday's game who was not in satisfactory condition today was Guard Carl Sturhahn, whose knee was hurt two or three weeks ago. Although he received no additional injury yesterday, the coaches have decided to rest him for several days. They believe that he and Wadsworth can play part of the Army game, if needed.

Aside from the line-up changes which will be made because of the return to play of the crippled regulars, none is planned because of the defeat by Brown. All the players will report for signal work tomorrow, will receive scrimmaging on Tuesday and Wednesday and only dummy drill Thursday and Friday.

Yale's planned line-up against West Point is as follows: Ends, Scott and Fishwick; tackles, Richards and Vandegrift; guards, Sturhahn and Webster; centre, Harvey; quarterback, Bunnell; halfbacks, Noble and Foote; fullback, Kline.

ALABAMA RETAINS LEAD IN THE SOUTH

Now Has Four Victories to Its Credit in Quest of the Third Straight Conference Title.

ATLANTA, Ga., Oct. 24 (AP).—Held by the University of the South to the smallest score in three years, the University of Alabama yesterday eked out a 2 to 0 victory to maintain an undefeated Conference record for the season. With four victories and four more Conference teams to play, Alabama is confident of winning its third Conference title.

Following Alabama for supremacy are Virginia Polytechnic Institute, which conquered Virginia, and the University of Tennessee. The Volunteers went outside the Conference to defeat the Centre Colonels, 30 to 7. Both Virginia Polytechnic Institute and Tennessee have conquered their two Conference opponents this season.

In third place, the University of Mississippi has one Conference victory and no defeats. Saturday Mississippi lost to Drake University, 33 to 15, in the only intersectional contest played.

Georgia Tech went into its contest with the Washington and Lee Generals Saturday an even choice, but, strengthened by the return of Carter Barron, flashy halfback, the Tornado downed the opposition, 19 to 7. Tech now has three victories and one defeat.

After leading Vanderbilt for more than three quarters, the University of Georgia finally crumpled under a powerful attack and lost to the Commodores, 14 to 13. Mississippi A. and M. defeated Louisiana State University, 7 to 6. North Carolina lost to Maryland, 14 to 7, while Kentucky came from behind to trounce the Florida Gators, 18 to 3. Virginia Military Academy won from North Carolina State, 7 to 0.

STRONG IS AMONG LEADERS

N. Y. U. Star Has 46 and Is in Fourth Place—O'Hare Sets Field Goal Pace With Six.

At the expense of Duke University Captain Bill Madden of the Columbia football team rolled up his point scoring total to 58 tallies and now is just one behind the leader. "Whippet" Carr of Syracuse, although out for the season, still is the Eastern leader, his mark being 59, scored on eight touchdowns and 11 points after touchdowns.

Third position is held by Wilson, the great Lafayette back, who has eight touchdowns now for a total of 48 tallies, but he is only two markers ahead of Strong of New York University, who has registered five touchdowns, 12 points after, and one goal from field. Fifth place is shared by Shaughnessy of Colgate and Graham, Fordham's quarterback, each having 45 tallies.

Although Dooley made two field goals against Harvard on Saturday, and thus boosted his total for the season to three, he is three behind O'Hare of Clarkson Tech, whose total now is six, giving him the lead by two field goals.

German and Austrian Horses Soon to Race in England Again

LONDON, Oct. 24 (AP).—German Austrian horses are soon to race in England again. The Jockey Club, at the request of the German and Austrian racing authorities, has lifted the ban which since the war has prevented horses from former enemy countries participating in races in this country.

ELEVEN BROWN MEN FIT FOR DARTMOUTH

Special to The New York Times.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., Oct. 24.—The eleven Brown men who played the entire Yale game at New Haven yesterday came through unharmed, and except for minor bruises will be ready to take up the work of preparing for Dartmouth at Hanover on Saturday. Hodge, tackle, will not be with the squad until Wednesday, as he returned tonight to Baltimore, where his mother is seriously ill.

Coach McLaughry is planning no strenuous physical work this week in an effort to keep the team up to the form it displayed at New Haven.

Practice will be confined largely to blackboard talks and dummy scrimmage. There will be no practice on Thursday, as the team leaves that day for Hanover. McLaughry is planning to start the same team which defeated Yale, provided no injuries develop meantime.

PRINCETON'S SQUAD IN GOOD CONDITION

Players, Only Troubled With Minor Injuries, Will All Report for Duty Today.

Special to The New York Times.

PRINCETON, N. J., Oct. 24.—Injuries to Princeton's football players in the game with Lehigh yesterday are only minor, according to Keene Fitzpatrick, Tiger trainer, and all the men will report in uniform tomorrow to start the campaign for Harvard and Yale.

Mike Miles, Princeton defensive back, was taken off the field yesterday after a hard tackle, but Trainer Fitzpatrick examined him this morning and reported that the sophomore star will be ready for practice tomorrow. Johnny Davis, captain, who made his first appearance in action yesterday, was bruised, but he will carry on.

Jake Slagle, Ted Williams and Dan Caulkins are all recovering from injuries, but Fitzpatrick said that he expected them to be ready for next Saturday, when Princeton meets Swarthmore in the Palmer Stadium.

Practice for the Tigers will continue closed during the week, and as many changes occurred in Princeton's line-up before the game yesterday Coach

Fight on A. A. U. Control Over Athletics Opened by Pierce

PIERCE OPENS FIGHT ON A. A. U. CONTROL

ATTACKS HULBERT'S STAND

Says A. A. U. Has Little Sympathy With Purposes of College Athletics—To Meet Dec. 29, 30.

That a more aggressive and extensive campaign is contemplated by the National Collegiate Athletic Association against the continuance and extension of the Amateur Athletic Union's control and supervision over amateur sport, is revealed in the call for the annual meeting of the N. C. A. A. issued yesterday by Brig. Gen. Palmer E. Pierce, President of the N. C. A. A.

In a circular letter, President Pierce advises the members of the N. C. A. A. that the annual meeting will be held in the Hotel Astor on Dec. 29 and 30. Referring to published statements alleged to have been made by President Murray Hulbert of the Amateur Athletic Union, wherein the N. C. A. A. was accused of being responsible for discord and dissension in amateur athletics, President Pierce calls the attention of the athletic and academic authorities of the colleges to what the N. C. A. A. leader terms, "the aggressive campaign to be started with the avowed purpose of strengthening the A. A. U.'s hold on sports."

There is every indication that discussion of measures by which the organization will seek to combat the A. A. U. will occupy the most important part of the N. C. A. A. annual meeting. The rivalry between the two organizations is one of long standing, but never before has it blazed to the extent which is reflected in the circular issued yesterday.

Statement by Pierce.

In referring to the published statement alleged to have been made by President Hulbert, and which, he describes as of much interest to the colleges, President Pierce in his circular says in part:

According to this press account, he (President Hulbert) stated that the National Collegiate Athletic Association, the National Amateur Athletic Federation, and the Y. M. C. A. are causing "discord and dissention" in athletics. Mr. Hulbert is reported to have said that the International Amateur Athletic Federation, to whose annual congress at The Hague he was a delegate, was solidly back of the Amateur Athletic Union, and would never recognize any other organization in this country. The A. A. U., according to Mr. Hulbert, will take steps to fight the N. A. A. F. and the N. C. A. A. in the South and West. "I feel sure," Mr. Hulbert is reported to have said, "that we can hold first place in athletic regulation in this country, as we rightly should."

He is said to have cited three instances of the support given the A. A. U. by the International Amateur Athletic Federation—First, that no American athletes could take part in the international Y. M. C. A. games at Copenhagen next Summer unless registered with the A. A. U.; second, that no women's association or organization can be formed in the United States to govern the participation of women in the Olympic Games unless such body has the sanction of the A. A. U.; third, that college students desiring to compete in sanctioned international intercollegiate meets must be registered with the A. A. U. The proposal that international intercollegiate games be considered closed meets he says was unanimously turned down by the International Amateur Athletic Federation.

At the annual conference of the N. C. A. A. held in Atlanta in 1923 a resolution was passed to the effect that the colleges would not recognize the authority of any outside organization in intercollegiate athletics, whether domestic or foreign. A copy of this resolution was sent to the International Amateur Athletic Federation and evidently the above is a reply to it, although no direct acknowledgment was made of the communication. So far as is known, the colleges have not in the past asked the International Amateur Athletic Federation to sanction proposed international collegiate athletic meets, and have not registered their undergraduates with the A. A. U. in order to secure sanctions for such meetings.

The attention of the athletic and academic authorities of the colleges is called to the aggressive campaign to be started with the avowed purpose of strengthening the A. A. U.'s hold on sports. In this connection it is well to note that over 90 per cent. of amateur athletics are developed by the organizations whose prestige ing influence Mr. Hulbert threatens. Your Executive Committee will gladly receive any suggestions as to what, if anything, should be done.

Last Summer Mr. Hulbert was asked by the Western Conference of Colleges to persuade the athletic clubs not to approach during college terms the undergraduates with the proposition to join their athletic teams. The courteous letter of our Secretary in regard to this matter was replied to in an offensive manner, refusing the request. Attention is called to this incident merely for the purpose of showing that the A. A. U. has little, if any, sympathy with the larger purposes of the N. C. A. A., which are to make athletics an integral part of the educational program.

TABERSKI TO TRAIN HERE.

Will Prepare at Dwyer's for Pocket Billiards Title Play.

Frank Taberski, deposed world's pocket billiard champion, will finish his work here in preparation for the world's championship pocket billiard tournament which will be played in Philadelphia from Nov. 6 to 17. It was learned yesterday that Taberski will play all comers at Dwyer's Broadway Academy starting on Wednesday.

Ralph Greenleaf, also a former champion, has reached this city and begins training at the Strand.

GREENLEAF PLAYS TODAY.

Opens 1,500-Point Pocket Billiard Test With Grogan at Strand.

Ralph Greenleaf will open his training campaign for the world's championship pocket billiard tourney when he starts a 1,500-point match against Charles Grogan at the Strand Academy this afternoon. Greenleaf will play twelve blocks, all at 125 points. He will remain here until one week from Thursday, when he departs for Philadelphia, where the tournament opens on the night of Nov. 6.

Yugoslavia Team Will Make Davis Cup Debut Next Year

The reaction of the tennis world to the sweeping victories scored by the French Davis Cup players over America's Big Four in the national championship last September is evidenced in the arrival of the first challenge for the Davis Cup for the 1927 season. The challenge is from the Yugoslav Tennis Association and is the earliest that has ever been received in the history of the international team competition. It is dated Sept. 22 and specifies that Yugoslavia will play in the European zone. This is the first time that Yugoslavia has entered the Davis Cup play.

MALONEY MATCHED TO BATTLE DIENER

Heavyweights Will Clash in the Garden on Dec. 2—Munn Also on Card.

By JAMES P. DAWSON.

The dearth of heavyweight fighting material, which has been more or less traditional in the past, has been replaced now by a scarcity of available dates on which to send the big fellows into action. This was revealed yesterday when Matchmaker Jess McMahon announced that he had closed negotiations for a ten-round bout between Jim Maloney, Boston's sturdy young heavyweight who knocked out Arthur Deken in two rounds last Friday night, and Franz Diener, German heavyweight who conquered Knute Hansen recently. They will clash in Madison Square Garden on the night of Thursday, Dec. 2, in the feature of another heavyweight card McMahon has under consideration.

Monte Munn, Nebraska's promising young heavyweight will be on the same card. His opponent has not yet been selected, but the contemplated bout will witness Munn's next start, for he is now suffering from an injured right hand which will prevent his accepting a ring engagement earlier. DeKuh also will be on the card if McMahon is successful in his quest of a suitable opponent to fight the Italian.

The Maloney-Diener battle is to be one of two heavyweight encounters McMahon has closed for the Garden. The other will be a ten-round bout between Bud Gorman, Wisconsin heavyweight, and Harry Persson, Swedish giant, which is to feature a card on Nov. 1. These dates are the only available ones at the Garden in the immediate future. On Nov. 19 Tod Morgan will defend his junior lightweight championship title against Carl Duane of the Bronx. This show will follow the rodeo which is soon to open in the Garden, and will be followed by the horse show. The Dec. 2 battle will be followed by the annual December six-day bicycle race which is to start at midnight on Dec. 8.

That Ace Hudkins will knock out Phil McGraw when the pair collide in a bout scheduled for twelve rounds at the Garden on Friday night was the confident prediction made yesterday by Clyde Hudkins, brother-manager of the Nebraska wildcat.

"Ace is better now than he ever was," said Clyde yesterday, after watching Ace in his daily workout. "He moves better, is faster, his hitting is harder and more accurate, and he is taking his training more seriously than ever before. I don't think McGraw will go twelve rounds with the Ace."

Hudkins yesterday weighed 150 pounds. His match with McGraw will be at 138 or 140 pounds, the exact poundage being due for decision today. Hudkins, however, does not anticipate any difficulty getting down to the prescribed notch, and is confident he will be returned the winner over McGraw.

Billy Petrolle, Fargo (N. D.) battler, is in hard training for his ten-round bout with Hilario Martinez, Spanish lightweight, which will serve as the semi-final to the Hudkins-McGraw battle. Sid Barbarian, Detroit Armenian, and Tommy Farley of Philadelphia are paired in another ten-round bout, while in a six-round battle Walter Hogan, Bill Duffy's middleweight from Ossining, will collide with Chief Halbran, Indian fighter.

ROUTIS IN RING TONIGHT.

Plenty of fistic action is promised tonight at the New Broadway Arena, Brooklyn, where Matchmaker Andy Neiderreiter will conduct a card consisting of three ten-round bouts, a six-round encounter and a four-round match. André Routis, sturdy little French fighter, is to tackle Allentown Johnny Leonard in the main bout of ten rounds. The ten-round semi-final will be between Jack Bernstein, former junior lightweight champion, and Charley Rosen of the east side. Frankie Fink, Texas featherweight, and Joe Malone of Harlem are paired in the first ten-round bout.

KOHN FINISHES FIRST IN BROOKLYN RACE

Y. M. H. A. Athlete Scores Over Field of 112 in Harriers' A. A. Handicap Road Run.

MORENO WINS TIME PRIZE

Coach Nat Oak of the Ninety-second Street Y. M. H. A. sent a road race winner across the bridge to Brooklyn yesterday when he started Julius Kohn, 19-year-old runner, in the invitation handicap road race of the Brooklyn Harriers' A. A.

Kohn, a lad who only four months ago broke his novice career when he won a place prize in the Golden City A. A. road race, yesterday scampered over a slippery, treacherous course of about five and one-half miles through a downpour of rain, to score a victory over a field of 112 rivals.

Starting with a handicap allowance of 6 minutes 15 seconds, fifteen seconds short of the limit allowance, Kohn scored his victory in impressive fashion, finishing the grind strong, and holding an advantage of more than fifty yards over Jack Morgan, unattached runner, who finished second from the 6-minute mark. Kohn's actual time was 31 minutes 11 4-5 seconds. Third prize went to M. Porter, unattached, who got away from the limit handicap and covered the course in the actual time of 31:47.

Kohn set the pace for the greater part of the chase and proved himself too strong and fast for the biggest field to start in a road race this season. The Y. M. H. A. youngster gained the lead shortly before the two-mile mark and broke trail for the pack thereafter. In the last mile he increased his pace and gradually drew away. More than 150 runners started despite the unfavorable weather.

Team honors in the chase went to the representatives of the Good Shepherd A. C. This quintet finished the event with the low winning score of 51 points, while the Swedish-American A. C. five was second with 58 tallies.

The struggle for fast time honors resulted in a victory for Gonzelo Moreno, a sturdy young soldier-runner from the Panama Canal Zone. He started off the three-minute mark and finished twelfth, covering the course in the actual time of 29 minutes 8 seconds.

The order of finish follows:

Pos.	Name and Club.	H'cap.	Actual Time.
1.	J. Kohn, 92d St. Y. M. H. A.	6:15	31:11½
2.	J. Morgan, unattached	6:00	31:17

Tilden to Play in France And England Next Summer

William T. Tilden, former national tennis champion, will invade England and France next year, according to The Associated Press, which announces that an article in The American Lawn Tennis Magazine states that the injury to the former champion's knee is expected to be healed by that time. The article goes on to say that Tilden expects to return here in time to try to regain the American crown in the national tourney.

In a keenly contested soccer game at Hawthorne Field, Brooklyn, yesterday the Brooklyn Wanderers and New Bedford of the American Soccer League played to a 1-all tie. Rain fell throughout the contest, making the footing uncertain. It was with great difficulty that the opposing players were able to exercise any control over the ball. Neither side scored in the first half.

On resuming, New Bedford pressed, but Wilson and Gross defended well. Stevens relieved Brittan of New Bedford and in less than fifteen minutes he scored the first goal on a pass from Chedzgoy. New Bedford held this one goal lead until fifteen minutes from the close, when Schoenfeld, relieving Nelson for Brooklyn, scored the equalizing goal following a scrimmage during which the ball was played by six of the Brooklyn players.

Springfield Leads at Start.

The Springfield Football Club of Springfield, Mass., in a steady rain yesterday at New York Oval, played a 5-all tie in their American League match with the New York Giants. At half-time the New Englanders were leading, 4-3, but New York tied the count in the second period. The visitors, however, again took the lead only to see the Giants even up in the last five minutes.

MAC SMITH-SARAZEN WIN 72-HOLE MATCH

Long Island Pros Beat Farrell and Turnesa, 5 and 4, in Second Half of Test.

START THE DAY 3 DOWN

By WILLIAM D. RICHARDSON.

Macdonald Smith and Gene Sarazen defeated Johnny Farrell and Joe Turnesa, 5 up and 4 to play, in their 72-hole match, which was completed at the Fresh Meadow and Lakeville courses yesterday, thereby capturing the lion's share of the $1,600 prize which the four clubs, represented by the professionals, put up for the exhibition.

Smith and Sarazen started the final thirty-six holes of the match with a deficit of three holes, which Turnesa and Farrell gained at Fairview and Quaker Ridge, home clubs of Turnesa and Farrell, a week ago.

The two Long Islanders squared the match on the sixth hole at Fresh Meadow, Sarazen's home course, yesterday morning, and finished 1 up at the end of the 18 holes, when the scene of action was transferred to Lakeville, Smith's course. There Sarazen and Smith began a spurt which left them 4 up at the turn and the match ended on the fourteenth hole.

Match Played in Downpour.

The match was played under poor conditions, especially in the afternoon, when rain fell throughout the entire fourteen holes, converting the greens into rivulets and the fairways into lakes.

Turnesa and Farrell failed to win a hole all day long. At Fresh Meadow, Sarazen had a 74, Smith a 76, Farrell a 79 and Turnesa an 82. In the afternoon at Lakeville both Smith and Sarazen went out in 36, while Turnesa and Farrell had 38's.

Smith and Sarazen brought their deficit down to two holes by getting 4's at the first hole at Fresh Meadow and they also won the fifth and sixth to square the match.

Also Add the 15th.

Every other hole was halved except the fifteenth, where the two Long Islanders got 4's and the Westchester pair 5's. The first half of the match was featureless except for two long putts by Sarazen to save halves for his side.

In the afternoon Smith's iron play was a feature. Sarazen won the third hole with a 4 and Smith won the fourth, putting his side 3 up. He then sank a 12-foot putt for a 2 at the seventh after Sarazen had saved a half on the sixth with a superb 40-foot approach to within 6 inches. Smith then ran down a 15-foot putt for a 3 in the ninth to put his side 5 up, and they maintained that lead to the finish.

THE WEEK IN SPORTS

No longer do a few teams monopolize the top in football. The sectional headliners one year give way to new ones the next, and while many retain much gridiron prestige, the so-called gridiron "trusts" have been broken.

Just glance back a few years. Then it was Harvard, Yale or Princeton which ruled in the East, Michigan or Chicago in the Middle West, while California, especially under the reign of the late Andy Smith, was supreme on the Pacific Coast. Conditions have changed. Just in the last week, for instance, teams of early-season promise have been transformed into bitter disappointment, while unheralded, semi-obscure elevens have been elevated to the heights.

The reasons for changed conditions are the development of the open game and spread of high-class coaching. Sectionalism in football has been wiped out, alleged set-ups have disappeared and contests, at least spirited, can be expected from virtually any team that boasts anything like first-class coaching.

In the past the big school had the advantage of bountiful material, splendid coaching staffs and generous alumni support, whereas the smaller schools, working under financial handicaps, found it difficult to recruit large squads as well as good coaches.

Keeps Up Alumni Interest.

The liberal turnout of the gridiron followers, the generous support from alumni and other friends and the wave of football enthusiasm which has swept the country have served to make football a profitable pastime and a sport which does much to keep the alumni in close touch with undergraduate activities.

Football also is nowadays far-reaching. Nothing can bring a college located in an out-of-the-way place into national prominence more quickly than a sensational victory. The case of Geneva, with its advance at the expense of Harvard, is the most recent. Centre College was placed before the public through gridiron exploits, while few will deny that Notre Dame owes much of its present prominence to the gridiron, and this long before Rockne assumed command.

The development of the forward pass has been one of the great levelers in football. A light, courageous, aggressive team, one able to check the rushes of heavier opponents, has a distinct scoring advantage with such an effective weapon as the pass. The open game has unlimited possibilities. It is a game that keeps the coaches working overtime, first to make the pass a scoring power and second to develop a defense to meet it.

Harvard Again to Fore.

Harvard again is in the forefront. After a few disastrous seasons and an unpromising start of the 1926 campaign, the Crimson followers have reason to feel jubilant over the surprising victory of last Saturday. It was a dramatic finish to a thrilling game, one in which interest never waned. Harvard conquered a fine alert Dartmouth team, and the class of football exhibited by the Crimson was sufficient to buoy up the hopes at Cambridge.

In the face of distressing condition, marked by the downfall at the hands of Holy Cross after the Harvard team had pounded its way to a fourteen-point lead, Coach Horween got his team keyed to the proper pitch, and the triumph last Saturday was a splendid tribute to Horween and the wearers of the 1926 Crimson colors.

Yale went down before Brown and the result was a distinct surprise. Tad Jones's powerful and resourceful team was rated with the best of the 1926 crop, but at the same time Brown activities had not attracted general attention. Coach McLaughry had developed a rugged eleven, one so rugged, in fact, that it went through the entire sixty minutes without a change being made. Such a condition is unusual in modern football when two and three men are trained for each position, a system which has been almost universally adopted.

Princeton seems to be having its troubles, but history reveals that every time the future seems hopeless for the Tiger, Coach Roper and his men just turn around and do the unexpected. Princeton has not had its full strength on the field in weeks, and if the team is in good physical condition by the time the Yale and Harvard games arrive, it will be a Tiger eleven capable of making things more than interesting.

The metropolitan district is taking a hold on football, a hold that is certain to grow stronger. Columbia is making a courageous fight for a place in football and there is reason to believe that the fight will not be hopeless. Ever since Haughton took charge, Columbia has been moving forward. Columbia has outgrown the "little class" in football and is rated a dangerous foe for the big games. Coach Crowley is carrying on well and has done much to elevate Columbia in a football way.

N. Y. U. at the Front.

New York University has come to the front with a rush and already has earned a rating with the Eastern leaders. The team has shown power and versatility against worthy opposition and much is expected from Meehan before the season ends.

Fordham has met with two setbacks this year, but ordinary teams did not bring about the reverses. Boston College and Washington and Jefferson, high class, powerful teams, wrought destruction on Fordham hopes, but Coach Gargan has no reason to feel downcast. The team has the power and a genuine battle is forecast when Fordham and N. Y. U. meet on Saturday.

Syracuse came back victoriously against Penn State after the hard battle of the week before with the Army. Minus a few stars, Syracuse flashed a courageous battle against Bezdek's Pennsylvanians. Injuries weakened the up-Staters but Syracuse is far from an outsider. Coach Reynolds still has a team that will be in the Eastern rating before the season ends.

The Navy continues to keep up its winning streak but it had a narrow escape last Saturday. A last minute touchdown snatched victory from Colgate. Navy followers are hopeful of a better showing against Michigan on Saturday than was the fate of the Middies a year ago at Ann Arbor.

CROSS-COUNTRY

While A. A. U. officials are making a concerted drive to stimulate interest in distance running in an effort to bring out new material for America's next Olympic team, the colleges also are doing their share. Scores of cross-country races are being staged by the collegians this Fall and with so many athletes in competition the results are bound to be productive.

America, of course, still has to produce stars of sufficient calibre to be able to match strides with the marvels of Europe and when the ten-mile national championship is held next Sunday, Willie Ritola, who makes America his home but wins Olympic titles for Finland, is practically sure again to finish well in front of the best this country will have to offer. However, distance runners are not developed over night, but the marked activity that is being displayed among the college harriers as well as in the A. A. U. ranks makes the outlook reasonably bright.

Particularly gratifying was the showing of local collegians in the quadrangular cross-country race held at Van Cortlandt Park last Saturday. New York University sent three runners across the line abreast in the good time of 32:40 for the six-mile trail. Taking the first three places, however, was not sufficient to give the Violet a victory, team honors going to a better balanced combination from Columbia. The Blue and White showed so impressively in finishing runners from fourth to eighth places that Columbia must be regarded a contender for team laurels in the intercollegiate championships this Fall.

The past week also uncovered a walker for America who threatens to give Willie Plant a hard fight for his laurels. He is Harry Hinkle, who, by winning the metropolitan seven-mile title last Saturday in 52:51 3-5, turned in the fastest time ever recorded by an American for this distance. Hinkle, of course, is hardly a newcomer. He has been walking on local tracks for several years. But he seems to have hit his best stride and from now on should prove a formidable opponent for Plant, the American champion.

TURF

Crusader came back handsomely in the winning of the Maryland Handicap at Laurel Park, still further entrenching himself in the estimation of the racing public as the horse of the year. His victory and the defeat of Boot to Boot at Latonia places him in an unassailable position as the leading money winner of the current year. As Colonel Bradley's colt suffered an injury before his race, it is possible that he will not carry colors again. Crusader, on the other hand, still has several engagements in rich Maryland stakes, and has the opportunities to add substantially to his already imposing total.

Crusader's recent defeat and that of Solario in England demonstrate that turf champions, like others, have their off days in which circumstances present obstacles which they are unable to overcome. Bad racing luck can defeat the best of them. At rare intervals there comes a super-horse, an Ormonde in England, a Botafogo in the Argentine and a Man o' War in the United States—horses that can overcome difficulties insurmountable to others.

Ormonde was unbeaten in a time when there were many good horses to test his speed and stamina. Botafogo was many pounds better than the horses he met and was as far superior to Grey Fox, the only horse that ever beat him, as was Man o' War to Upset, the Whitney colt that showed the way to him at Saratoga when they were two-year-olds.

There is no doubt that Crusader is the best horse in the country at weight-for-age at any distance from a mile and a quarter upward.

The coming dispersal sale on Nov. 8 and 9 of the stock of John E. Madden's Hamburg Place near Lexington, Ky., will be one of the most important events in recent turf history in this country. It will mark the retirement from market breeding of the man who has for nine successive years led all American breeders in the number of winners produced. One hundred and eight broodmares and three stallions will come under the hammer, and the vendue is certain to attract breeders from all parts of the continent, who will remain for the sale two days later of the broodmares of Mrs. Louise Viau. Neither Mr. Madden nor Mrs. Viau is to be lost to racing, merely retiring from breeding on so extensive a scale. The master of Hamburg Place has seen most of the famous horses of his breeding—Grey Lag, Sir Martin, King James, Rockminister, Sir Barton, Zev, Princess Doreen and The Finn—win glory under others' silks. The breeder of five winners of the Kentucky Derby will now race his product under his own silks, which should in the future gain the highest prominence.

Racing on the Jockey Club circuit will come to an end with the conclusion of the Autumn meeting at Empire City next Saturday afternoon. With little to attract the racing public, the attendance has been small, and adverse weather has also done its part. There is still a month of Eastern racing ahead at Pimlico and Bowie. Many rich stakes are offered by the Maryland Jockey Club for its twelve-day meeting, most notable being the $40,000 Pimlico Futurity, which will be run Friday of next week. Crusader will have a further opportunity in the new $25,000 Riggs Handicap at a mile and a half, which will feature the opening a week from today; the Bowie Handicap at the same distance; the serial weight-for-age events and the Pimlico Cup on the closing day, to all of which he is eligible.

GOLF

That California intends to make a bid for the Winter golf trade which has heretofore been confined largely to Florida is evident in the number of tournaments already scheduled on the Coast. Even at this early date there are six in prospect for the professionals, the prizes amounting to more than $20,000, and it would not be surprising if at least one more big money event was added to the string before the season starts.

With such a quantity of gold held out as bait nearly all the chief players are already making their plans for a Coast tour. Macdonald Smith is leaving around the first of December, for his annual pilgrimage, and the chances are that at least twenty others will make the trip. After California the troupe will move on to Texas and Arkansas, where four or five notable tournaments are scheduled, and from there go to Florida in time for the important events of February and March. All in all, the pros are in for a bounteous season, with $50,000 in prize money in sight.

C. H. Geist, President of the Seaview Golf Club at Absecon, N. J., has made a decided hit with the members of the Women's Metropolitan Golf Association. His two invitation tournaments, one held in the Spring and the other last week, drew forth large and enthusiastic fields. They also resulted in some excellent golf. The chances are that next Spring, when the season will be ushered in by another tournament at the New Jersey resort, there will be a much larger attendance even than there was this year. It makes a fitting beginning and ending for the golf year.

BOXING

Gene Tunney should, if he heeds the fight fans, give Jack Dempsey the first chance at the heavyweight title the fighting ex-marine won in Philadelphia just a month ago. Whether the champion next fights in the Spring or Autumn or in 1928, if he follows precedent and elects to capitalize his honors, he should accord the chance to Dempsey. No other interpretation can be placed on the demonstration which greeted the champion and ex-champion in the ring of Madison Square Garden last Friday night, where they received their championship belts from the Boxing Writers' Association of Greater New York.

Promoter Tex Rickard is understood to have Tunney and Dempsey practically signed to contracts now. If he hasn't he should have, for, if the promoter was present last Friday night, his mind would have been made up for him.

Not Fair to the Champion.

The demonstration was disgraceful and it was wonderful. It was disgraceful that Tunney, a New York boy developed into manhood as credit to the city, State, country and the sport he represents; a likable lad with an attractive personality, should have been subjected to such jeers by his very own, should thus have been exposed to the stupid rancor of an ill-tempered mob. Dempsey himself disapproved of the spirit shown in the unfavorable demonstration for Tunney. The defeated champion has proved himself big enough to accept defeat as well as victory; the crowd should learn sportsmanship from him.

For Dempsey the demonstration was wonderful. It was the spontaneous tribute of hero worshipers for an idol, tottered from his perch, but apparently more idolized than before. Gone was the dissatisfaction with Dempsey's inactivity as champion; gone the animosity toward him for failing to defend his title against Wills; gone the spirit which but two months ago led the crowd to jeer Dempsey and cheer Wills in this same Garden.

Dempsey as ex-champion is more popular than Dempsey as champion; in defeat Dempsey is greater than he was in victory. It was a remarkable tribute to a fine fighter, and indicated with what interest a return bout between Tunney and Dempsey would be greeted.

Aspirants Not Impressive.

The heavyweight bouts which attended this significant meeting of champion and ex-champion were scarcely impressive. As championship material the participants in Friday's fights fell far short.

Maloney projected himself into the heavyweight arena as a likely prospect, and yet De Kuh wasn't entirely eliminated. The rangy young Italian, it seemed, lacked the instinct of the fighter, but may acquire something of this if he continues and is properly schooled. It is said now that De Kuh was rushed to the front too soon, but at the same time the test had to come, and it is better that it is past, if De Kuh will but profit by his experience and learn how to protect himself and conduct himself when stung.

Munn still looks like the best of the younger crop of heavyweights, but he is yet raw, with many rough edges which have to be smoothed and a style which must be perfected. He is headstrong, and this may militate against his getting far. That remains to be seen. De Mave is just a strong, willing youngster. Okun is a light-heavyweight with cleverness and speed, whose career lies in front of him.

BASEBALL

Upheavals in the ranks of the baseball Managers were many and important in the last week. No fewer than four leaders were notified that their respective clubs would try to worry along without their services next season. A fifth pilot is reported to be ready for the guillotine and there are one or two others who may be requested to find other lodgings before another year bursts upon us. The week's victims included Bill McKechnie of the Pirates, Arthur Fletcher of the Phillies, George Sisler of the Browns and Lee Fohl of the Red Sox. Fletcher, Sisler and Fohl piloted their teams into second division berths, but the case of McKechnie is not based on any such premise. McKechnie won third place for the Pirates, but it is held by President Barney Dreyfuss and his advisers that Wilkinsburg Bill was to blame for the Buccaneers not winning the pennant.

"Win or Get Out" The Motto.

Baseball managers are now getting into the same class as football coaches, who are rated by their ability to deliver a winner. "Win or get out" seems to be the motto in the major leagues. The magnates are growing more impatient every year. With the high salaries now being paid the managers and club owners believe firmly that nothing succeeds like success and that there is nothing more damning than failure.

Even Tyrus Raymond Cobb is not immune from this acid test. Cobb undoubtedly was the greatest player who ever flashed a spike. He did more for Detroit and the American League than anybody else, with the possible exception of Ban Johnson, yet it is reported from Tigertown that President Frank Navin is considering supplanting Tyrus with Umpire George Moriarty, who once was third baseman on the Tigers.

"I owe a great debt to Cobb, but I am not willing to pay it by keeping Detroit in the baseball ruck," President Navin is reported to have said recently.

Sentiment Not Fashionable.

"Win or get out" is still the motto even though you were the greatest ball player of all time. If sentiment ever had a place in baseball, it is rapidly dying out.

True, Wilbert Robinson hasn't had a winner since 1920 and he is not going to get out. Wisely enough, the Brooklyn magnates decided to retain the man who put Flatbush on the map. Uncle Robbie has done more with poor teams than any other magager in the history of baseball. He won two pennants with no team at all. Whether he stays on as President of the club is not important. But it is highly important that the Robins have decided to keep him at the helm of the team.

There are at least five managers who have nothing to worry about—Hornsby, Hendricks, McCarthy, Huggins and Speaker. Their managerial achievements were the high spots of the season.

HULL TOPS BATTERS IN CRICKET LEAGUE

BOXILL HEADS THE BOWLERS

Marsh Ranked Next in Official Report of Recent Title Race Won by Crescent A. C.

A full report of the season's activities of the New York and New Jersey Cricket Association has been prepared by F. Fitzmaurice Kelly, the Secretary. The pennant again goes to the Crescent Athletic Club, which lost only two games out of fourteen. Brooklyn placed second and Manor Field third.

E. G. Hull of Manor Field has the distinction of heading the batting averages, followed by J. L. Poyer of Brooklyn and R. C. Leckey of the Crescent A. C.

W. Boxill of Newark finished first among the bowlers. There was a close race for second place among H. Marsh of the Crescent A. C., H. Poyer of Brooklyn and H. Smith, Crescent A. C., who ranked in that order.

The official tables follow:

Survey of Industrial Weather-Signs, With Stock Market Calmed Down.

With last week's signs of recovery on the Stock Exchange, Wall Street shifted as usual from gloomy forecasts of the industrial future to cheerful prophecy. The financial mind is so firmly habituated to reading the longer business outlook through the spectacles of a ten-day stock market that it is probably useless to combat the practice of sweeping generalization. Remonstrances, to the effect that if the 12-point decline in average prices since September meant approaching adversity, then the 28-point rise between March and September must have meant an excited "business boom," are logically convincing, but they never shake reliance on the stock market's specific prophecy. It must also fairly be conceded, first, that nobody surely knows, when stocks are falling, exactly how far the decline will eventually go, and, second, that opinion always differs as to exactly where the line should be drawn between "moderate slackening of activity" and "severe reaction."

"Moderate slackening" is an early certainty unless we were to assume, what industrial history has never witnessed, absolutely uninterrupted expansion in current production and consumption. How far the relaxation of activity will go depends on various circumstances; not least on the often undetermined question, to what extent the final consumer may already have provided for legitimate future needs. But even what merchants call a conservative skimming-up of trade will usually be indicated beforehand by certain well-known signs. Their present testimony is worth examining.

Probably most business men of experience would say that, waiving the stock market (whose indication must be inferred, not from its brief and often much-exaggerated fluctuations but from its course over a period of many months), there are four main weather-signs of an industrial future. They are railway traffic, which shows actual distribution of the moment; advance orders on producers' books, which may reflect the consumer's own judgment of his later needs; output of steel and iron and of other staple manufactured products, which reflects the producer's expectations, and the amount drawn in checks on American banks, which measures both present and prospective activity of trade.

As to railway traffic, it is quite indisputable that distribution of merchandise, during the past four or five weeks, has indicated sustained consuming power. The weekly loadings of freight have hardly wavered from the wholly unprecedented figure of September. It is true that the same thing could be said even of 1920 and 1923, when the Autumn outlook was not good and when substantial reaction came in the next few weeks. The freight movement of October, which in those two years broke all previous records, represented deliveries against the immensely increased orders accumulated on the books of producing companies some months before; the Steel Corporation showed in June, 1920, unfilled orders 6,000,000 tons above the same date of the preceding year and in March, 1923, a similar increase of 2,900,000.

But the corporation's unfilled orders at the end of last September scarcely varied in amount from those of the four or five preceding months or from those of the similar period of 1925. They were far below the high point reached in 1923 and 1920, but that is perfectly understood to mean that buyers had not been rashly "discounting" the future. Coincidence of this picture from the order books with a maximum actual consumption shown by railway traffic and with absence of increasing stocks of goods in the average merchant's hands, as shown by the Reserve Board's inquiries, gives a reasonably accurate view of the situation.

The latest monthly production of steel in the United States decreased from August, whereas increase over that month is usual in September. But it was 12¼ per cent. or more above the largest September output in any other year since the war and it showed, moreover, no such decrease from the monthly maximum of 1926 as was shown by September in 1924 or 1925. The question of a really significant change will therefore have to be settled in the later months; there seems to have been no other decrease in October. Curiously enough, and in spite of curtailment at numerous individual producing plants, even the country's motor-car output makes an exactly similar comparison.

Bank clearings stand out somewhat apart from the other indices; for such financial and commercial drafts on bank deposits decreased last month from the year preceding, and that was the first decrease of the kind since March of 1924. It was partly attributable to the sweeping reduction of business activities in the tornado-stricken Southern district. But a country-wide decrease would have resulted, even without the Florida incident; in the New York, Philadelphia, Richmond, Minneapolis and St. Louis reserve districts, September clearings ranged 1% to 12% per cent. below 1925. In some respects this is a significant indication. A similar decrease gave the signal for trade reaction in 1920, when clearings had for eighteen months shown uninterrupted increase over the year preceding, but reported continuous decreases after June. It did so again in 1923, when the change in August from nineteen successive months of similar unbroken increase, to a series of months with a lower aggregate than the year before, reflected waning activity of trade.

Future results may profitably be watched in that direction as in others. As yet, the only sure conclusion is that trade activity is not now expanding at the rate of some other recent seasons, and that the exceptional pace which marked the usually quiet month of August has probably anticipated many Autumn requirements.

FOREIGN BUYING OF FRANC RAISED PRICE

Large 'Bear Accounts,' Opened Three Months Ago, Closed Out Last Week.

NEW SPECULATIVE POSITION

Treasury Has Covered Requirements for Maturing Foreign Payments Up to Next April.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—Last week's rapid rise in the franc and fall in the foreign exchanges came in a considerable extent as a surprise to this market. Exchange dealers ascribed it primarily to large foreign purchases of francs.

In particular, Swiss and English speculators closed out bear accounts in francs which they had opened three months ago, during the currency crisis at Paris. A certain number of these foreign speculators have even reversed their position on the market and become purchasers of francs for the rise, and it has now become evident that foreign banks have largely increased their holdings of francs at Paris.

Speculative Positions Closed.

Another characteristic feature of the market was the showing of the carry-over loans on sterling for one month. These were previously quoted as high as 25 per cent. per annum, but have lately fallen to about 7 per cent.—which adds to the proof that foreign speculators are no longer bear sellers of francs but have competely altered their attitude.

On the other hand, the check to the rise in the franc late in the week was due to extremely large purchases of pounds and dollars by the Treasury on the open market, while quotations for those two exchanges were falling. The Treasury has thereby greatly increased its reserves of foreign exchange; apparently it has covered future requirements for payments due on all dates up to next April.

Effect on Trade Requirements.

The market, however, feels the lack of the foreign exchange which has been taken into the Treasury. It now begins to appear that trade demands, which, as usual, had ceased during the fall in foreign exchanges, will not be easily met, because of difficulty in obtaining the necessary supply between now and the end of the year. For the improvement in the franc to be actually consolidated, moreover, a much more substantial return of French capital now held abroad will be necessary. Such a movement, however, has hardly developed as yet. Even partisans of stabilization do not consider it possible at any higher rate for the franc, and many of them therefore look unfavorably upon such movements as that of last week. These people point out that further rise in the franc, concurrently with the inevitable continued rise of domestic prices, would act unfavorably on the foreign trade balance.

ENGLAND HESITATES TO BUY COTTON HEAVILY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Cotton trade experts last week expressed themselves optimistically concerning the future. The cheapness of raw cotton is now accepted as a very strong factor in favor of revival of the textile trade. As yet, however, even with raw material selling at its lowest price in more than five years, manufacturers are still holding off, under the impression that even lower prices may be reached. There is no rush to buy cotton merely because it is cheap or because America is threatening to take millions of bales off the market.

The view here is that it is impossible to create a favorable market feeling by such action. Manchester textile merchants are by no means convinced that current prices for cotton goods are safe, so that there was little increase in activity in advance of publication of Monday's bureau report. But the longer view is distinctly more hopeful, and would probably become more so on any sign of recovery in cotton prices.

TRADE BALANCE SWINGS IN FAVOR OF FRANCE

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—With September imports reaching 4,625 million francs, as compared with 5,235 millions in August and 4,317 millions in September, 1925, and with exports at 5,196 million francs against 5,543 millions in August and 3,849 millions in September, 1925, the balance of trade is again flowing strongly in favor of France. Last month's export surplus of 571 millions is below that of August, but otherwise is the largest since July, 1925. In fact, an import surplus was reported in every month from August, 1925, to June, 1926, inclusive.

"The surplus of imports for the nine completed months, amounting to 1,564 million francs, compares with an export surplus of 2,782 millions in the same period of 1925 and of 1,183 millions in 1924. During the same nine months of 1923, however, the excess of imports was 986 million francs and in 1922 it was 1,182 millions.

VERY ACTIVE MOVEMENT IN FOREIGN EXCHANGE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Last week's unusual activity in the foreign exchange market was partly seasonal, but largely, also, due to special circumstances. Generally speaking, the "unstabilized exchanges" moved in a rather bewildering fashion. What impressed the market, and considerably assisted in the recovery of the franc, was the statement by the French Government to the effect that the Morgan credit has been entirely reconstituted. It had been inferred that this had been effected out of the Government's own resources; but what really appears to have happened is that the Bank of France, by issuing more notes which are not included in the circulation figures, has been able to purchase foreign currency to the original amount of the Morgan credit.

The strength of Italian exchange was due to considerable Continental purchasing of lire, evidently for adjusting commercial debts. Norwegian currency appreciated very rapidly to within about 1½ kroner of parity, owing to the decision of the Bank of Norway to reduce its buying rate for sterling to 20 kroner. Japan's decision to ship gold to America for purposes of strengthening the specie reserve explains the rise in the Japanese yen to within 7-16d of parity, while the firmness of Belgian francs presaged an early stabilization loan, which, incidentally, is having a sentimental effect upon French exchange.

German exchange continued to hover around the gold point, with the result that practically all of the £900,000 offered in the open market last week went to Germany. The drop in the dollar sterling rate brought Swiss and Dutch exchanges down, but although Switzerland took a little gold from the Bank of England neither of these exchanges is yet down to the gold point.

ITALIAN GOVERNMENT FAVORS RISE IN LIRA

Hopes for Higher 'Stabilization Price'—People Cooperating Enthusiastically.

ROME, Oct. 24.—Commenting on last week's advance in the lira, Italian bankers expressed the belief that the Government will aid in every possible way to promote a further rise; the purpose being to attain stabilization around the highest point permitted by economic and political conditions in Italy. Many good financial observers predict that the lira will soon regain the gold purchasing power of 22 centimes, which it possessed in 1921, as against the present purchasing power of 14 centimes.

The markets consider the notable improvement in the lira a direct consequence of the Government's measures for reducing circulation and limiting consumption. The rise was favored also by seasonal influences. It is recognized now that the sense of discipline among industrialists and workers has become so strong that the country may be relied upon to endure cheerfully all sacrifices created by revaluation of the lira, and that the people are willing to give to the limit in backing the Government's efforts.

Taking 100 as the average price of goods in 1913, the index number generally used here now stands at 652. The year's highest point was 692, reached in the first week of September; the lowest since the war was 466, in July, 1921. During the four years from 1922 to 1926 the average was 565.

EXPORT BALANCE FOR GERMANY IN SEPTEMBER

Contrasts With August's 85,800,000 Import Surplus and 278,000,000 in September, 1925.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—Imports of merchandise into Germany during September, not including precious metals, amounted to 843,419,000 marks, against 919,726,000 in August and 1,054,522,000 in September, 1925. Exports were 836,370,000, against 833,899,000 in the preceding month and 776,566,000 in the preceding September.

Last month's export surplus of 12,951,000 therefore compared with an import surplus of 85,827,000 in August and an import surplus of 278,000,000 in September, 1925. The month's export surplus was mainly due to decline in imports of foodstuffs, which fell from 383,610,000 marks to 255,880,000.

During the first nine months of 1926 imports without precious metals were 6,900 millions and exports 7,259 millions. The resultant export balance of 359 millions for the period compares with an import surplus of 3,424 million marks in the same nine months of 1925.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—It is announced that the Linke-Hofmann-Lauchhammer Steel and Engineering Company will be dissolved. Its steel works will thereupon be the nucleus of a new central German steel trust.

This announcement is taken in the trade to mean the final disappearance of the once popular "vertical trust" and the final triumph of the "horizontal system."

LONDON DISQUIETED AT STERLING'S FALL

Rate Now Only Small Fraction Above Gold Export Point to New York.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The markets, particularly Lombard Street, have been rather frightened by the sharp fall in sterling at New York, which is now at the lowest of the year. At the moment the feeling is rather more confident regarding the monetary outlook, with a tendency to stress favorably rather than unfavorably aspects of the situation. But sterling in its decline has now fallen to within ¼ cent of the gold export point, which is estimated at approximately the cable rate of $4.84¾ for the pound sterling.

The fall has surprised only superficial students of the money market, whose comment is that it ought to have been more generally anticipated, since it is a wholly seasonal development. Studied closely, the position is really better than last year, when heavy gold exports from London to New York occurred. This year, despite the extra pressure put upon exchange by British purchases of American coal, sterling has shown much greater resistance than any one expected to the normal activities which usually cause the rate to move against London at this time of year.

What Had Held Up Sterling.

Resisting power has been supplied by the higher level of money rates ruling in London compared with last year, and more recently the easier tendency of money rates in New York. The latter development has been particularly welcomed in London, because at one time it was really feared that the Federal Reserve Board would be compelled to raise its rediscount rate to check Wall Street speculation. The American credit situation, however, is now considered to have righted itself to an extent which very considerably minimizes the danger of a higher New York bank rate, even if it has not altogether removed it.

Our own bank rate policy will probably now depend upon the extent of gold exports. A steady drain has set in, which has resulted in a net loss of gold by the Bank of England of nearly £2,000,000 during the past month. In addition, about as much gold has been bought for export in the open market during the same period. No safe limit can be placed upon future exports of gold, because of the coal strike, which, as long as it continues, must throw a heavy burden upon sterling exchange.

The Coal Trade's Influence.

This stoppage has seriously hampered our export trade and imposed a severe liability in the shape of large coal imports. Even if an advance in the bank rate is avoided and an effort is made to prevent money rates from rising, there seems little prospect of any decline for some time to come. Everything is, in fact, being thrown out of gear by the prolonged coal stoppage, including Government finance. Owing to the difficulty of collecting revenue under present conditions, the Government is obliged to meet the deficiency between revenue and expenditure by increasing the floating debt. This means a steadily rising total of Treasury bills and a consequent reduction in money market resources.

Currency notes outstanding at the end of the week aggregated £288,705,220, compared with £290,446,151 a week ago and £290,770,411 two weeks ago. The highest of the year to date was £303,466,376 in the week ended May 31; the lowest to date was £284,178,770 in the week ended Feb. 19.

BANK OF FRANCE BUYS $600,000 GOLD IN WEEK

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—As shown on Thursday by the Bank of France the bank had issued during the week 360,000,000 francs more of paper to purchase gold coin, indicating addition of about 3,100,000 francs gold to the bank's holdings. The new bank notes issued in purchase of the gold have effectually added to the money market's resources, with a resultant plethora of money following the shortage of a fortnight ago.

This easier position partly represented the usual effects of completion of the quarterly settlements, but the chief cause was recognized as the purchases of gold by the bank and of foreign exchange by the Treasury. The Treasury pays for its foreign exchange purchases with money paid in by the public, and is able to do so because the large payments it is receiving from taxes will continue up to the end of the year. The greater part of the revenue collections were paid all over the country in bank notes; payments against foreign exchange bought by the bank were entirely confined to the Paris banks.

These movements explain both the ease in the money market and the 443,000,000 francs decrease in circulation during the week. The reduction of 150,000,000 in the bank's advances to the State were similarly due to the Treasury's favorable position.

New Series

Alabama Power Company

First Mortgage Lien and Refunding Gold Bonds
5% Series due 1956

Dated November 1, 1926 Due November 1, 1956

Interest payable May 1 and November 1 in New York City. Callable at 102¾ through November 1, 1932, thereafter at a gradually reducing premium. Coupon and Registered Bonds, interchangeable.

Issuance Approved by the Alabama Public Service Commission

TAX PROVISION: The Company agrees to pay interest without deduction for any Normal Federal Income Tax to an amount not exceeding 2% which it may lawfully pay at the source.

For further information regarding the Company, these Bonds, and the security therefor, attention is called to the letter of Mr. Thos. W. Martin, President of the Company, copies of which will be furnished on request and from which it will be noted, among other things, that:

Alabama Power Company, one of the principal operating subsidiaries of Southeastern Power & Light Company, serves directly or at wholesale practically all the urban population and industrial power requirements in a territory comprising the northern two-thirds of the State of Alabama, including the important Birmingham industrial district. In addition, plants are now under way for the Company to supply power at wholesale to a group of associated companies having operations practically throughout the southern part of Alabama, the western section of Florida, and a large part of the State of Mississippi, including the cities of Pensacola, Mobile, Gulfport, Biloxi, Meridian and Hattiesburg.

The present installed generating capacity of the Company's plants aggregates 418,600 hp., of which over two-thirds is hydro-electric. The property includes two of the largest hydro-electric developments and one of the largest steam generating stations in the South. A third large hydro-electric plant is now nearing completion, and it is expected will be in operation about January 1, 1927, with a total initial capacity of 135,000 hp.

The First Mortgage Lien and Refunding Bonds, in addition to being secured, in the opinion of counsel, by a general mortgage on the entire property of the Company, are secured by the pledge of $39,302,000 of its First Mortgage 5% Bonds and $1,276,000 (closed mortgages) underlying divisional bonds (including those to be deposited in connection with the authentication of Bonds now offered). No additional First Mortgage Bonds, of which $10,221,000 are now outstanding with the public, can be issued except for pledge as further security for the First Mortgage Lien and Refunding Bonds.

Earnings

Gross Earnings, Including Other Income	$12,811,487
Operating Expenses, Maintenance and Taxes	6,763,882
Net Earnings	$ 6,047,605
Annual Interest on Funded Debt with Public (including this offering)	2,996,045
Balance	$ 3,051,560

Net Earnings Over Twice the Above Interest Charges

The duplication value of the Company's property is materially in excess of the total bonded debt outstanding with the public, including this offering. During the last three years over $15,000,000 cash has been realized from the sale of preferred stock, largely in the territory served. These First Mortgage Lien and Refunding Gold Bonds, $44,700,000 of which will be outstanding including the present issue, are followed by $12,170,000 Income Debenture Certificates, 209,797 shares of Preferred Stock and 391,020 shares of Common Stock.

We have been identified with the bond financing of this Company for over ten years.

We Recommend These Bonds for Investment

Price 98½ and Interest, to Yield about 5.10%

Bonds are offered for delivery when, as and if issued and received by us and subject to the approval of counsel. It is anticipated that temporary Bonds will be available for delivery on or about November 15, 1926.

GREAT ACTIVITY IN STOCKS AT BERLIN

SCHACHT ON GOLD POLICY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—The Berlin stock market was extraordinarily active during the past week, with violent advances in shares of steel, banking and shipping companies. Stock of the Dyes Trust reached on Tuesday the year's new high point of 334.50. The Deutsche Bank issued an explicit warning against the rapid increase of banking "prolongation credits," which at the end of August had reached 472,000,000 marks against 88,000,000 at the end of August, 1925.

The money market in fact continues extraordinarily easy. Day to day money literally goes begging, borrowers being allowed to dictate the interest rates.

Reichsbank's Gold Policy.

Reichsbank President Schacht made an important announcement during the week on the bank's gold policy and on its attitude toward borrowings from abroad. Schacht declared that the Reichsbank must at all times be ready to export gold for maintenance of reichsmark exchange, and therefore must have a substantial gold reserve against the "note-cover minimum." The bank, he held, cannot wait to buy gold when actual needs arise but must buy when gold is cheap. He points out that no central bank has ever acquired gold so cheaply as Germany has done in the last two years.

Further, the Reichsbank holds that gold in the vaults at Berlin is better on all counts than "dollar credit balances" with American banks. Redistribution throughout the world of gold accumulated in America, Dr. Schacht added, is not merely a matter of interest to America, but will operate for regulation of prices everywhere.

Must Check American Borrowing.

As for foreign borrowing, Schacht added, in view of the Reichsbank's compulsion to issue marks against foreign exchange when required, further excessive borrowing from America would lead to a calamitous rise in prices. He stated frankly that the Reichsbank has no need of the large quantities of exchange offered to it.

The index of wholesale prices as of Oct. 20 worked out in Germany at 130.9, as against 128.6 one week earlier, 126.7 at the end of September and 117 in March. The present index number is the largest reached thus far in 1926.

The cost-of-living index for September stands at 142, as against 142.5 in August.

NEW BRITISH MUNICIPAL LOAN OVERSUBSCRIBED

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—An unusual experience for the city this week was the oversubscription of a loan of £1,000,000, offered by Sunderland Corporation in 5 per cents at 99. Nearly all recent corporation loans have failed to attract public subscriptions, because they were offered on a credit basis equal to that of British Government issues. Investors now are demanding a better return on these corporate loans and the Sunderland Corporation set the fashion by offering its stock ¼ per cent. cheaper than other municipal borrowers. This explains its success where others have failed.

Interest rates undoubtedly are tending upward and new capital, which is in keen demand, will cost more in the future than for some time past. In addition to the Belgian loan, several other foreign loans are expected soon, including one for Siam. If the Belgian issue is made on anything like the terms reported it should be very popular.

TRADE BALANCE MORE FAVORABLE IN AUSTRIA

VIENNA, Oct. 24.—The latest returns of Austria's foreign trade, covering operations in July, show an adverse balance of 73,000,000 schillings, or $10,200,000. This compares with an average monthly import excess of 89,000,000 schillings, or $12,400,000, during the first six months of the year.

The improvement in July resulted from the fact that imports decreased more rapidly than exports. During the first seven months of the year exports from Austria amounted to 943,000,000 schillings and imports to 1,549,000,000, leaving an adverse balance of 605,000,000 schillings, or $84,700,000.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—Bankers familiar with the international market express doubt whether the American stock market will recover to the highest levels of 1926. They predict, however, no rapidly developing "bear movement."

Most of them contrast what seems to Berlin the fairly gradual movement of Wall Street quotations with the feverish fluctuations on the Central European boerses, where stocks often rise 200 to 300 per cent. in a few months.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—The bankers' free trade manifesto received by no means general approval in business circles here last week. It seemed to be felt that it gives expression to ideals which cannot be realized. High tariffs, it was generally stated, have been established in Europe by politicians, and business men think they will have to be removed by politics. If the manifesto paves the way for an international conference industrialists will become more interested in the matter than they are now, but the present feeling is far from enthusiastic.

Opinion has not been improved by America's eagerness to dissociate itself from the views expressed by the manifesto.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—The bankers' manifesto against international trade hindrances was well received last week by politicians with traditional free trade ideas. It was ignored however by others, and was considered by all to be outside the domain of immediate practical politics.

The German Government is already preparing a revision of the 1902 tariff, which will proceed on lines of the temporary "minor tariff" of 1925. With this in view, it will increase specific duties all around to compensate for the rise in prices and will impose duties on articles on which Germany, as a result of war developments, has lost her monopoly. No academic declaration can possibly affect these plans.

Some of the experts declared last week that although America, owing to her great area and population, occupies a special position she can not well expect to reap the benefits from a general reduction of European duties unless she also reduces hers.

Purposes Useful, Application Doubtful.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

ROME, Oct. 24.—Apart from what is described as the "technical value" of the free trade manifesto of the international bankers the practical application of its recommendations is regarded here with much skepticism. Nevertheless there are many who look for good results if the present intense protectionist regime can be modified in Europe by degrees at any rate, with certain industries and products.

The comment was made, however, that the manifesto embodies a grand project which would facilitate European reconstruction in the face of the gold hegemony of the United States and the migratory protectionism in European commercial circles.

Financial Paris Wholly Skeptical.

By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—In Paris financial circles no importance seems to be attached to the international bankers' manifesto regarding tariffs. It was also very unfavorably received by the Paris press, which interpreted it as a protest against the Versailles Treaty.

It was pointed out last week that the French signatories did not attach their names to the main manifesto but only to a specific declaration of their own. The protest is recognized as being directed chiefly against the customs tariff policy of Central Europe, but it is not felt that there is much help of obtaining modification in this way.

Customs and Indirect Taxes Show Unexpected Productiveness —Barrier to Lower Duties.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—Receipts from taxation in Germany during September were 545 million marks against 651 millions in August. Receipts for the first half of the current fiscal year were 3,359 million marks, whereas 6,465 millions had been estimated for the entire twelvemonth.

Direct taxes yielded slightly less than their expected share and indirect taxes more. Taxes pledged for reparations produced 1,092 millions out of 1,907 millions estimated for the full year, and customs yielded 414 millions out of an expected 580 millions.

The increasing yield from customs creates a powerful fiscal bias against reduction of the import duties. During the present financial year, customs are expected to produce more than 800 millions, whereas the estimate had called for only 580 millions.

VIENNA, Oct. 24.—The Vienna Boerse continued dull last week, prices fluctuating only on the market for State bonds. These securities, however, have lately been much depressed by considerable German sales. Stock markets at Prague and Budapest have also been dull, except for a temporary rise in mining shares.

"Financial interest is directed just now to the prospect that the iron works of Austria, Czechoslovakia and Hungary will shortly begin joint negotiations regarding their inclusion in the West European trust. Their united output amounts to about 3,000,000 metric tons of pig iron, which is equivalent to 10 per cent. of the Western European quota.

"Succession States," Where Mutual Pre-War Trade Was Free, Now Choked by Prohibitory Duties.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Oct. 24.—In Austrian financial circles, the "free trade manifesto" of the international bankers has made a deep impression. People at once concluded here that the wishes and warnings, constantly expressed by Austria ever since the conclusion of peace, had at last found international approval and endorsement.

Chancellor Seipel, in his "program speech" of last Thursday, declared that Austria is willing to take up this strong call for free trade methods and to pursue its own policy accordingly. The Neue Freie Presse remarks editorially that "this manifesto shows to the whole world for the first time that destruction of Austrian economic unity was a crime. Europe, now consisting of thirty-five States with twenty-seven different currencies, instead of the twenty-six pre-war States with thirteen currencies, is living in unnatural conditions and is confronted by danger of social concussions and revolutionary struggles. Even in the United States the ghost of overproduction threatens to appear." The Freie Presse concludes, however, with the remark that "the manifesto will not exercise any effect before stabilization of all the currencies."

It was remarked last week, on the Vienna market, that the unfavorable effect of customs tariffs, to which the bankers' manifesto strongly refers, was pointed out months ago by the National League experts who examined the Austrian situation. Their positive conclusion was that Austria is the best outstanding example of the unfavorable effects of customs tariffs.

Within the territory of the pre-war monarchy, which included the existing States of Austria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, half of Poland, half of Rumania, half of Yugoslavia and part of Italy, there were no customs tariffs before the war. After the disintegration of the monarchy, the new States first adopted rates of former customs tariffs. These, however, worked out quite differently from their old results.

Their effect necessarily depended on the relative stability or instability of individual currencies. Austria, with the most heavily depreciated of the currencies, had as a result actually the lowest tariff. Czechoslovakia, with its stabilized paper money, had the highest.

The Prohibitory Tariffs.

Since then, "gold tariffs" have been gradually introduced and they were from two to eight times as high as the former actual tariffs. During the transition period, when buyers sought goods instead of sellers seeking customers as at present, some of the Succession States obtained special advantages from prohibitory tariffs, export duties and special railway tariffs for export transit. Under this pressure the new States created new industries which were unprofitable themselves and therefore came subsequently to be protected by constantly increased import duties.

The result at the present moment is that, instead of the bulk of trade for the Succession States being with one another (as was the case before the war), only 9 per cent. of Austria's exports goes to Hungary and 12 per cent. to Czechoslovakia. Austria's exchange of goods with the United States is actually larger than with some neighboring States such as Yugoslavia.

LOWER-TARIFF PLAN NOT NEW TO GERMANY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—Discussion of the bankers' tariff manifesto last week caused it to be recalled that, in the Summer of 1925, the Federal Economic Council of Germany twice passed resolutions almost in the same words. When, however, the concrete questions of reimposition of food duties and of measures against American automobiles came up for consideration, the Council took an emphatically protectionist line, which was embodied in the tariffs.

It is admitted that Germany, being dependent on export of manufactures, would welcome an all-around reduction of tariffs, and the Finance Minister of Czechoslovakia, a country whose position in this matter resembles Germany's, also declared last week for a reduction of duties. But all such declarations assume that all-around free trade would necessitate a European agreement—which is considered unattainable.

FINANCIAL PARIS ON DEBT.

Prevalent Opinion Ratification Will Be Postponed to 1927.

PARIS, Oct. 24.—To usual, well-informed observers in Paris banking circles it does not seem that Poincaré has yet given practical consideration to the final carrying out of the currency stabilization. That he strongly favors such stabilization is recognized, but it is doubted by some of the financiers if he quite realizes the conditions essential to the success of the operation.

In many financial circles it is thought that, on account of the Parliamentary opposition to ratification, he will postpone until next year discussion of the interallied debts.

Coordination
The Art of Business Harmony

A business organization without a coordinating head is like a nation without a government. Coordination means order, balance, concentration of forces, profits and progress; the lack of it, chaos.

Business, to attain to large success, must have Coordination at the top. Individual effort and departmental efficiency come to little unless regulated and guided by the informed intelligence of coordinating leadership.

To attempt Coordination without the facts and figures which Sound Methods of Cost Accounting and the Business Budget provide, is as impractical as trying to sell without knowing the product.

Sound Methods of Cost Accounting assure complete and exact information of past and present; the Business Budget is a definite and workable plan for the future. With them able management can successfully practise the Art of Business Harmony, is equipped to coordinate, and keep coordinated, the various elements of a progressive enterprise.

$10,799,000 BONDS ON MARKET TODAY

Public Utility and Municipal Securities to Be Offered for Investment.

$6,000,000 FROM ALABAMA

Texas, Illinois, Pennsylvania, New York and New Jersey Also Represented.

A total of $10,799,000 of new bonds will be offered to the public today, including public utility and municipal securities.

The day's largest issue is $6,000,000 Alabama Power Company first mortgage lien and refunding bonds, 5 per cent. series, due in 1956 and offered by Harris, Forbes & Co. and Coffin & Burr. These bonds are priced at 98½ and interest, to yield about 5.10 per cent. The company is one of the principal operating subsidiaries of the Southeastern Power and Light Company and serves practically all of the urban population and industrial requirements of the northern two-thirds of the State of Alabama. Net earnings in the year ended on Aug. 31 amounted to $6,047,605.

A new issue of $1,650,000 Texas Power Corporation first (closed) mortgage 6 per cent. bonds, due in 1956, is being offered at 99 and interest, to yield about 6.07 per cent., by Emery, Peck & Rockwood, G. H. Walker & Co., Paine, Webber & Co. and Taylor, Ewart & Co., Inc. The bonds are callable at 105 and interest on or before Sept. 1, 1933, the call price being reduced one point each six years to 101 and interest, effective after Sept. 1, 1950, and to and including March 1, 1956. The corporation was organized recently to construct and operate power plants and transmission lines.

The National City Company is offering, at prices to yield about 4.10 per cent., $1,400,000 Allegheny County, Pa., 4¼ per cent. bonds, due from 1930 to 1941. The bonds are issued for various improvements and are direct obligations of the county.

A syndicate composed of Blyth, Witter & Co., W. A. Harriman & Co., Inc., and Taylor, Ewart & Co., Inc., is offering $1,000,000 Chicago Lincoln Park 4½ per cent. bonds, due on Oct. 1, 1927 to 1946, at prices to yield 4.10 per cent. The bonds are issued by the Commissioners of Lincoln Park and are payable from direct taxes.

S. W. Straus & Co. today will distribute $925,000 first mortgage fee 6 per cent. sinking fund gold bonds of Fifty-seventh Street Apartments, Inc., secured by a fifteen-story apartment building at 320 East Fifty-seventh Street.

Brandon, Gordon & Waddell will market $316,000 City of Lake Worth (Fla.) 6 per cent. street improvement bonds, due from 1927 to 1936, and priced to yield 5.75 per cent.

A new issue of $539,000 City of Plainfield (N. J.) 4¼ per cent. gold bonds is being distributed by J. S. Rippel & Co. The bonds are due serially from 1927 to 1956 and are priced to yield 4.25 per cent.

LARGE AMALGAMATION IN BRITISH INDUSTRY

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—One of the largest industrial amalgamations which Great Britain has ever witnessed is proposed in the merging of Brunner, Mond & Co., the British Dyestuffs Corporation, Nobel Industries, Limited, and the United Alkali Company. These four companies have a combined issued capital of £28,250,000, with an authorized capital of £47,500,000.

The proposed merger is more comprehensive than was expected. It is considered as confirming what prominent business men have been saying for a long time past, that only by big combinations can competition now be successfully met.

This merger is probably the forerunner of others in other branches of industry.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Oct. 24.—Gold taken into the Bank of England during the last calendar week was £500,000, in sovereigns from South Africa. Withdrawals were £1,317,000 of which £1,223,000 was bullion understood to be mainly for Germany, £16,000 for Holland, £34,000 for Switzerland and £36,000 for India.

According to the customs returns, total imports of gold into England during the week ending last Wednesday were £1,470,583, nearly all from South Africa. Exports were £1,384,014, of which £1,097,424 went to Germany, and £105,125 to France.

Italy's September Excess Not Above Pre-War Magnitude.

ROME, Oct. 24.—Italian foreign trade returns are distinctly improving. For September the excess of imports over exports was only 72,000,000 lire, which was 37,000,000 less than in August and 30,000,000 less than in September of last year.

These foreign trade figures, even when allowance is made for difference in the value of the lira, show that the month's excess of imports over exports was no greater than for the corresponding month before the war.

SOUTH ENLARGES COTTON CROP IDEAS

Expects Government Report Today to Indicate Yield of More Than 17,000,000 Bales.

PRICES LOWEST SINCE WAR

Spinners, Both Here and Abroad, Take Advantage of Decline to Replenish Stocks.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, La., Oct. 24.—Cotton last week reached its lowest levels since the World War. Diverse reasons are assigned, but the dominating influence has undoubtedly been a further expansion of crop views due to the very favorable weather experienced all over the cotton belt during the current month, except in a section of the Southwest, where excessive rains have undoubtedly lowered the grade of great quantities of cotton open and unpicked in the fields.

It is generally believed that the warm sunshiny weather has been the main reason for an augmentation of the yield, as it has enabled much cotton to mature that might have been lost under different conditions. This fact, coupled with an enormous movement of cotton to market, has convinced most traders that the Government will be compelled to increase its next forecast of the crop to be issued Monday to something over 17,000,000 bales.

Big Movement to Market.

That there is good ground for such a belief is shown by the enormous movement of cotton to market. For four successive weeks the movement into sight has been record-breaking by a big margin, with the result that there has now come into sight this season up to Friday 5,482,291 bales, which is a larger amount than was brought into sight for the corresponding period last year, although the present crop was fully a month late in starting to move in volume compared with its predecessor.

That hedge selling has been one of the leading influences in forcing down the price of contracts, as well as of spots, is certain, as it was inevitable that the placing of hedges should have been on a large scale with the farmers rushing their cotton to market and selling it practically regardless of the price level. Although there is every reason to believe that the holding movement is making progress, it is unreasonable to expect that the holding back of even a considerable amount of cotton will have much influence on values until the movement of the crop to market begins to show some falling off. So far that has not occurred.

Spinners Replenish Stocks.

That spinners, both domestic and foreign, have been taking advantage of the low prices to replenish their stocks is certain. The large sales in the Southern markets from day to day indicate this, as do the large mill takings and the heavy accumulation of stocks at the ports, evidently intended eventually for export. That there has also been some investment buying both of actual cotton and of contracts is freely admitted.

There is every reason to believe that the consumption of American cotton by the world will prove very large this season. Most people look for a consumption of 16,000,000 bales and not a few even predict that the consumption will reach 16,500,000 bales. Mill takings the past week, according to Secretary Hester, totaled 520,000 bales and the takings for the season to date have now reached 3,178,000 bales, against 2,983,000 last year.

The farming, banking and mercantile interests are still actively working to check the downward trend of values and they are receiving the cordial cooperation of the Governmental agencies, both national and State. Efforts are to be made to retire fully 4,000,000 bales of cotton from the market until the price level advances to something like the cost of production. There is also an active campaign being waged to bring about a radical reduction in acreage for the coming crop.

AVERAGE COMMODITY PRICES RISE SLIGHTLY

New Highest in Six Weeks—The British Average Is Up, Italian Down.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 24.—Professor Irving Fisher's index number of American commodity prices for the past week, based on 100 as the average of 1913, is 148.4, comparing with 148.1 the week before, 147.4 two weeks before, 146.8 three weeks before and 147.6 four weeks before. It is now the highest since the second week of September. The average of two weeks ago was the lowest since the 147.2 of Aug. 21, which was the lowest for 1926 to date, and was also lower than any reached in 1925. The highest thus far this year was 159.7, on Jan. 30.

The highest weekly average reached in 1926 was 164.4, on Jan. 31, which was also higher than any reached in 1924; the lowest was 154.1 on May 2. The highest percentage since the war was 247 in May, 1920; the lowest, 130, in January, 1922.

Crump's British index number, as cabled for the past week, is 145.7, which compares with 145.6 the week before, 141.5 two weeks before, 145.3 three weeks before and 145.5 four weeks before. This week's average is the highest since Jan. 16, when it stood at 145.8. The highest Crump average thus far in 1926 was 146.7, on Jan. 9; the lowest, 138.1, on June 19.

The index number of average Italian prices, compiled by the Chamber of Commerce at Milan, was 680.7 for the past week, comparing with 667.3 a week ago, 673.4 two weeks ago, 678.7 three weeks ago and 682.8 four weeks ago. The average of 692.9 for the week ended Aug. 28 was the highest of the year to date and was also higher than any reached in 1925; the lowest was 636.2 for the week ended May 1.

AUSTRIA'S REVENUE GAINS.

VIENNA, Oct. 24.—According to the latest published returns, Austrian State finances showed a satisfactory surplus for the first half of the year. The excess of revenue reached 2,000,000 schillings, or $280,000.

During these first six months expenditure included 80,000,000 schillings for public works, but the total revenue exceeded estimates by 60,000,000. It is officially reported that the outlook is for a continued favorable showing.

STOCK AVERAGES DOWN.

"Fisher Index" Now Reckoned at Lowest Since July.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Oct. 24.—The weekly index number of Stock Exchange prices, compiled by Professor Fisher and based on the week's fifty most active industrial stocks reckoned on their average of 1926 as 100, is 169.7 for the past week. This compares with 165.8 the week before, 173.0 two weeks before, 17.89 three weeks before and 174.7 four weeks before.

The average of three weeks ago was the highest of the year to date, and was also higher than any reached in 1925; this week's average is the lowest since July 31, when it stood at 157.2. The lowest for the year to date was 121.1, reached on April 17.

STEEL OPERATING AT REDUCED RATE

SLOW-UP IN SEVERAL LINES

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 24.—Counting out the large rail engagements now being made, these being for 1927 delivery, there is a further decrease in the total of steel bookings, and it is now universally recognized that the steel trade is losing activity. The change in the volume of business is not large, but it is sufficient to presage decreasing production to the end of the year.

Circumstances do not permit of there being any sharp decrease in buying or in production, the opportunity so often presented in the past for buyers to curtail commitments by liquidating stocks being absent, as there are no stocks. The decrease in the total of buying may be called seasonal, as in various lines consumption certainly runs lighter in Winter, but that makes it necessary to assume that a year ago there was some anticipation, for production and shipments rose sharply through November and decreased only a trifle in December. Even a year ago there was much talk of steel buyers having become committed to a policy of hand-to-mouth buying. Buying is now of even more strictly hand-to-mouth character than formerly.

With the steel trade showing an opposite trend to that of one year ago, a careful study of all circumstances is timely. Possibly the situation is now feeling effects from the maneuvers undertaken by mills last May, when third quarter contracts in bars, shapes and plates were entered and prices then advanced. In plates the advance did not hold, but in shapes and bars it has held to date so far as known, and it is quite possible that specifications and deliveries in these important products were stimulated, at the expense of business late in the year. If so, the general situation is not altered, but steel has not been in altogether as good position as the production record of the third quarter would have indicated.

A specific comparison illustrates the point of heavy third quarter production and of declining production now against increasing production a year ago. The production of steel ingots in the first three quarters of the year was almost 11 per cent. above that in the same period of last year, but it is everywhere recognized that this lead is now being reduced. This week's Iron Age makes an estimate that the year's ingot production will be between 2,000,000 and 3,000,000 tons over the 44,000,000 tons of last year. That would mean 500,000 to 1,500,000 tons less production in the present quarter than in the fourth quarter of last year, and a gain for 1926 over 1925 of 5 to 7 per cent. against the nine-month gain of 11 per cent.

Fabricated structural steel business, which varies so much from week to week and from month to month, seems now definitely to be on the downgrade. While August lettings were the heaviest since last October, September proves by the official report to have been a light month, with 25 per cent. decrease. The total of lettings in nine months is 4 per cent. under that of a year ago, while shipments by the fabricating shops have been 14 per cent. in excess of the bookings, pointing to relatively lean order books.

BUYING SLACKENS AT STEEL MILLS

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 24.—Steel buying by the automobile trade continues very light, and deliveries on old engagements are now decreasing. The automobile industry has evidently shown all the good news for this year as September production was heavy, comparing very favorably with the earliest months of the year after allowance for seasonal variation.

In the agricultural implement trade there is further talk of a slowing down, attributed to low-priced cotton and floods in the West.

Independent sheet manufacturers representing 73.8 per cent. of the total sheet-making capacity report sales in September at 446,147 net tons, equal to 140.3 per cent. of rated capacity for the month. In the latter part of the month mills were marking up asking prices $2 a ton, to 3.40c for blue annealed, 3.10c for black and 4.05c for galvanized sheets. The trade took its usual course, there being covering on the eve of the advance.

The new prices were understood to be in effect by Oct. 1, and if so the buying was, after all, hardly as heavy as might have been expected. It leaves the sheet mills with no little business still to do for the quarter. If prices hold there is an earlier opportunity to realize them, but there is some doubt about this. Prices are being shaded now in some quarters, but that is the usual thing in the sheet market.

The principal rail distributions in the week were the New York Central's 227,678 tons and the Santa Fé's 129,000 tons. The New York Central's tonnage is the largest for any system, the Pennsylvania's 160,000 tons, reported a week earlier, coming second. The rail buying movement of a year ago totaled about 1,500,000 tons, and this movement promises if anything to be slightly larger, in the neighborhood of 1,000,000 tons having already been announced.

ALL GRAIN MARKETS HIGHER AT WEEK-END

THE RISE IN OCEAN FREIGHT

Some Traders Think It Has Come to Stay—Farmers Hurrying Old Corn to Market.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—A great many in the grain trade are beginning to realize that there has been too much bearishness, that there is little to be accomplished by expectations of materially lower prices, and that more good will result to agricultural interests from an upturn in prices than from efforts to depress values to lower levels than the present.

They point to changed conditions in the coal and copper industries, with the steel mills working close to capacity and with indications of an improvement in the textile industry and a probable stabilization of cotton values through governmental or outside regulations. Another factor is the increasing activity of the agricultural leaders in Congress this Winter.

Present prices for wheat are not considered too high for a rich nation like the United States, with Europe paying around $1.90, as against $1.40 to $1.50 in America, as it was put by an exporter. Conditions in Europe are improving. There is more industry, people are feeling better, they are said to be living and dressing better than ever before. And there is said to be a complete change in the situation.

Ocean rates have doubled and in some cases trebled, cars and the carriers are considered as having come into their own, the British coal strike having created a demand for coal from other countries which has been especially beneficial to that industry in the United States. It has called the attention of the world to the fact that the actual available ocean tonnage is not as large as estimated, there being many old hulls tied up in various parts of the world that have served their time and have not been taken out of the tonnage supply. One of the largest exporters says that he believes the day of five cents a bushel freight for wheat from New York to Liverpool is a thing of the past.

The trade seems to have lost sight of the fact that the world entered the present season with reserves the lowest on record. Consumption started in as soon as the new crop was available and supplies have been cut at a rate that should be an important bullish factor, and all that is needed is an increased volume of speculation to carry prices higher.

On the other hand, there are a great many men in the trade who predict lower prices because of the light speculative buying power, with the possibility of a continued large movement in the Canadian Northwest, where 70 per cent. of the wheat has been threshed and is coming to market at too rapid a rate for values to be maintained at the present level.

May wheat reached the highest price of the season on Saturday, $1.50¾, an advance of practically 9 cents from the low of the previous week. December touched $1.46¾, up 9¾ cents in the same time. The close on Saturday was at $1.44½ to $1.44¾ for December, and $1.48⅝ to $1.48⅞ for May, showing gains of 8¼ to 9¾ cents, after a range of 5¾ cents for the week.

Sweets Company's Quarterly Net.

Net profit of $36,486 is reported by the Sweets Company of America, Inc., for the quarter ended Sept. 30, before depreciation. Several new lines are to be added to the company's products. At the annual meeting, William A. Greer of Greer, Crane & Webb and H. A. Fahs, Vice President and General Manager of the company, were made directors.

'STEEL QUOTA' EXCEEDED.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—Germany's steel output in September amounted to 1,144,122 metric tons, against 1,141,816 in August. This output considerably exceeds Germany's quota in the new international cartel. Apparently Germany will maintain it and pay to the cartel the prescribed fine of $4 per ton on the surplus over the quota.

The ingot steel syndicate has in fact increased production for November from 70 per cent. to 80 per cent. of capacity.

RUSSIA'S BALANCE OF TRADE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Oct. 24.—Russia's imports during the business year 1925-26 are stated to have amounted to 872,800,000 rubles and exports to 586,700,000. The import excess of 86,000,000 contrasts with 153,000,000 in the preceding year.

Currency circulation as of October 1 was 1,849,000,000 rubles, against 1,143,000,000 a year ago. The State Planning Board estimates that circulation during the new business year will increase 150,000,000.

Week's Grains at Primary Points.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Primary receipts of wheat for the week were 8,684,000 bushels; previous week, 11,327,000; last year, 8,121,000. Corn receipts this year were 8,718,000 bushels, the largest for the period in five years. Previous week, 6,636,000 bushels; last year, 5,516,000. Wheat shipments this year were 6,215,000 bushels; previous week, 5,273,000; last year, 4,569,000, and corn shipments this year, 2,700,000 bushels; previous week, 2,536,000; last year, 1,944,000.

FOREIGN EXCHANGE RATES

There was a general air of buoyancy about the trading in the European exchanges last week as speculative enthusiasm pushed several to new highs for the year, and longer, and was thought to represent an improved status from a political and economic viewpoint of the nations whose currencies were propelled upward. Business was extremely active at all times, and on several days ran to unusually late hours. For the major share of the improvement the London and Paris markets played an important part, for it was from these centres that cables carried something of the same optimism which is held here.

Foremost in the gains scored was that in Italian lire to 4.39⅝ cents, which was about 30 points up from the previous week's final, and highest since October, 1924. French francs at 3.03¼ cents, unequaled since September, 1925, were up 16¼ points. The Norwegian krone was another strong feature, moving up 112 points to 25.10 cents, the highest since 1919. Belgian francs kept pace with the strength in the French unit. Japanese yen developed strength and a new top at 48.83 cents, although the Chinese were weak with the continued heaviness in silver.

As commercial bills came on the market, particularly for cotton, which right now is being heavily bought because of its relative cheapness, the pound sterling was borne to a new low for the year at $4.84 5-16.

Heavy offerings of the German mark at the week-end brought it down to 23.77½ cents, the lowest since the rehabilitation of the new Reichsmark in November, 1924. Holland guilders also sagged to a new low, while an irregular tone pervaded the Spanish and Swiss descriptions. In the South Americas, the Brazilian, Peruvian and Uruguayan remittances sold off, although there was a small recovery in the former at the close.

INDUSTRIAL LEADERS OPPOSE 5-DAY WEEK

RISE IN LIVING COSTS SEEN

Decreased Output and 15% Increase in Wages Also Would Result From Change, Business Men Hold.

Henry Ford's five-day week, which won the praise of labor leaders and others, will not be adopted generally by the industries of the United States, according to the Presidents of large concerns whose opinions were sought by the National Association of Manufacturers.

In a summary of the opinions made public yesterday the industrial leaders declared the five-day-week plan would greatly increase the cost of living, decrease production and raise wages more than 15 per cent. The opinions of the industrialists paralleled those of James A. Emery, general counsel of the association, who opposed the general application of the five-day week in industry at the recent convention of the association in this city.

Some of the Opinions.

"It would be impracticable for all industries.

"It would mean a trend toward the arena. Rome did that and Rome died.

"It would be against the best interests of the men who want to work and advance.

"It would be all right to meet a sales emergency, but would not work out as a permanent thing.

"It would make us more vulnerable to the economic onslaughts of Europe, now working as hard as she can to overcome our lead."

Paul J. Kruesi, President of the Southern Ferro Alloys Company, Chattanooga, Tenn., wrote:

"The public impression is exceedingly widespread to the effect that Ford's present sales have dropped to the point where his normal force can readily make in five days all the cars his agencies can sell in six days. The rest of the country is content to wait and see whether in, say a year's time, the Ford production in five days equals what he used to produce in six, which, I believe, is his contention.

"My own view is that the destruction of economic wealth resulting from the World War was on such a colossal and incomprehensible scale (even in this country, where we built and then scrapped billions of dollars worth of ships, shipyards, nitrate plants and army supplies), that the work of the world cannot, in this generation, be done in five eight-hour days per week. This is said without derogation to Mr. Ford, or lacking sympathy with the idea of ameliorating the condition of labor."

Holds Plan Is Not Feasible.

James Carey Martien of Baltimore said it was not feasible in many lines for a man to produce as much in forty-eight hours working five days as if the forty-eight hours were worked in six days.

"Mankind does not thrive on holidays," he said. "Idle hours breed mischief. The days are too short for the worthwhile men of the world to accomplish the tasks which they set themselves. No man has ever attained success in industry, in science or in any other worthwhile activity of life by limiting his hours of labor."

A. L. Humphrey, President of the Westinghouse Air Brake Company, Pittsburgh, said: "The relationship which happily exists at the present time between American employers and employes does not call for the creation of an extra holiday. If an employe is forced by circumstances of a personal nature, or if he wishes, for private reasons, to take a day off there is nothing to prevent him from doing so. If he wants to go to a game of baseball or football or take his family to a picnic he can do so without his employers making the slightest objection.

"I am convinced that the average American workman does not want anybody, Mr. Ford or any one else, to coerce him in curtailing his hours by arbitrary compulsion."

H. W. Cook, President of A. E. Nettleton Company, shoes, at Syracuse, said automobile manufacturers might agree with Mr. Ford, as longer recreation periods would give rise to a greater demand for cars, but it was his opinion that "too much leisure would unquestionably be bad for the workmen. Of great importance, too, is the question of whether we are going to be able to compete in the world's markets, including our own, with our higher wages and shorter hours, against the lower wages and long hours of foreign labor."

WESTERN TRADERS IN CHEERFUL MOOD

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—A slackening in the buying of steel, although the volume of new business was large, a good distribution of merchandise and active building operations were features in the business situation. There is less uneasiness over low prices for cotton and losses of crops and property from recent floods in the West and Central West, and a cheerful feeling exists. Merchants from the flood districts have been in the market for merchandise, and express the belief that there is to be a fair business.

Elsewhere buying of seasonable goods was larger and about the same aggregate as last year. Jobbers report sales of blankets and woolen dress goods as larger and distinctly is experienced in filling orders, as their stocks of most desirable sizes are broken and mills are unable to ship goods as fast as desired.

Toys and holiday goods have been shipped freely to retailers throughout the country, and within a few weeks the bulk of the sales is expected to be filled. Retail sales were increased by better weather, showing fair gains over last year, and mail-order business holds up well.

Lighter buying and deliveries of steel by the automobile and implement manufacturers offset fairly good buying of structural; oil interests and railroads gave the steel industry a slight recession in the aggregate of new tonnage, and operating capacity was lessened, although in the West it remains high. Advanced prices for pig iron, coal and coke through the increased export demand for coal is a factor.

Money in the West is plentiful and easier, with call money in Chicago 4 per cent; and time funds 4½ to 5% per cent. That there has been a good expansion in business since the end of June is shown in the increase in loans, and decreases in deposits, cash resources and saving deposits are indicated by the statement of State banks of Chicago in their reports to the Illinois State Auditor of their condition on Oct. 11 as compared with June 30.

COTTON EXPORTS INCREASE.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW ORLEANS, Oct. 24.—Foreign exports of cotton so far this season have reached 2,124,925 bales, against 1,964,520 last year, an increase of 160,045 bales. That exports are likely to gain steadily over last year is indicated by the big port stocks, which on Friday totaled 2,092,370 bales, against 1,686,977 bales on the corresponding date last year, an increase of 405,793 bales.

The rapid drift of cotton to the Southern ports indicates clearly that large amounts of this cotton have already been sold for shipment abroad. This is borne out by the urgent demand for freight room at all the outports and by the efforts being made to have the United States Shipping Board assign additional tonnage to the gulf ports.

ASSOCIATED GAS'S NET UP 159% IN A YEAR

Earnings Were $12,099,618 Up to Aug. 31, Against $4,664,874 —Gross $27,464,011.

For the eighth consecutive month this year the Associated Gas and Electric Company reports an increase in twelve-month earnings over the year before. The report shows gross earnings of $27,464,011 in the year to Aug. 31, against $13,923,490, an increase of 112 per cent. This increase is due in part to acquisition of properties.

Net earnings after taxes and amortization were $12,099,618, against $4,664,874, an increase of 159 per cent. Allowance for replacements and renewals was $1,547,680, against $661,357, an increase of 134 per cent. After Class A dividends there was $1,606,088 available for Class A participation, Class B and common dividends and surplus, against $475,541, an increase of 236 per cent.

The company reports it has retired thirty-eight separate issues of bonds and preferred stock aggregating, with partial purchases of other issues, more than $40,000,000 and says that this simplification has resulted in more economical permanent financing than otherwise would have been possible. This simplification also has resulted in increased holdings of the company's securities by customers and employes and other investors.

Export Business Falls Off in Lard.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Prices for lard and meat are considered relatively low as compared with those of live hogs, placing the provision market for cured product out of line. Speculative trading in lard, which is the leader in the hog product line, is limited and a fair amount of product is being made, but export business is falling off and lard is said to be selling in Europe at relatively lower prices than in Chicago, with futures 15 @ 35c lower than a week ago.

LOOKS FOR RUBBER REVISION

Henderson Expects Change in the Plantation Assessment.

Revision in assessments of rubber plantations and cancellation of unused production coupons is expected when the British Colonial Office makes its announcement this week on restriction regulations, F. B. Henderson of Henderson, Helm & Co., President of the Rubber Exchange of New York, said yesterday.

"There is no doubt," he declared, "that the British Government will make every effort to avoid low prices for rubber. The reason is obvious.

"On the other hand, there has been very marked indication that they desire to assist what is commonly termed stabilization and much progress in Revision in the assessments for estates seems inevitable and is justified. Cancellation of the unused coupons is expected, but will probably be handled in a manner fair to interested parties. The hope is generally expressed that whatever the program is the atmosphere will be sufficiently cleared that the market may return to more normal order."

FINANCIAL NOTICES.

GEORGIA & FLORIDA RAILWAY.

Notice is hereby given to holders of Certificates of Deposit issued in accordance with the Deposit Agreement dated February 1, 1916, between the undersigned Committee and holders of First Mortgage Five Per Cent. 50-Year Gold Bonds of Georgia and Florida Railway (of which more than $5,000,000 principal amount has been deposited out of a total outstanding of $7,500,000 principal amount) that at a meeting of said Committee held at New York, New York, October 18, 1926, there was adopted and, on the same date, filed with Baltimore Trust Company, Baltimore, Maryland, Depositary under said Agreement, and with Central Union Trust Company of New York and Richmond Trust Company, Richmond, Va., Agents for said Depositary, a Plan and Agreement of Reorganization of said Georgia and Florida Railway.

The Deposit Agreement aforesaid provides that notice of the fact of adoption, approval and filing of the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization shall be given by the insertion thereof by the Committee at least twice in each week for two successive calendar weeks in one daily newspaper of general circulation published in the City of New York, and in one daily newspaper of general circulation published in the City of Baltimore, Md., and in one daily newspaper of general circulation published in the City of Richmond, Va., and further that such publication shall be conclusive notice as of the date of its first publication in any of such cities to all depositors under the said Deposit Agreement and to all holders of Certificates of Deposit thereunder of the preparation or approval and adoption of such Plan and Agreement by the Committee and of the filing of a copy thereof with the Depositary and the Agents thereof.

Any registered holder of such Certificates of Deposit may within thirty days from the date of the first publication of this notice file with the aforesaid Depositary, or one of the aforesaid Agents of the Depositary, notice in writing that such holder dissents from said Plan and Agreement.

If, within said period of thirty days after first publication of this notice, registered holders of outstanding Certificates of Deposit representing forty-one per cent in face amount of the deposited bonds shall not file notice of dissent from such Plan and Agreement, such Plan and Agreement shall become effective and the Committee may thereafter from time to time prepare or approve and adopt modifications thereof, or supplements thereto, or other plans and agreements and give notice thereof as aforesaid.

If, however, within such period of thirty days from said first publication of said notice, registered holders of outstanding Certificates of Deposit representing forty-one per cent in face amount of the deposited bonds shall file notice in writing with the Depositary notice of the dissent as aforesaid; or if at any time within thirty days above limited, the registered holders of sixty per cent in face amount of the outstanding Certificates of Deposit shall file with the Depositary notice of their approval or of consent to such Plan and Agreement, then and in every such case (unless the Plan shall have been changed or abandoned as provided in said Plan) such Plan and Agreement shall be binding on all holders of Certificates of Deposit, all of whom shall be conclusively and finally deemed for all purposes to have assented to such Plan and Agreement whether they have expressly assented thereto or not, or whether they received actual notice or not, and be irrevocably bound by the same, but the acceptance and approval of said Plan as aforesaid will not prevent any holder of a Certificate of Deposit, who shall have filed his dissent in writing with the Depositary or one of the Agents thereof as above provided, from withdrawing from the Deposit Agreement of February 1, 1916, upon payment of his contribution to the compensation, expenses and indebtedness of the Committee as provided in said Plan and Agreement of Reorganization.

Any holder of a Certificate of Deposit may at any time within thirty days after the first publication of notice withdraw from the Deposit Agreement of February 1, 1916, upon surrender to the Depositary aforesaid of his Certificate of Deposit properly endorsed in blank upon prior payment to the Depositary or one of the Agents thereof, for account of the Committee of $25.00 per $1,000 Bond and $12.50 per $500 Bond which the Committee has fixed as a fair contribution toward the compensation, expenses and indebtedness of the Committee.

Copies of the Plan and Agreement of Reorganization may be obtained upon application therefor from the above Depositary and Agents thereof by holders of Certificates of Deposit and bonds of Georgia and Florida Railway.

PROPOSALS.

Reletting—Contractors Must Secure New Plans and Specifications.
CITY OF CHESTER.
SECTION 1, CONSTRUCTION 1.

Sealed proposals for the furnishing of all labor, equipment and materials for the construction of Section 1 of the West End Intercepting Sewer, designated as Contract No. 1, said sewer beginning at Fifth and Pusey Streets and traversing certain courses and distances over private and public property and highways, to its terminal at Fourth and Townsend Streets, will be received at the office of the Superintendent of Streets and Public Improvements, until two o'clock P. M. Standard Time, November 3rd, 1926, and there deposited in a box for that purpose and then publicly opened in Council.

These bids shall be in accordance with the plans and specifications on file in the office of the City Engineer, Chester, Penna., and in the office of Barker and Wheeler, Consulting Engineers, 16 State Street, Albany, New York. Plans and specifications may be obtained from the Superintendent of Streets and Public Improvements, of Chester, Penna.

All proposals must be accompanied by a certified check made payable to the City of Chester for the amount of $2,500.00.

Bids for the same will be compared on the basis of the approximate quantities given on the proposal form, which is attached to the specifications.

A deposit of $10.00 will be required for the specifications and plans, which will be returned after the opening of the bids by Council and the return of the plans.

The successful bidder must furnish a Surety Bond, subject to the approval of Council, for 50% of the amount of the contract guaranteeing the proper completion of the work.

The contractor, upon bidding, shall name a Trust Company or a Surety Company authorized to do business in the State of Pennsylvania, for the Surety Bond, or the bid will be considered informal, and shall submit a financial statement of said Company.

The proposal sheet requires a bid for 62 items of which the following are the most substantial items:

Approximately 1,440 feet 18-inch vitrified pipe in place.

Approximately 2,610 feet 54-inch precast concrete pipe in place.

Certified check, cash or money order for twenty dollars required to insure return of plans and specifications.

NEW BANK MERGERS BEFORE END OF YEAR

Amalgamation of Wall Street Houses Among Those Likely to Be Arranged.

CAUSES OF CONSOLIDATIONS

Institutions Strengthened to Care for Big Business—City Branch Systems Enlarged.

The recent merger which united two banks having combined resources of close to three-quarters of a billion dollars is expected to be followed before the end of the year by at least one other consolidation among the larger Wall Street financial institutions, and by several combinations among smaller banks. The amalgamation of the Irving Bank and Trust Company and and the American Exchange-Pacific National Bank, forming the third largest bank in New York in point of total resources, was part of a movement toward such consolidations which has been marked since the start of the year.

The competitive pace among the leading half dozen banks in New York has become more spirited than ever, and absorption of smaller houses is one means by which several of them plan to strengthen their relative positions.

The year's movement toward mergers was started in February with the consolidation of the Chase National Bank and the Mechanics & Metals National Bank, one of the oldest banks in New York. This merger created an institution with total resources of approximately $1,000,000,000. Previous to that the National City Bank had been the only billion dollar bank in the United States.

National City in Merger.

This merger was followed in a few months by the National City's absorption of the People's Trust Company, which had a long string of branches in Brooklyn. This strengthened the National City's city-wide branch system. Next in size among the year's mergers was that of the Irving and American Exchange, which took place this month after at least one other institution had endeavored to purchase the latter. There has been a long list of consolidations among banks which are several steps below the leaders in size but which would be considered large institutions in almost any city except New York.

Several reasons are advanced to explain the tendecy toward consolidation. First is the great growth of the banking business as reflected in enlarged resources, capitalisation and deposits among the three great groups: the national banks, the State banks and the trust companies. The last named group has made the greatest strides, but all have expanded. This has been related to the great expansion in business throughout the country. Corporations have grown to unprecedented size and it takes large banks to handle their business adequately.

Under the law, banks are not permitted to lend more than 10 per cent. of their combined capital, surplus and undivided profits to one individual or company, and in the cases of some of the largest corporations this proportion of the resources of even a good-sized bank is not sufficient to furnish the desired accommodation.

City-Wide Banking.

Another factor has been the growth in city-wide banking in New York. The National City, Chase, Corn Exchange, American Exchange, Irving Trust, Bank of the Manhattan and several others have comprehensive branch-office systems throughout a large part of the city. Some of the mergers of the last year or two have had as their chief motive the enlargement of these systems.

Despite the extension of the services of the great banks throughout the city, however, the present year has witnessed the largest growth on record in the number and business of the independent neighborhood or local banks. New business areas have been developed rapidly and banks have been organized to care for them. These include industrial sections, such as the fur, clothing and jewelry centres; the mid-town section around Times Square, the Grand Central, Park Avenue and outlying communities. There has been a particularly strong growth of banking facilities in Brooklyn.

One of the strongest features of the growth among the large banks has been the diversification that has attended it. The large institutions are associated with a wide variety of industries and enterprises. If one cross-current of the nation's business life comes upon a period of depression, the banks' position usually is buttressed by the prosperity in others. This has been particularly true since the increased tendency of corporations and individuals throughout many parts of the interior of the country to transact their financial business in New York.

PIG IRON 50 CENTS HIGHER.

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Oct. 24.—Coal markets in West Virginia and Western Pennsylvania have continued their sharp advances. Connellsville operations have such a realization on coal that they have no disposition to sell coke unless at, say $5.

The going furnaces are covered on coke to the end of the year and idle furnaces cannot come in. Spot furnace coke has been $3.50 to $3.75, representing odd lots arising in face of almost no demand.

In consequence of the coke situation valley furnaces have marked up pig iron 50 cents, to $19.50 for Bessemer, $18 for basic and $18.50 for foundry. Demand is light.

FINANCIAL NOTES.

Announcement has been made of the dissolution of the firm of Burley, Peabody & Craigmyle of 100 Broadway, and the formation of Burley & Bigoney, with offices at 115 Broadway, and of Craigmyle & Co., with offices at 120 Broadway. Both firms will deal in investment securities.

Dresser & Eacher have announced that Allan C. Neuroth, formerly with Hambleton & Co., is with them.

"Public Service Review—1926," a seventy-two page book which explains utility services furnished by the subsidiary companies of the Public Service Corporation of New Jersey is being sent to the corporation's stockholders.

The Irving Bank and Trust Company has been appointed transfer agent of the first preferred, second preferred and common stock of the Indiana Consumers Gas and By-Products Company.

Opening of its fifty-ninth distributing house in Dayton, Ohio, has been announced by the Graybar Electric Company.

Tobey & Kirk have announced that Frank S. Shaw and Wilbur F. Preston are in their unlisted department.

Automobile exports during 1927 should be the largest in history, says W. M. S. Mead, Vice President in charge of exports of the Chandler-Cleveland Motors Corporation. His company, he says, already has begun work on advance orders from Australia and South Africa for next year.

HOPEFUL SIGNS SEEN IN COTTON SITUATION

In spite of the less favorable position of agriculture resulting from bad weather in various sections and the decline in the price of cotton, the general outlook for business continues satisfactory, according to the Guaranty Survey to be published today by the Guaranty Trust Company of New York.

"With farm prices of raw cotton several cents below the average cost of production," the Survey says, "returns to cotton growers will be severely curtailed, and the reduction of purchasing power in the cotton belt will be felt by business throughout the country.

"Fortunately, there are a number of factors which tend to modify the effects of low cotton prices. The tendency toward crop diversification has made considerable progress in most parts of the South since the disastrous season of 1920, and the sections where the majority of farmers are solely dependent on the fortunes of the one crop are comparatively few. The extremely large volume of the crop, with correspondingly low costs of production, will help to sustain the level of both gross and net returns. Credit facilities much better than those of a few years ago will enable many producers to store their cotton until later in the season, when conditions may be more favorable for marketing.

"While it is likely that the prices of fabrics will show some sympathetic weakness, there is reason to hope that the third consecutive large cotton crop will result in hastening the recovery of the industry from the prolonged depression through which it has passed."

FIRMER CORN PRICES SEEN.

Bearish Influences Are Said to Have Been Discounted.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Corn, which has been under pressure from bears for months, is giving evidence of doing better. A trader who has been bearish for nearly six months takes the position that the decline was due to selling because of a belief in supplies of old corn back in the country of sufficient magnitude to off-set any losses which might result in this year's crop. They are now selling the corn because of stocks held in the interior that are being moved into primary markets. He figures that the corn has been sold twice through this method of trading, and with husking returns disappointing in many sections the bearish conditions have been doubly discounted.

The close finds prices 1 to 1¾ cents higher for the week, with December 77½ to 77⅝ cents and May 84⅝ to 84⅞ cents. Indications are for a good increase in the visible for the week.

Oats are ⅝ cent higher for the week, with December closing at 44½ and May 45¾ to 45⅞ cents. No. 3 white oats are scarce and command 2 to 3 cents over December in the sample market.

Rye is 2¾ to 2⅝ cents higher than a week ago, with the close on December $1.02½ and May $1.08¾. Export business has improved slightly, with domestic milling trade slow.

CORN DAMAGED BY FROST.

Husking Progresses — Seeding of Wheat Speeded.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Favorable drying weather for curing corn prevailed over a large part of the leading corn States and fair progress was made in husking. It was too wet in Eastern Kansas and corn in shock in Oklahoma is deteriorating because of wet weather. The Government report says that 14 per cent. of the crop in Iowa and 7 per cent. in Nebraska failed to reach the hard dough stage at the time of the killing frost in September.

Frost damage was most severe in South Dakota, where 20 per cent. of the crop was caught and North Dakota, which is not a large corn State, raising only about 25,000,000 bushels, had 45 per cent. caught, while in Minnesota, Michigan and Wisconsin, 30 to 40 per cent. was immature at the time of the frost. There will be a good deal of soft and mouldy corn this year, which will have to be consumed on the farms.

Seeding of Winter wheat progressed more rapidly in most sections where dryer soil conditions prevailed, but there is considerable territory where fields are too wet for satisfactory seeding.

THE WEEK IN LIVE STOCK.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Oct. 24.—Hogs are up close to the highest in recent months, with the average for the week $12.05, an advance of 35 cents from the previous week and $1.60 over last year. The bulk of the receipts are medium and light weight, indicating that the heavy packing sows have been well marketed.

Chicago had 132,800 for the week, or 4,800 more than last year and it is expected that 135,000 will be received the coming week, against 142,575 last year.

Shippers have bought 80,000 hogs the past two weeks, which has helped to maintain prices.

Beef steers declined 20 cents on the average for the week, showing $10.15, or $1 under last year. High grade yearlings and heavy finished steers closed about the same as a week ago, with butchers stock 20 to 25 cents lower. Feeders and range steers are a shade lower and calves $1 to $2.50 lower for the week. Receipts were 79,400 head, or 1,000 more than last year, with 77,000 expected for next week.

11 New Kresge Stores in Month.

The S. S. Kresge Company announces the opening of eleven new stores in thirty days up to Oct. 16, making 352 stores in operation. Six of the new stores were of the 25 cents to $1.00 class, and five of the 5 and 10 cent type.

OFFER IS REPORTED FOR BOARD LINERS

Atlantic Transport Company's Bid Is Understood to Be $10,000,000.

FIVE SHIPS ARE INVOLVED

This Is Said to Be the Only American Company in the Market —Sale Date Is Nov. 8.

The Atlantic Transport Company of West Virginia, one of the organizations controlled by the International Mercantile Marine Company, is understood to be the only American steamship corporation that will bid for the five passenger liners owned by the United States Shipping Board when they are put up for sale on Nov. 8.

The Atlantic Transport Line was founded forty years ago by the late Bernard N. Baker of Baltimore with a capital stock of $5,000,000, of which $3,000,000 was issued and is now owned by the Mercantile Marine Company. It was also the parent company of the Atlantic Transport Line, Ltd., of London, also owned by the International Mercantile Marine Company. At present the Atlantic Transport Line of West Virginia operates the five American flag ships of the International Mercantile Marine—the Manchuria, Mongolia, Minnekahda, passenger vessels, and the freighters Montauk and Montona—and has its own organization at Piers 61 and 62, North River.

In February, 1920, P. A. S. Franklin, President of the International Mercantile Marine, offered $14,050,000 for the nine Shipping Board ships, the Leviathan, George Washington, America, President Grant, Nanesmond, Antigone, Pocahontas, Princess Matoika and Callao. At that time the Leviathan had not been reconditioned. The offer was rejected through opposition in the United States Senate and an injunction suit in the Supreme Court of the United States brought by William Randolph Hearst.

The present bid is for the five passenger steamships operated by the United States Lines, including the Leviathan, George Washington, President Harding, President Roosevelt and Republic.

Offer Said to Be $10,000,000.

It is understood that the Atlantic Transport Company of West Virginia will offer $10,000,000 for the five vessels. This is considered to be a fair estimate of their value by experienced shipping men.

In the event of the deal being carried through the five ships acquired from the United States Lines with the five now using the Chelsea piers will dock at one of the new 1,000-foot piers above West Fifty-ninth Street.

The law demands that the vessels must be offered for sale every twelve months and Nov. 8 is the date selected this year.

No foundation could be obtained from the officials of the International Merchant Marine Company or the Furness-Withy Steamship Lines for the report that the negotiations for sale of the White Star had been reopened recently.

The Atlantic Transport Company of West Virginia was incorporated in New York in 1886 as an American corporation and has remained under American control ever since. P. A. S. Franklin is the President of the organization.

GLASS BACKS PLEA FOR TAX CUT SOON

Virginia Senator Thinks an 'Immediate Reduction' in 'All the Brackets' Is Feasible.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.—Senator Carter Glass of Virginia, commenting upon the proposal of Senator Simmons for a tax reduction in the coming session of Congress, declared today that there should be no delay in decreasing taxes if the Treasury surplus permits. He especially demanded relief from the "scandalously unjust and oppressive regulations which are not only fugitive and unstable but positively hateful."

Asked as to his views on the reduction of taxes in the next session or a special session of Congress, Senator Glass said:

"Whatever comment I should be willing to make with respect to that problem would have to be made with a reservation.

"In short, it would have to be understood that I have made no personal survey of Treasury conditions, nor any careful analysis of the figures touching receipts and disbursements, actual or estimated. However, we have the President's explicit declaration, made first prior to a previous reduction of taxes, that to collect from the people in the form of taxes a single dollar more than is required for the needs of the Government is a species of larceny. This being so, and I think it is, if the reported great surplus in the Treasury be an actual fact and the estimated accretion be anywhere near the accurate approximation, I can see no sound objection whatever to an immediate reduction of taxes, corporate and individual, in all the brackets.

"If the President's suggestion that overtaxation is larceny be true the Federal Government seems to be engaged right now in larceny from the taxpayers on a grand scale, provided the surplus figures which I see in the newspapers are even approximately reliable.

"There should, of course, be no delay for political reasons. A Republican Congress was guilty of this unpardonable offense six years ago, when it deliberately opposed a radical reduction in the tax burden of the people in order that relief might not come while a President of the adversary of the party occupied the Executive chair. Things of that kind are an offense to decency in government and admit of no extenuation. The American people not only want relief from this intolerable tax burden, but they are entitled to such relief as promptly and as completely as circumstances will justify.

"Not only are they entitled to exemption from excessive taxation, but, quite as important, they should have relief from the scandalously unjust and oppressive regulations, which are not only fugitive and unstable, but positively hateful. No taxpayer is ever permitted to know when he is acquitted of his obligation to the Government. The rulings change to suit the changing views of changing officials."

Declines Outnumber Gains in Cash Trading—Cotton at New Low, Grains Higher.

A mixed list of advances and declines in last week's wholesale markets revealed that eight of the subjoined list of twenty-five articles had lost ground, six were higher and eleven unchanged from the close in the preceding week. The most striking loss was that in spot cotton, which sagged to 12.55 cents, a record low for the last five years, on a continuance of the selling which has been in force since publication of the Government's crop estimate forecast—a bumper yield. Other articles to give up ground were lard, beef, copper, zinc, tin, silk and rubber.

A marked change in sentiment concerning the grains, which veered from a bearish to a bullish tone, lifted wheat, corn, rye, oats and flour, while coffee was another to recover from its recent drastic decline. Steadiness was found in sugar, butter, eggs, pork, iron steel billets, printcloths, hides, gasoline and crude oil.

MAKE SHOWS CLEAN, HINT FROM WALKER

Mayor Tells Catholic Actors Guild Some Producers Will Have to Change Ways.

READY TO TACKLE THEATRE

Opposed to Stage Censorship as "Un-American and Impossible of Performance."

That the City Administration may cross swords with some of the theatrical producers unless the moral tone of several productions in town is elevated in the near future was intimated last night by Mayor Walker in an address before the Catholic Actors' Guild at its open meeting and entertainment at the Knickerbocker Theatre.

"We've had to attend to the matter of the night clubs and we'll have to tackle the theatre next unless a change is made for the better," the Mayor said. "I'm fond of the theatre and I think theatrical people are a fine crowd, but if the City Administration and the theatrical interests clash on the issue of decency in the theatre I can assure you that the Administration will win.

"I get a lot of invitations to attend first nights and I love to accept them. But I haven't much of an idea what the show's going to be like. When it turns out to be not so good and people know that I've been there, the mail is filled with letters asking me what I'm going to do about it. And something will have to be done in some instances."

Censorship of the stage was scored by the Mayor and the Rev. William J. Donohue. The Mayor described it as "un-American and impossible of performance" and Father Donohue said that any censorship of the stage must come from within its own ranks. He asserted that the play-jury system was a failure because it gave first-page publicity to obscene plays, thereby swelling their box-office receipts and encouraging other managers to produce objectionable plays.

A message from Cardinal Hayes was read by Father Donahue.

An entertainment was given by James Hanley, Leo Beers, John Carroll, Kate Smith and other performers from Mr. Dowling's show, "Honeymoon Lane," and other Broadway productions.

NEXT WORLD CRISIS IN ORIENT, MUIR SAYS

British Parliamentarian Asserts Western Races Must Prove Their Right to Rule.

Western civilization faces a crisis in proving that it has the right as a minority to rule the rest of the world, but nothing of an international crisis looms on the white man's horizon or should arise for fifty years, said Ramsay Muir, M. P., yesterday at the Hotel Astor on his arrival from England on the Carmania. He will leave this week for a lecture tour in the West and will return to New York to address the annual dinner of the Academy of Political Science on Nov. 12. He will also deliver lectures at Amherst College in November and December on world problems.

Mr. Muir believes that the people of the Western nations would need the severest kind of test before going to war again. But the Orientals, the blacks of Africa and others who are dominated by the whites are restless, he said. They demand that the West prove its right to dominate.

"The answer naturally lies in our conduct," he said. "If we are just with each other we can go before the races which we rule, with a clean slate. They saw us at our worst between 1914-1918. We are people who change as conditions change, in our laws and our ways of living. The Orient holds its laws to be God-given and they cannot be changed one bit. There is one problem. How are we, a changing people, holding democracy something to be sought, to keep satisfied people who hold caste sacred and abhor persons of lower rank?"

He cited Great Britain's problem in India as an example of what all the Western world must face. Freedom from war and a system of justice were given to India by Great Britain, he said, but now India is not willing to make the basic changes that must come with Western civilization. She will not pay the price of democracy for the benefits the West has to offer.

Mr. Muir holds that Western civilization needs leadership that must teach subservient peoples that they are being led along wholesome lines. He pointed to many factors that should aid leadership today.

"The Treaty of Versailles, with all its defects has done more than any other treaty to map Europe in a fashion to prevent war," he said. "That treaty was based to an extent on the realization that linguistic are not the only differences between peoples. The League of Nations is another factor. The World War would not have broken out in 1914 had the League existed. The temper of the people is of opposition to war. That means much."

INVENTS NEW AUTO FUEL.

Yale Scientist Says It Eliminates Danger of Lead Poisoning.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 24.—Leo Kimball, a research worker at the Mason laboratory of Yale University, asserts he has invented a new high compression fuel which, as a gasoline substitute, has all the advantages of tetraethyl mixtures and eliminates the danger of lead poisoning from fumes.

Mr. Kimball said tonight that when a recent survey reported that there was only enough crude oil available to last six years at the present rate of consumption, he began searching for an automobile fuel that would be less dependent upon natural resources. He states that his mixture of an artificial fluid and gasoline can be produced in more than double the world's supply of automobile fuel.

Zionists Favor $300,000 Building.

An all day conference of New York Zionists was held at the Hotel Pennsylvania yesterday with delegates from forty-five Zionist organizations present. Carl Sherman was the Chairman, and Louis Lipsky delivered the principal address. Resolutions were adopted favoring the formation of a Young Peoples' Zionist League and the erection of a $300,000 building to house Zionist offices and activities here.

MATERIAL MEN FIX SLOW PAY DEADLINE

Builders Demand That Masons' Supply Dealers Put End to Unfair Competition.

$55,000,000 NOW TIED UP

Building material dealers of Manhattan and the Bronx met last week and stopped further sale of basic building materials where the retained percentage and other credit abuses were left in the contract so indefinitely as to suggest the financing of unrated owners' building operations, says Allen E. Beals in the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports.

In addition to this, they reaffirmed their policy of last June to the effect that they would keep rigidly to the business of selling building materials, putting themselves on record as disountenancing incidental financial aid to builders, in consideration of orders placed with them, when credit position of the buyer was not satisfactorily established and whose policies with regard to trade practices fall short of the standards constituting a safe business risk.

They even went so far as to make the deadline retroactive to Oct. 1, in order to avoid special conditions surrounding pending transactions.

To Influence Other Lines.

Continued pressure on building material, appliance and equipment distributers in New York City is being applied through building trade channels to induce other lines to follow the example of the Structural Steel Board of Trade members and those of the Masons Material Dealers' Association of the City of New York.

The building investing public has a large interest in the issue. In fact, in this present falling market it is coming in for more and more consideration from supply firms desiring to keep up the volume of business of previous years.

At present, reputable contractors are concentrating their efforts upon trying to clean their own house by insisting upon a better sense of proportion than has heretofore existed among building material, equipment and appliance firms, in the matter of granting credits. They contend that a well-rated firm ought to have better terms than the firm of low or no rating. The reverse of this practice, however, has become so prevalent as to constitute an unsound situation.

Reputable firms go so far as to say that they are put in a bad light before the building investing public when comparison is made between the bids they put in and those of irresponsibles who have discovered a way of edging themselves into bidding against well-rated bidders and the acceptance of whose low bids too frequently results in the failure of the irresponsible bidder, the distress of the owner and the loss of a substantial part of the price of the commodity sold to the unfair or ill-equipped competitor.

$6,000,000 in Deferred Payments.

Recalling that last June there was about $6,000,000 tied up in deferred payments being carried by masons' material supply firms in Manhattan and the Bronx, Wright D. Goss, President of the Masons Material Dealers' Association of the City of New York, and for almost half a century a prominent dealer and manufacturer of common brick, said:

"Credit conditions cannot be said to be sound when the buyer actually makes the price at which he will buy his masons' material supplies for certain types of building enterprise by the simple expedient of drawing up a contract providing for retained percentage of payment, penalties, notes in part payment and then, by means of well-known manipulations makes the dealer wait for his money. Current conditions are even worse than they were last June. Business cannot thrive when it exists in a false prosperity and that is exactly what the present conditions in our business amount to.

"To keep such a state of affairs from dominating the market same corrective measure not only became necessary, but the situation demanded action, drastic enough to correct it fully and finally. We hope to have the masons' material dealers of the entire city and those of New Jersey, lower New York State, Southern Connecticut and Long Island take a similar stand, because there are other trades in this industry that will soon have to do the same thing that we have done."

Credit abuse in this city last June caused the tying up of $40,000,000 in deferred payments. The total estimated by competent authority today is $55,000,000.

The effect of such a situation upon the present and prospective building movement is shown by citing the fact that out of $1,047,000,000 spent for building construction in this city in 1925, $300,000,000 went for basic building materials and supplies.

If, as competent authority seem to agree, $55,000,000 represents the stagnation of working capital of those engaged in the building material and equipment supply business in New York City in a year falling behind the 1925 total, there is immediate need of a general dressing up of war-born credit abuses and unsound business practices, particularly on the eve of the 1927 building season.

Furthermore, general business conditions give the consumer of building material the right to expect a gradual lowering of basic building material supply prices. As a matter of fact, however, they are rising. Bradstreet's, for Sept. 1, shows a post-war peak on Feb. 1, 1920, of .2370. Sept. 1, 1925 the index stood at .1325; on Aug. 1, 1926, .1319 and Sept. 1 1926, .1322.

The generally accepted reason for the rising tendency of basic building materials is that when credit control becomes loose and unmanageable the dealer has to hold back on his payments to the wholesaler. The wholesaler holds back on the jobber, where such a factor exists, or on the manufacturer, who, in order to keep his mills running and supply ahead of the demand, has to borrow money for which, of course, he pays interest.

This cost, added to the production price of his products, is passed on to the material he ships to market, plus his estimated loss from wasteful production resulting from the necessity of shutting or slowing down his mill or hiring or firing his help. When the consumer comes into the market to buy what he needs for his building, he finds the trend of prices for this line of commodity rising when his experience in other markets shows that prices are falling.

The building-investing public, therefore, hesitates about entering the construction field at all, under such circumstances and the builders have put it up to the dealers to correct what they believe to be the root of the whole evil, namely loose credits, before the nation-wide building construction [illegible]

NOVEL WEAVES SHOWN.

Array of Fabrics for Sport and Other Wear for Spring.

Sports fabrics of a striking novelty nature feature the Spring lines which the Golding Fabrics Corporation have been opening. The term "silk woolens" might be applied to them, as the cloths combine a tweed effect on the face with a silken reverse side. The tweed surface effect is obtained through the use of special yarns giving a slightly nubbed appearance, while the reverse is of knitted rayon. The cloths, known as "tweedeen" and "tweedella," are designed for the two-piece frock, the mannish jacket of which is patterned after the ultra-smart sweaters now being imported by leading dress designers here for their sports models.

The cloths come in a large array of patterns, which are obtained by a special printing process. Multicolor effects are stressed, there being from twenty to thirty color combinations, including pastels. The fabrics are said to be non-sagging. They are priced at $2.25 per yard, with terms 6-10-60.

In its Spring silks the firm is giving much attention to a new, washable flat crêpe, made by special machinery, which eliminates much of the difficulty encountered with this type of weave. The flat crêpe is priced at $2 plain, and at $2.95 for small diamond and check fancies.

What are described as "chiffon taffetas" are also featured. These weaves, called tafatalia, show six different printed patterns, including the new Rumanian designs, checks and plaids. The goods are priced at $2.50 per yard and are available in twelve colors.

Plains and matching jacquard effects are developed in a pure dye cashmere Canton. The patterns run to large and small dots, and the combination of matched plain and fancy weaves allows harmonizing trimming and design treatment. The plain cloths are priced at $2.50 and the jacquards at $3.45.

Another novelty is the combination of a georgette crêpe front with a charmeuse back in a piece dyed cloth. The charmeuse back permits the creation of a georgette dress which requires no lining. The cloth may also be reversed for the self-color mode. It is priced at $2.95.

Instead of the 54-inch bordered silks, the firm is offering 45-inch staple flat crêpes which have a five-inch border in many designs, and in a wide color range. The price is $2.75 per yard.

COTTON TEXTILE FIGURES.

Shipments Exceed Production, and Stocks Are Diminishing.

Shipments of standard cotton textiles during the first fifteen days of October exceeded production for the same period by 10,551,000 yards, or 10 per cent., according to figures just compiled by the Association of Cotton Textile Merchants of New York. Shipments for these two weeks totaled 115,871,000 yards, against production of 105,320,000 yards.

These figures include all yardage reports made to the association by its members, and represent a large majority of all the standard cotton textiles produced in the United States. More than 200 kinds of cotton cloth are included. Fancy or special cloths, which are individual in design, are not grouped in the reports because they cannot be classed under statistical summaries.

During the period under review, stocks continued the decline which has been evident under persistent buying demand since last July. Stocks on hand Oct. 15 totaled 215,767,000 yards, against 224,308,000 yards on Oct. 1, a decline of 4.7 per cent. Since July 1, when stocks were 305,425,000 yards, the decline amounts to 27.7 per cent. Stocks have been decreasing by about 4 per cent. during every two-week period for several months.

Unfilled orders Oct. 15 totaled 309,-683,000 yards, a decrease of 8d per cent. from the total of 338,650,000 yards reported Oct. 1, but an increase of about 65 per cent. since July 1, when unfilled orders totaled 187,537,000 yards.

Sales for the period from Oct. 1 to 15 aggregated 87,044,000 yards, or 83 per cent. of the production for the period.

Diversity of Design, Textures and Weights in New Fabrics.

Marked diversity of design, textures and weights are featured in the new fabrics being utilized for the Southern resort and Spring seasons. The tailleur having been sponsored both by foreign and domestic style creators, early attention is centred upon materials best adapted to short jacket suits, the jacket-dress and coat-dress. Here the fabric choice inclines strongly to bold or modified checks, small plaids of subdued coloring in tweeds and mannish mixtures and hairline stripes on oxford, negre and navy grounds, according to a special bulletin issued yesterday by the Botany Worsted Mills.

"Sports coatings," continues the bulletin, "introduce a wide range of styles for the Palm Beach season, with all-white strongly entrenched as a style factor. Wool velours, plain and novel, cheviots of soft handle and intricate mosaic patterns, the traditional diagonals and basket weaves, are much in evidence. Suede cloths hold over as a sustained vogue, and broadcloths are submitted in white and pastels of special weight and finish. Among the heavier cloths, nubs are sponsored in overplaids of clean-cut color or melt into muted ground tones.

"Novel expressions of reversible beach coatings are those of jacquard weave which introduce silk in relief upon wool grounds. These styles are especially effective in bold designs in color upon white grounds.

"Soft woolly stripes of faint color, upon a base which introduces rayon on white, define a specific trend. Plaids thus treated are also well worked out in coloring and weight, and there are both blocks and stripes of rayon upon pastel grounds in tropical coatings. Throughout these developments the color values uphold a specific style interest.

"Cashmeres embrace coatings, ensemble and dress weaves, and maintain the earlier trend toward the uneven crosswise nuance of darker threading.

"In the list of specific dress-weight materials, lustrous twills, reps, superior covarts and crêpe types retain their leadership in the high-grade staples. Wool crêpes and crêped textures are offered in a variety of weights, in both uneven and smooth finish, which introduce one coating version, one self-pattern in dress and ensemble weight and one printed crêpe.

"Among the dress-weight novelties submitted, which are adapted both to dress and ensembles, are two and three tone effects in geometric patterns woven on the diagonal. The chevron or moire wave motif reappears, occasionally worked up in graded tones, and there are two-tone plaids in which the light tone is thrown up in slight relief.

"Flannels are offered for midwinter resorts, Spring and midsummer wear in special color ranges, which embrace tonal harmonies entirely new to practical fabrics."

U. OF P. FUND IS $7,842,387.

Dr. W. McClellan, R. C. Hill and G. F. Rand on General Committee.

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 24.—Dr. William McClellan and Robert C. Hill of New York City, and George F. Rand of Buffalo, have been elected to membership on the new General Committee directing the University of Pennsylvania Fund's fifteen-year campaign for $45,650,000.

Following the organization of the committee, it was announced by Thomas S. Gates, Chairman of the Managing Committee of the fund, that the subscription total in the campaign which was inaugurated on May 1, last year, has reached $7,842,387. Of this amount, $4,315,331 came from individual alumni contributors.

The new General Committee consists of fifty men representing 40,000 Pennsylvania graduates in all parts of the world, and has as its Honorary President Dr. Josiah H. Penniman, President and Provost of the University of Pennsylvania.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 24.—The disturbance which was over Arkansas Saturday night has moved northeastward to Pennsylvania, with greatly increased intensity, whence it will move northeastward. Pressure is low and falling over the Canadian Northwest, and relatively high pressure covers the Southern, Plains and West Gulf States, the middle plateau and the Canadian Maritime Provinces.

The outlook is for rain Monday in New England and for showers Tuesday in the lower lake region and the Ohio Valley. Elsewhere the weather will be fair Monday and Tuesday in the States east of the Mississippi River.

It will be colder Monday in the Atlantic States, and temperatures will rise Tuesday in the lower lake region, the Ohio Valley and the interior of the east Gulf States.

10:30 A. M.—Delaware Breakwater to Eastport Maine, and Southwest, storm warnings south of Delaware Breakwater to Cape Hatteras. Disturbance of moderate intensity over Breakwater to Cape Hatteras. Disturbance moderate intensity over Tennessee. Will move northeastward with increased intensity and cause increasing east and southeast winds north of Delaware Breakwater, shifting to northwest on Monday south of Delaware Breakwater. Winds will increase from south and become strong, shifting to northwest late tonight or Monday.

9:30 P. M.—Delaware Breakwater to Eastport, Maine, disturbance of marked intensity over Pennsylvania, moving northeastward, will cause strong south and southwest winds, shifting to northwest late tonight or Monday morning, probably reaching gale force at times.

Public School Notes.

The Board of Superintendents has fixed Monday, Jan. 31, 1927, as the date upon which the current term will end. All promotions of pupils, whether from one grade to another within a school, or from one school to another school, will be made on that day.

Following is the calendar and method by which pupils will apply for admission to high schools:

1. Nov. 1, 1926, or as early as possible—Information circular to parents.

2. Monday, Nov. 29, 1926—Elementary school principals and junior high school principals forward pupils' applications to high school principals.

3. Wednesday, Jan. 19, 1927—Junior high school pupils register and present credentials in person at high schools.

4. Friday, Jan. 21, 1927—Graduates (8B) register and present credentials in person at high schools.

Each 9B pupil in a junior high school who wishes to go to a senior high school should fill out an "Application for Transfer" before Nov. 29. These applications are to be forwarded to the high school principals not later than Nov. 29.

9B pupils in the junior high schools who are to go to a senior high school should report for registration in the senior high school on Jan. 19, 1927, at 1 P. M. Each pupil should be provided with the junior high school record card indicating the term of each subject in which he is entitled to be enrolled.

On Friday, Jan. 21, at 1 P. M., graduates who are recommended for high school must apply in person for registration at the high schools to which they have made application for admission. They are required to present (a) record card, and (b) attainment blank, each made out as of Jan. 31, 1927.

On the same day and at the same time that elementary graduates register in high schools, rapid advancement pupils from 6B classes should be sent to the Junior High Schools with their record card.

The attendance on Jan. 31, 1927, of all promoted pupils will be counted in the schools and classes from which they are promoted on that day, and not in the schools and classes to which they are promoted.

The Civil Service.

United States.

The commission announces examinations, at points in various parts of the country, for these positions; applications in the first case to close Nov. 6:

JUNIOR ASTRONOMER at $1,800, for vacancies occurring in the Naval Observatory and in the Nautical Almanac Office, Washington, D. C., and in positions requiring similar qualifications. At present there is a vacancy in the Naval Observatory.

For this position applications to close Nov. 8:

MATRON—For vacancies in the Indian Service, at the salaries indicated below, and in positions requiring similar qualifications. Appointments will be made to the following positions at Indian boarding schools, at the entrance salaries indicated, subject to the deductions for quarters, fuel, and light stated below: Head matron (large school), $1,500 a year; head matron (medium school), $1,320; head matron (small school), $1,080; matron (large school), $1,020; matron (medium school), $1,080; assistant matron, $900; housekeeper, $900. Appointees, under general direction or supervision, will have charge of the home life of students in Indian training or boarding schools, including the performance of one or more of the following tasks: directing the household departments of the institution; supervising or directing or promoting the social life of students; training and guiding them in correct habits of health, self-discipline, ethics of right living, physical training and recreational work; teaching vocational guidance, housekeeping, care and repair of clothing. Appointees may be required to serve on a vocational guidance committee. The head matron's duties are chiefly supervisory and executive in character.

Transcontinental Air Mail

The transcontinental air mail service is operated in both directions daily, leaving Hadley Field (New Brunswick, N. J.) at 11 A. M., Eastern Standard Time, and San Francisco at 8:45 A. M., Pacific Time. The planes carry mail for intermediate points as well. Connections are made at Cleveland for Detroit, arriving Detroit 8:15 P. M., and at Salt Lake City for Los Angeles, arriving Los Angeles 7:35 P. M. At Elko, Nev., connections are made for Pasco, Wash., and by rail from that point to cities in Washington and Oregon, arriving the morning of the second day after leaving New York City; and at Cheyenne, Wyo., for Denver, Colorado Springs and Pueblo, arriving the morning of the next day after leaving New York. Mail for points not on the air route is forwarded by mail trains from the nearest air mail station.

The New York daily closing time for the mail is 8 A. M. Eastern Standard Time, from the General Postoffice and 6 A. M. to 7:30 A. M. at the air mail letter boxes, painted red, white and blue, which are located in various parts of the city, depending on location.

Saturday's air mail from San Francisco will arrive by train from Cleveland at 7 A. M. today.

Special to The New York Times.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 24.—Saturday's transcontinental air mail from New York is being held over night at Elko, Nev., and is due to arrive here Monday at 10 A. M.

Sunday's transcontinental air mail running from San Francisco to New York was reported running on time into Salt Lake City, Utah.

Chicago and Southwest Air Mail

The New York-Chicago air mail is operated in both directions nightly, leaving Hadley Field (New Brunswick, N. J.) at 9:35 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, and Chicago at 8 P. M., Central Time. The planes carry mail for intermediate points. Direct connections are made at Chicago for Detroit, arriving Detroit 11:40 A. M.; for St. Louis, arriving St. Louis 9:15 A. M.; for St. Paul-Minneapolis, arriving Minneapolis 10:40 A. M., to connect by rail with points in North and South Dakota and Montana, and for Dallas, Texas, via Moline, Rock Island, Davenport, St. Joseph, Kansas City, Wichita, Oklahoma City and Fort Worth, arriving Dallas 6:35 P. M. Direct rail connections are made at Dallas and Fort Worth for points further south and west.

The New York daily closing time is 6:45 P. M., Eastern Standard Time, at the General Postoffice, and 5:10 P. M., or a little later, at the air mail letter boxes, painted red, white and blue, which are located in various parts of the city.

Saturday's air mail from Chicago arrived at Hadley Field (New Brunswick, N. J.) at 4:53 A. M. yesterday and was forwarded by rail to New York.

MRS. BROWNING'S PLEA NEAR

Special to The New York Times.

WHITE PLAINS, N. Y., Oct. 24.—Although Edward W. Browning has filed his summons and complaint in a suit for a separation against his wife, Mrs. Frances "Peaches" Browning, in the County Clerk's office at Carmel, Putnam County, and will seek a trial either there or in Dutchess County, it was said today that Mrs. Browning would demand a trial in Westchester. She will file her answer this week through her mother, Mrs. Catherine Heenan, who was appointed her guardian ad litem last week by Justice Morschauser in White Plains.

She will also file counter-charges, demanding a separation, it was said. According to a friend of Mrs. Browning, she prefers a White Plains trial because of the success of Alice Jones Rhinelander of New Rochelle, who succeeded in fighting the suit of her husband, Leonard Kip Rhinelander, for annulment of their marriage.

JUNIOR EXECUTIVE WANTED

An old-established New York investment banking house, undergoing rapid expansion for several years past, has an opening for a young man between the ages of 25 and 35. He must possess the executive sales instinct. This means that he is now employed either as sales manager, assistant sales manager or sales promotion manager. As our securities are what are known as specialties, a man with such experience in any specialty selling field of securities, insurance or merchandise would fit into the picture admirably.

We are not seeking the high priced sales executive who has already "arrived," but rather the junior sales executive who is old enough and has had sufficient experience in business to realize that it is the rare position that offers him not "unlimited possibilities" but tangible and proven scope for promotion and expansion. Three of our officers within recent years have worked up from junior positions.

The successful applicant will start on sales promotion work as assistant to a vice-president, and will have to edit a weekly house organ for salesmen. He will attend sales meetings and conferences and otherwise will be thrown into the kind of association that will enable him to work up to a vice-presidency inside of a year.

Applications for this unusual opportunity should be as detailed as possible, specifying age, religion and salary desired. Address: Eventual Vice-Presidency, P. O. Box 195, Wall Street Station, New York City.

THE BETTER SUIT YOU'LL GET AT ARNHEIM'S

Drop in, Sir,
look over our woolens. See our serges, cheviots, flannels—our finished, and unfinished worsteds—blues, grays, pencil stripes, herringbones and mixtures. And when you've found exactly what you want let us measure you for a suit.

A perfectly styled, beautifully fitted suit, built on a tailored foundation that supports the pull of laden pockets, and prevents sag, bag and stretch.

All in all, your Arnheim-tailored suit will be a mighty distinguished-looking, right-feeling turnout. That its cost is so extremely reasonable is another point in its favor—and in yours.

TAILORED TO MEASURE

Call for Mr. McModel! Mr. McModel makes it possible to "see yourself as others see you". When ordering a suit you naturally wonder how it will look on you—and as Mr. McModel's wardrobe includes over a hundred suits of every style and fabric, he can come pretty close to showing you.

BETTER THAN BARGAINS

We started our Used Car business with the idea that a good car at a fair price is better than a fair car at a bargain price. That idea has now become a definite policy. Our customers can tell you why.

A USED CAR IS ONLY AS DEPENDABLE AS THE DEALER WHO SELLS IT

KESBEC
GASOLINE STATIONS

Full Measure—Pure Quality—Quick Service

By WILLIAM C. FREEMAN

NO BUSINESS SUCCEEDS OVER A LONG PERIOD OF YEARS BY CHANCE OR HAPHAZARD METHODS.

The KESBEC BUSINESS has succeeded in a big way because it serves a public need and serves it well, and because it has at its head men of character and integrity.

The preceding articles introduced you to THE CALDERS who own and operate KESBEC GASOLINE STATIONS—told you how they started twelve years ago on the principle of giving the public a SQUARE DEAL by selling only also told you how the business has grown steadily by following a conservative and constructive policy until now they are operating more than thirty stations in the Metropolitan Zone, and are establishing other stations as rapidly as suitable locations can be found—and told you further how they are backed up by the MEN AT THE STATIONS who are experienced and reliable and take great pride in rigidly adhering to the sound principles on which the KESBEC business was founded.

For over twelve years KESBEC has served the public.

During this period the number of automobiles in use has increased enormously. Indications are that the future will show a still greater increase.

The KESBEC ORGANIZATION has recognized this condition for some time and has therefore adopted the policy of securing permanent locations, with the result that today most of its stations are located on land owned by the KESBEC ORGANIZATION

This policy has justified the Company in building enduring and attractive stations, and providing the public with every convenience as well as with complete equipment to render satisfactorily all kinds of service that goes with up-to-date and well appointed gasoline stations.

THE BUSINESS STRUCTURE HAS BEEN BUILT TO LAST

Why Buy Inferior Grades of Gasoline and Motor Oils and Risk Ruining Your Motor?

Millions of dollars' worth of motor cars are ruined every year by the use of inferior grades of gasoline and motor oils.

What is the remedy for this?

KESBEC stations handle only PURE, UNADULTERATED SOCONY GASOLINE and HIGH GRADE MOTOR OILS.

THE CALDERS have pledged THEIR HONOR to the public—OPENLY—and are staking their REPUTATION—earned by twelve years of hard work—AS A GUARANTEE OF HONEST DEALING.
